Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 26th September 1914.

Burma.—The rainfall was general and favourable. Transplanting of winter rice has been completed and replanting in flooded areas is progressing in Upper Burma. Agricultural operations in connection with winter rice and miscellaneous crops and harvesting of early sesamum are proceeding Standing crops are generally satisfactory. Agricultural stock is healthy. The price of unhusked rice in Rangoon is stationary while that of rice continues to decline.

Assam.—The weather is seasonable and favourable to standing crops. Moderate rain has fallen in all districts facilitating transplantation of winter rice which is nearly finished and improving prospects of crops. Plucking and manufacture of tea and steeping of jute are going on. Harvesting of autumn rice is nearly finished and the outturn is fair. Prospects of winter rice, cotton, tea and sugarcane are fair to good. The average price of common rice is practically unchanged. There is no cattle disease.

Bengal.—During the week under review seasonable rain fell throughout the Province, doing much good to the standing crops. Harvesting of autumn paddy has been finished in most places and that of jute is nearing completion. Transplantation of winter rice is over. The crop is thriving well and its prospects are promising. Injury by insect pests is reported from Midnapur. Cattle disease is reported from eight districts. The average price of common rice has fallen by about 0·4 per cent as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—Light to moderate rain was general over the Province. Harvesting of autumn crops still continues and that of jute is approaching completion. More rain is wanted for steeping of jute in Purnea. Sugarcane and winter paddy are doing well. More rain is wanted in several districts of Bihar and in parts of Palamau and Singhbhum. Insects are causing some damage to paddy in parts of Balasore. The average price of common rice has fallen appreciably as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. Agricultural prospects in the Feudatory States of Orissa are on the whole good.

United Provinces.—General rain has fallen throughout the Provinces except in the Rampur State. More rain is needed for rice in Jaunpur and in places in Mirzapur where falls have been scanty. Floods have damaged crops in parts of the Upper and Central Doab, central submontane and south Oudh districts and insects have injured crops in the Bansdih tahsil of the Ballia district. Harvesting, reaping, weeding and threshing of autumn crops and of sawan, rice, maize and millets continue and land is being prepared for spring crops. Picking of cotton has commenced in places and irrigation of late rice and sowing of spring crops are in progress. Standing crops are doing well and prospects are generally favourable. Cattle disease continues to be reported from many districts of the Provinces but the condition of agricultural stock on the whole is good. Fodder and water are adequate. Markets are well stocked. Prices are generally fluctuating.

The weekly report on the famine and scarcity is as follows :—Light rain fell in Jhansi. Aided works are still in progress in the Jhansi district. The number of persons on aided works in Jhansi on the last day of the week was 200. The public health is generally good. Charitable relief is being given and takavi is being advanced. Fodder and water are sufficient. Market supplies are ample. The price basis is 10 seers per rupee.

Punjab.—Light to moderate rain fell in parts of the southeast and in a few districts on the west. More rain is wanted in a few tracts in the north of the Province. The condition and expected yield of standing irrigated crops is generally good and that of unirrigated crops fair. Picking of cotton and harvesting of other autumn crops continue with yield average to good. Ploughings for spring crops are well in hand. Gram and spring oilseeds are being sown and the sowings are normal. Cattle are generally healthy and fodder and water are sufficient. Prices of wheat range between normal and warning rates and of other grains between warning and scarcity rates.

North-West Frontier Province.—Rain fell generally throughout the Province. The weather is clear and temperate. Standing crops are good on irrigated but average on unirrigated lands. Crops have been slightly damaged by floods in certain villages of the Nowshera tahsil of the Peshawar district. The Paharpur Canal is running. Reaping of rice and picking of cotton continue in some places in the Peshawar district. Spring sowings are in progress in Peshawar and Dera Ismail Khan. Cattle are in good condition. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are high and stationary but are tending to fall in Bannu and in the case of wheat are rising in Dera Ismail Khan.

Jammu.—There was no rain. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 10 to 15 and maize from 13 to 20 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. There is no cattle disease. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—The rainfall was insignificant. Prospects are good and crops are being harvested. Cattle disease is reported in Sripartabsinghpura. Water and fodder are sufficient. Prices are normal.

Rajputana.—Good rain is reported in parts of the Jaipur Residency and in the Eastern States of the Agency. The maximum fall was 175 cents in Tonk and the minimum 106 cents in Kishengarh. The weather was generally hot and clear. Standing crops are doing well and have improved in Tonk by recent rains. The condition of cattle is satisfactory. The pasturage and water-supply are sufficient. Prices are generally high and stationary.

Central India.—The rainfall was general in Bhopal, Baghelkhand and the Southern States of the Agency and slight in Indore, Bundelkhand and Malwa. More rain is wanted in the Lughasi State of the Bundelkhand Agency. Weeding of autumn crops and preparation of land for spring crops are in progress everywhere. Standing crops are generally good. Cattle disease prevails in the Naraingarh mahal of Indore and the Khilchipur State of Bhopal. Elsewhere their condition is good. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. Prices are rising in Bhopal, Baghelkhand and in the Charkhari and Banka Pahari States of the Bundelkhand Agency, are fluctuating in Indore and in the Sarila State of the Bundelkhand Agency and are steady elsewhere. In Bundelkhand the average numbers on gratuitous relief were :—Sarila 13, Garrauli 31 and Gaurihar 72.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been generally clear with slight showers. Three districts only received more than one inch of rain. Harvesting of minor autumn crops and preparation of land for spring crops are still in progress. Standing crops are in good condition and prospects are excellent. Cattle are in good condition. There is little fluctuation in prices.

Feudatory States :—The States received light to moderate rain. Standing crops are flourishing. The price of rice fell in Raigarh and Sarangarh and that of gram rose in Udaipur by 2 seers per rupee.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week throughout the Presidency Proper. More rain is still needed in two talukas of Karachi and Poona and in one taluka of Belgaum. Crops are generally good except for slight damage done by insects in three talukas of the Upper Sind Frontier, by locusts in three talukas of Thar and Parkar, by rats in one State of Rewa Kantha and by excessive rain in five talukas of East Khandesh, three talukas of West Khandesh and two talukas of Ahmednagar. Harvesting generally continues. Spring sowings are progressing in Sukkur, Larkana, Kaira, Broach, Poona, Sholapur, Satara, the Karnatak, Palanpur, Rewa Kantha and Kolhapur. The fodder supply is generally sufficient. Cattle are in good condition. Agricultural stock is sufficient except in Ahmednagar and Poona. Drinking water is adequate. Inundation in Sind is satisfactory. Irrigation water is generally adequate. Prices have fallen in Gujarat and the Deccan and are generally steady elsewhere. The numbers on gratuitous relief during the week ending 26th September were :—Bijapur 255.

Hyderabad.—During the week the rainfall was heavy and general except in the Usmanabad, Nizamabad and Mahbubnagar districts. The average fall was 1 inch 56 cents. The highest fall was 4 inches 71 cents in Seram. Autumn crops are being harvested but they have suffered heavily in parts owing to excessive rain. The early rice crop is fair to good and is being weeded. Lands are being prepared for spring crops and sowings are progressing but operations have been retarded owing to heavy rain. Cattle disease prevails in eleven talukas. Prices of grains are almost constant. White juar sells at 12 and coarse rice at 6½ seers per rupee in the Hyderabad City. The highest price in districts is juar 8½ seers in Mahbubnagar and the lowest 21 seers in Bidar.

Mysore.—The rainfall was good in Bangalore and light to fair elsewhere. The price of ragi has fallen in Shimoga and Chitaldrug. Weeding and transplanting operations are in progress. Sugarcane and gingelly are being harvested in parts. Standing crops generally are in fair condition. The prospects of the season are fair but more rain is needed in all districts. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available except in parts of Bangalore and Mysore where fodder is insufficient.

Coorg.—The rainfall was light. Transplanting of rice has been completed. Picking of cardamom continues. Prices of food grains are high. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall was light to fair in Tanjore, Tinnevelly and the West Coast except Travancore and good to heavy elsewhere. Standing crops are fair to good generally but have been affected by floods in parts of Kistna and require rain in parts of three districts. Harvesting of paddy and dry crops is proceeding in parts and the outturn is fair to normal generally. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water-supply is sufficient for irrigation in the Circars, Chingleput, Tanjore, East Coast and the Nilgiris. Pasture and fodder are generally sufficient. Prices show a very slight tendency to rise.

9. Bronze and Copper.—The operative loss on account of bronze coinage at the Calcutta Mint included a melting loss of ·425 per 100 maunds melted and a coining loss of ·060 per 100 maunds of new coins coined, the total loss amounting to 136 maunds.

The loss on the copper coinage executed for the Ceylon Government amounted to 5 maunds.

10. Nickel.—The operative loss on nickel coinage was ·454 per 100 maunds of metal rolled as compared with ·290 in 1912-13.

Premelting.

11. Uncurrent Government silver coin received for re-coinage, old subsidiary coins received from the Straits Government, bar silver tendered by the Exchange banks, fine silver purchased by the Secretary of State and a small proportion of Chaubisania coins received from the Kishangarh Durbar were taken into direct alligation.

Revenue and Expenditure.

12. The revenue and expenditure (including interest on Capital outlay and other pro formâ charges) of the two mints in 1913-14 compare as follows with the corresponding figures of the previous year:—

Year.	Revenue.			Expenditure.
	Calcutta.	Bombay.	Total.	Calcutta.	Bombay.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1912-13	16,15,389	26,78,575	42,93,964	16,17,437	12,43,720	28,61,157

13. The large decrease of revenue in the case of Bombay is chiefly due to smaller receipts on account of seigniorage on new rupee and dollar coinage.

14. The expenditure on salaries and establishments of the two mints compares as follows with that incurred during 1912-13:—

	Calcutta Mint.			Bombay Mint.			Both Mints.
	1912-13.	1913-14.	Increase + or Decrease − in 1913-14.	1912-13.	1913-14.	Increase + or Decrease − in 1913-14.	1912-13.	1913-14.	Increase + or Decrease − in 1913-14.

Miscellaneous Work.

15. The receipts on account of the miscellaneous work done in the two mints and the cost, were as follows:—

Year.	Calcutta Mint.			Bombay Mint.			Both Mints.
	Cost of work done.	Amount realised.	Profit.	Cost of work done.	Amount realised.	Profit.	Cost of work done.	Amount realised.	Profit.

16. The miscellaneous work consisted of the striking of medals for the Army Department, for Colleges and for other public and private institutions, the manufacture and adjustment of scales and weights, and some miscellaneous work undertaken for Government departments and the public.

Counterfeit Coins.

17. Treasuries.—The number of counterfeit silver coins of the several denominations cut at the Indian Treasuries during 1913-14 compare as follows with the figures for the previous year:—

	Rs.	½ Rs.	¼ Rs.	⅛ Rs.	Total.
1912-13	126,312	4,929	5,474	4,290	141,005
1913-14	119,664	5,344	6,931	4,850	136,789

18. The following statement gives the provincial distribution of the figures for the year 1913-14:—

Provinces.	Rs.	½Rs.	¼Rs.	⅛Rs.	Total.

TOTAL .	119,664	5,344	6,931	4,850	136,789

Of the total number of 119,664 counterfeit rupees, 51,294 were detected in Railway Cash offices, the most important figures being 8,370 from the North Western Railway, 6,589 from the East Indian Railway, 5,809 from the Rajputana-Malwa Railway and 4,737 from the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway.

19. Mints.—Counterfeit silver coins numbering 11,971 pieces were received at the two mints during the year against 14,365 pieces in the previous year. The following statement compares the details for the two years:—

	Received in remittances of uncurrent coin from Treasuries.		Received from Treasury and other officers under standing orders.		Received at the Mints for examination.

TOTAL .	5,846	6,118	3,251	5,072	2,874	3,175

20. There was thus a decline in the number of counterfeit coins brought to light during the year under report as compared with the figures for 1912-13. Of the counterfeits received at the Bombay Mint for examination, 582 coins from the Bombay, Baroda and Central India, Rajputana-Malwa and Jodhpur-Bikaner Railways and 12 coins from other sources are reported to have been exceptionally well executed.

Offences against coinage.

21. The number of cases of offences against coinage brought to trial during the calendar year 1913 was less by 39 than in the previous year. The following table which gives the comparative figures for the two years in detail by Provinces and Administrations shows that there was a decline in the number of cases in Madras, Bengal, United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the Punjab, Burma and Assam, and an increase in the Central India Agency and in Central Provinces and Berar :—

II.—WORKING OF THE ASSAY OFFICES.

Number of Assays.

22. The number of gold and silver assays made compares as follows with the figures for the previous year :—

Year.	Calcutta Assay Office.		Bombay Assay Office.
	Gold.	Silver.	Gold.	Silver.
1913-14	358	23,211	832	20,107

23. In March 1913, a change was introduced in the Calcutta Assay Office, in the system of gold assaying, this being brought into conformity with that used in the Royal Mint, London, and elsewhere.

Meltings for standard silver coinage.

24. The average fineness per mille of silver meltings for coinage during the year was as follows :—

	Calcutta.	Bombay.
Rupees	916·079	915·982
Half-rupees	915·992	916·042
Quarter-rupees	915·751	915·686
One-eighth-rupees	915·668	915·672
British Dollars	...	899·113

Gold in Silver Coins.

25. The average proportion of gold found by monthly parting assays in the silver pyx coins in the two mints is shown below :—

	Calcutta.	Bombay.
Rupees	·143 per mille	·539 per mille
Half-rupees	·517 „	·228 „
Quarter-rupees	·336 „	·326 „
One-eighth-rupees	·331 „	·155 „
British Dollars	...	·254 „

26. The total silver coinage of the Calcutta Mint during the year is computed to contain 4,122 Troy ounces of gold of the value of about £17,477 and of the Bombay Mint, 2,013 Troy ounces of the value of £8,535.

Pyx trials of silver coins.

27. The following statement gives a summary of the results of the pyx trials in the two mints :—

	Trials for weight.			Trials for fineness.

British Dollars	20	400	416·015	20	100	300	900·021	899·945

28. In pyx trials of rupees one coin was found in Calcutta to be above the legal remedy for weight. In Bombay in one trial only were single coins found to be outside remedy and the fresh pyx called for in that case disclosed no coin beyond legal remedy.

29. In October 1913 an alteration was made in the Calcutta Assay Office in the number of single coins taken for Assay in pyx trials and also in the number melted up, in order to bring the Calcutta system into line with that of the Bombay Assay Office.

30. The Gay Lussac volumetric system of silver assay as employed in the Royal Mint has been introduced in Calcutta as a subsidiary method to the gravimetric system ordinarily employed there. Though the latter has proved to be the most convenient and satisfactory for general use, the volumetric system has been found to be useful where prompt and confirmatory assays are required.

H. F. HOWARD,
Controller of Currency.

The 21st July 1914.

REPORT ON THE WORKING OF THE CALCUTTA MINT.

No. 1391, dated Calcutta, 1st June 1914.

TOTAL

8. There was no remittance of gold from Mint balances to England during the year under review.

SILVER.

9. Receipts.—The receipts of silver into the Mint consisted of silver purchased by the Secretary of State for India for rupee coinage and uncurrent silver coins from Treasuries for recoinage into new coin.

10. The value of the receipts in the case of the former amounted to standard tolas 4,52,35,845 for which a purchase price of ₹2,99,48,490 was adjusted in the Mint Accounts. The entire receipts consisted of bar silver.

11. In the case of the latter, the nominal value of the receipts amounted to ₹2,08,89,770 details of which are shown in the following table :—

Classification.	In thousands of Rupees.
Government Rupees and half rupees of 1835	5,38·3
Do. do. 1840 1st issue	12,49·0
Do. do. do. 2nd issue	41,10·8

Do. do. reduced	16·0
George V. 1911	1,61·4
Murshidabad, Furrakhabad, Benares & Patna Coins	31,32·8
Total	2,08,89·7

12. The Murshidabad rupees were received under orders of Government from the Nepal Durbar at Re. 1 per tola.

13. Coinage.—The silver coinage executed for the Government of India amounted to 8,91,31,763 pieces valued at ₹6,63,36,058 as compared with 10,48,58,423 pieces valued at ₹8,37,58,651 in the previous year. In addition to this 26,00,000 pieces valued at ₹4,00,000 were coined for the Ceylon Government, making an aggregate silver coinage of 9,17,31,763 pieces valued at ₹6,67,36,058.

14. Percentage of good coins.—The percentages of good coins obtained from the weight of metal operated on are furnished below :—

Rupees	886·57	60·2
Half Rupees	20·48	66·4
Quarter Rupees	38·46	67·0
Eighth Rupees	22·25	64·5
Fifty cents	1·59	63·6
Twenty-five cents	1·68	59·5
Ten cents	3·67	54·4

15. Pyx Trials.—The weight and fineness of the coins were as usual maintained at the proper standards as will be seen from the annexed report of the Assay Master on the year's work.

16. Silver Operative Losses.—I append the usual balance statement showing the nett operative loss sustained during the year on the coinage operations.

Opening balances	28,26,052	Issues		6,68,65,822
Receipts	6,63,56,197	Closing balances		22,59,366
		Operative losses	B. I. G. coins	56,813
			Ceylon Cents.	248
Total	6,91,82,249	Total		6,91,82,249

17. This gives a rate of 92·0 per lakh on a coinage of 665·39 lakhs of good coins coined in the case of British India Coinage and 61·9 per lakh on a coinage of 4 lakhs of good coins coined in the case of Cents Coinage.

18. A recovery of 1,095 tolas of standard silver was made in the Melting Department in the current financial year towards the work done during the year under review. This recovery reduced the above rate of loss to 90·4 per lakh. In addition to this, surplus silver amounting to standard tolas 1,870 was recovered during the year and credited to Government.

19. R5,579 worth of silver recovered and brought to account in the year under review represents the actual value of the silver which was estimated at 5,000 standard tolas, vide sub para. 14 of the previous report. The above amount is included in the figure R7,449 "other items" silver in statement No. 1 attached to this report.

Bronze and Copper.

20. The total Bronze Coinage executed for the Government of India in the year under report amounted to 14,96,82,090 pieces as compared with 14,65,29,134 pieces valued at R19,18,462 in the previous year resulting in an excess of 31,52,956 pieces valued at R1,66,977. In addition to this 30,00,000 of pieces of copper coins valued at R30,000 were coined for the Ceylon Government.

21. It was necessary to replenish the stock of new copper owing to the heavy coinage executed. The Mint therefore purchased maunds 16,515·25 valued at R6,44,264.

22. Purchases of tin were also necessary, the total quantity purchased amounted to maunds 818 valued at R86,536.

23. Operative Losses.—The Bronze operative losses written off the accounts amounted to maunds 136 as detailed below:—

Melting loss mds. 121 at ·425 per 100 mds. melted.
Coining loss „ 15 „ ·060 „ 100 „ of new coins coined.

24. The operative loss on the copper coinage amounted to mds. 5 and was met by the charges for coinage recovered from the Ceylon Government.

Miscellaneous.

25. The frontispiece to this report illustrates the various medals designed and struck during the year under review.

26. Special reference may be made to the two medals No. 1 for His Excellency the Viceroy of India and No. 2 for His Excellency the Governor of Bengal. The work in connection with both these medals was done entirely in the Mint. The reverse design for the latter was prepared by the Head Engraver of this Mint.

27. The miscellaneous work done during the year was confined to the striking of medals, etc., for the Army Department, Colleges, and other private institutions and kept the Die, Engraving, and Workshop Departments fully engaged.

28. In December 1913, the President of the Weights and Measures Committee referred to this Mint for an opinion as to the practical feasibility of altering the weight of the present rupee from 180 grains to 175 grains troy without diminishing the amount of fine silver contained in the present coin. A series of experiments with a view to produce a silver-copper alloy in the proportion of 165 silver and 10 copper were carried out with the result that the metal was not (1) sufficiently hard to warrant its use for coinage, (2) metallurgically adaptable to ease in minting, (3) conducive to facility in Chemical analysis. Additions of (a) aluminium and (b) nickel were experimented with. In the case of (a) a small proportion produced an alloy that could be minted but was softer than the present standard alloy of 11-12ths fine, while in the case of (b) the very small proportion of nickel that the silver took up also produced a softer metal. As a final test the Committee requested that alloy in the proportion of 165 silver, 5 copper and 5 zinc, might be tried. The metal of this mixture showed, however, clear indications during the minting operations of softness. Tests for hardness were also conducted independently of this Mint by means of a Brunnell's Scleroscope by the courtesy and kind assistance of the Superintendent of Local Manufactures and Government Test House, Alipore.

Plant and Machinery.

29. There were no additions or alterations of any importance to plant and machinery made during the year under review. The Electric Installation worked successfully throughout the year.

30. The following figures show the cost of working the Power Station during the financial year under report :—

	R
B. T. Units generated	7,44,004
Fuel, Establishment and Stores	38,000
Depreciation at 5 per cent. on plant and 3 per cent. on buildings, and provision for pensions	27,290
TOTAL	65,290
The cost per unit works out to be—	Annas.
Fuel, Establishment and Stores	·8172
Depreciation and interest	·5870
Total cost per unit	1·4042

The increased cost per unit as compared with the previous year's results is chiefly attributable to the fact that the contract price for Rubble Coal for the year under review was in excess of the price paid in 1912-13 by about 38 per cent.

The annual recoveries in payment for power and light used in the Mint residential quarters was R1,847.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

Revenue.

31. Charges levied.—The seigniorage on silver purchased for coinage amounted to R9,04,717. The revenue under this head of account was also augmented by R1,303 being the value of assay fees realised through the Assay Office. The amount of R377 credited to this account represented premelting fees realised from Government Departments.

32. Gain on Coinage Operations.—The assay benefit amounting to R21,230 represented the difference between the fineness of the silver as invoiced and the finenesses at which it was found necessary to operate the silver. The increased gain by overstandard value of uncurrent silver coins received for recoinage is attributable entirely to the receipt of the Murshidabad coins, etc., received for recoinage from the Nepal Durbar during the year. The total revenue under this head of account (vide Statement No. 1 appended to this report) amounted to R1,32,060.

33. Cash and Transfer Receipts.—The receipts amounted to R68,872 as against R79,975 for the year 1912-13. The amount of R12,316 "Miscellaneous" under Cash Receipts includes R11,989 paid by the Corporation of Calcutta as rebate of rents, rates and taxes referred to in paragraph 42 of the previous report.

Expenditure.

34. Loss on Coinage.—This amounted to R4,05,176 of which R57,061 representing operative losses are referred to in detail in paragraph 16 of this report. The increased loss on the withdrawal of old silver coins as compared with the previous year is due to the increased receipts, vide paragraph 11.

35. Copper used as alloy.—The value of copper used as alloy amounted to R48,316 and is more than that of the previous year by R2,627.

36. Salaries and Establishment.—The total debit at this head of account amounted to R3,71,597 and is less than the amount expended in 1912-13 by R12,071. The reduction in expenditure occurs both against fixed as well as temporary establishment. The compensation in lieu of private assay fees amounting to R2,040 appears in this report for the first time.

37. Local and English Stores.—The expenditure under these heads amounted to R2,02,965 as compared with R2,02,865 in the preceding year.

38. Contingent and Transfer charges.—These amounted to R83,391 and were in excess of last year's expenditure by R5,496.

39. Pro formâ Receipts and Charges.—The receipts amounted to R4,89,580 and represented a credit at R3-4-4 per thousand pieces of all denominations of new Bronze coins coined during the year. On the charge side the interest at 3½% on balances and value of capital account amounted to R3,30,210 as compared with R3,74,663 in the year 1912-13.

40. Balances sunk in the Mint.—The average silver bullion balance exclusive of silver on Currency Account amounted to R22,79,136. The minimum daily balance was R7,44,315 which occurred on 28th April 1913 and the maximum was R39,53,268 on 29th January 1914.

41. Capital Account.—The value at debit of this account at the close of the year was R65,05,117 as compared with R66,73,519 in the previous year.

COUNTERFEIT COINS.

42. The Assay Master reports as follows:—The total number of coins received for examination during the year was 34, of which 17 (all base castings) were from the District Magistrate, Jullundur, and 17 from the Mint.

43. Of the latter, one was genuine, one struck counterfeit, ten were counterfeit castings and five on which no opinion was expressed. The amount of silver present in the counterfeits ranged from 21·6 to 934·1 per mille.

44. The Mint, during the course of examination of uncurrent silver coins received from Treasuries, eliminated counterfeit R2,992, half Rupees 102, quarter Rupees 332, and one-eighth Rupees 430. These are detailed in Statement IV attached to this report.

OFFENCES AGAINST COINAGE.

45. The usual statement of offences against coinage appended to this report shows that the number of cases brought to trial was less than the previous year by 39.

46. It will be noticed that there is a considerable decline in the number of convictions relative to the number of cases brought to trial in the following provinces:—

Bengal, Punjab, Burma, and Rajputana Agency as compared with the previous year.

47. The ratio of the number of persons convicted to the number of persons brought to trial was 58·9 as compared with 57·1 on the figures of the previous year.

From—Lt.-Col. F. CUNYNGHAME HUGHES, I. A., Offg. Assay Master, Calcutta,
To—The Controller of Currency.

I have the honour to submit the following report on the working of the Assay Department, Calcutta, for the official year 1913-14.

3. Gold assays.—The total number of gold assays from all sources during the year amounted to 228, of which 42 were done for the Mint. From March 1913, I instituted a change in the system of gold assaying in the Assay Office to bring it into conformity with the system used in the Royal Mint, London, and elsewhere. Whereas formerly the basis of assays of gold was 12 grains, it is now ·5 gramme and the method of carrying out the assay is in accordance with the instructions laid down by Dr. Ross, Assayer of the Royal Mint.

4. Average fineness per mille of Silver meltings for coinage.

5. Gold in Silver coinage.—The average proportion of gold found by monthly parting assays in the silver pyx coins was :—

	Per mille.
For Rupees	0·133
„ ½ Rupees	0·517
„ ¼ Rupees	0·336
„ ⅛ Rupees	0·331
„ 50 Cents (Ceylon)	0·310
„ 25 Cents „	0·355
„ 10 Cents „	0·267

The coinage of the year was computed to contain 4,122 troy ounces of gold in value about £17,477.

6. Pyx trials of silver coins.—The following tables give the details of the pyx trials of silver coins for weight and fineness :—

7. From October 1913 I made, with the concurrence of the Mint Master, an alteration in the number of single coins taken for assay in pyx trials and the number melted up. This was done to bring our system into conformity with that of the Bombay Assay Office and also to reduce a certain amount of unnecessary work. Whereas formerly 10 coins were taken from each lakh of rupees and from each day's coinage of halves, quarters and eighths for single assay, 5 only are now taken as shown in the table below :—

Table showing coins taken for assay of pyx trials.

Denomination of coins.	Number assayed singly.	Number melted.	Remarks.
Rupees . . .	5 from each lakh . .	25	Remainders of single coins of each lot of 5 lakhs melted and assayed.
Halves . . .	5 from each day's coinage .	50	Remainders of single coins melted up once in each month and assayed.
Quarters . .	5 from each day's coinage .	100
Eighths . .	10 coins cut up and 5 assays made.	200

The results obtained under this method have been quite satisfactory.

8. The Gay-Lussac volumetric system of silver assay as employed in the Royal Mint, London, has been taken into regular use as a subsidiary to our ordinary gravimetric system and we have now a well arranged room for this purpose. Although I am still of opinion that the Indian method is most convenient and satisfactory for general use, the volumetric system has proved of great utility where confirmatory assays are required and when results are wanted in a short space of time.

9. During the last year an automatic shaker for bottles has been set up and works very efficiently. It produces more regular results than the old hand-shaking process and is a considerable saving in time and labour. Two new fume chambers have been installed, which are of great service in mitigating the nuisance of poisonous acid and other fumes in our laboratory.

13. The post of Assay Master was held by Lieutenant-Colonel F. Cunynghame Hughes, I.A., throughout the year.

The post of Deputy Assay Master was held by Capt. H. J. Wallis, I.A., from 12th November 1913 to 19th February 1914 and for the remaining portion of the year under report by Lieutenant-Colonel F. C. Hughes in addition to his own duties of Assay Master.

APPENDIX.

Experimental work as detailed below was carried out in the Assay Office laboratory during the last twelve months.

The first experiments were made with a view to determining accurately the composition, particularly the average silver and gold contents of rupees of different issues.

This work was carried out chiefly to assist the Mint Master in constructing alligation tables for standard meltings when different issues of uncurrent coins are used, the values previously taken not always proving satisfactory.

They are also of interest in indicating the varying amounts of gold and other constituents found in the different issues of rupees.

To estimate the silver contents 100 coins were taken in each case, laminated into thin straps, cut up into small pieces and thoroughly mixed. Twenty assays were made gravimetrically and 12 volumetrically. Half the original weight of the cut up pieces was melted and assayed gravimetrically and volumetrically, six assays being taken in each case. From the melted portions two samples from each were taken for the estimation of gold. Copper and lead were estimated from suitable quantities of the metal remaining over from these assays, both by the electrolytic method.

„ Edward VII and George V. .	916·2	0·14	81·8	1·4	0·46

The second lot experiments taken up were for the purpose of testing the effects of annealing and pickling on the fineness of rupee blanks and afterwards the amount of refining these blanks undergo on melting. Van Reimsdijk, Assayer of the Netherlands Mint, has clearly proved by numerous and exhaustive experiments made as far back as 1868 that coinage blanks take up oxygen in the form of copper oxide on annealing which is not all eliminated by the pickling process. This accounts for a fact well known and established that single coins will assay generally ·2 to ·3 per mille lower than the same coins melted up. In some cases the difference between the average fineness of a batch of single coins and melted ones from the same lakhs will amount to 1 per mille. On melting under charcoal the oxygen is again liberated by reduction of copper oxide. For the purpose of this experiment 100 unannealed rupee blanks were obtained from the Mint. These were assayed in the usual manner in batches of 10 by having their centres punched out. They were then returned to the Mint where they went through the usual process of annealing and pickling. They were then assayed again and the remainders of the blanks were melted up and further assays made. The results are given in the table below :—

Description.	Batches of ten blanks.										Mean of whole.
	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Unannealed blanks .	916·36	916·22	916·24	916·46	916·34	916·06	916·15	916·27	916·15	915·91	916·216
Annealed blanks .	916·38	916·49	916·51	916·60	916·53	916·32	916·35	916·40	916·50	916·19	916·427

The above results show that whereas the process of annealing and pickling results in a refinage of ·21 per mille, melting under charcoal produces a further refinage of about ·27 per mille, undoubtedly due to reduction of copper oxide.

8. Silver Operative Losses.—The silver operative losses for the year 1913-14, as detailed below, amounted to Rs. 65,709-13-0 ; all silver being valued at the uniform rate of rupee one per standard tola :—

	Rs.	A.	P.		Rs.	A.	P.
Opening balance .	7,89,001	4	10	Issues .	6,87,96,696	11	8

				B. I. G. Coin . .	62,551	13	0

This gives a rate of loss of Rs. 95·30 per lakh of tolas coined, or if distributed according to the various coinages, Rs. 95·88 per lakh on British India Government coin, Rs. 85·00 per lakh on Dollars and Rs. 89·60 per lakh on Cents.

3,71,56,031 tolas and 87,47,334 tolas of bar silver were put into alligation at ·7 and ·8, respectively, higher than the invoiced fineness. Had all the bar silver been put into alligation at half a millieme or ·5 higher than the invoiced fineness as is customary, the rate of loss for British India Government coins would have been reduced to Rs. 79·07 per lakh and the combined loss to Rs. 79·39 per lakh, which latter figures are more correct for comparison.

NICKEL.

9. The number of nickel one-anna pieces coined during the year was 46,320,000 of the value of Rs. 28,95,000 being more by Rs. 4,09,000 than that of the previous year.

The total operative loss written off the books during the year amounted to 35¼ maunds, giving a percentage of ·454 per 100 maunds of metal rolled, which is higher than last year as no recoveries were made during the early portion of the year.

BRONZE.

10. No bronze coinage was carried out during the year.

11. Miscellaneous Work :—

(a) This consisted of the recurring supply of dies, medals, etc., to various public institutions, the manufacture and adjustment of scales and weights, and miscellaneous supplies and repairs undertaken for Government Departments and the public, the profit made being Rs. 502. (i) 582 coins (castings) received from the Bombay, Baroda and Central India, Rajputana-Malwa and Jodhpur-Bikaner Railways and 12 coins (10 castings and 2 struck) from other sources were retained as exceptionally well executed specimens.

(ii) 87 coins (81 castings and 6 struck) were sufficiently good to deceive the public as regard colour and finish.

(iii) The remaining 2,552 (2,523 castings and 29 struck) were in the majority of cases inferior specimens of low touch silver or base metal and noticeably false.

(e) 2 palpable cast counterfeit sovereigns were received during the year in a counterfeit coining case from the Treasury Officer, Poona.

GENERAL.

21. During the year a post of Artist Engraver and Die Sinker to the Mint was sanctioned by the Secretary of State and Mr. G. Lemonnier joined the appointment on the 14th November 1913. Previously, owing to the rough and unfinished nature of the engraving work which could be performed in the Bombay Mint, it was necessary for the Mint to depend entirely on London or Calcutta for designs and also for matrices and punches.

22. The twelve new automaton weighing machines expected from Europe failed to arrive but it is hoped that they will be received early next year.

23. One of the batteries of the two annealing furnaces mentioned in last year's report was duly converted into a battery of three furnaces with satisfactory results and the work of converting the second battery is in hand. The copper barrels containing the annealed blanks are now revolved both in the pickling solution and clean water trough by engine power, superseding the old system of manual labour.

24. Complaints were received during the year from some of the residents in the new buildings recently erected near the Mint boundaries in respect of the fumes emanating from some of the cupellation furnaces in use in the Mint, and arrangements are being made to conduct all such fumes into one of the taller chimney shafts attached to the Melting Department.

25. Complaints were also received from the Health Officer of the Bombay Municipality that mosquitoes were breeding in the large Mint tank which supplies all the water necessary for the Mint engines. The tank was accordingly cleared of all vegetation as far as possible and re-stocked with a special variety of fish recommended by the Bombay Natural History Society. It was also explained to the Health Officer that the tank would be filled in as soon as the existing Mint engines were replaced by electric power and that the whole question of such replacement was under the consideration of the Government of India.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations, and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published early in September next by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and will be procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There will be two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited and considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

The following gracious message from His Majesty the King-Emperor to the British and Indian Troops arriving in Europe from India, is published for general information :—

Message to British Troops.

Officers, non-commissioned officers and men, you have been recalled from service in India, together with your comrades from that country, to fight for the safety and honour of my Empire.

Belgium, whose country we are pledged to defend, has been devastated and France has been invaded by the same powerful foe.

I have implicit confidence in you, my soldiers. Duty is your watchword, and I know your duty will be nobly done.

I shall follow your every movement with deepest interest, and mark with eager satisfaction your daily progress; indeed your welfare will never be absent from my thoughts.

I pray God to bless you and guard you and bring you back victorious.

Message to Indian Troops.

Officers, non-commissioned officers and men, I look to all my Indian soldiers to uphold the izzat of the British Raj against an aggressive and relentless enemy.

I know with what readiness my brave and loyal soldiers are prepared to fulfil this sacred trust on the field of battle shoulder to shoulder with their comrades from all parts of the Empire.

Rest assured that you will always be in my thoughts and prayers.

I bid you go forward to add fresh lustre to the glorious achievements and noble traditions of courage and chivalry of my Indian Army whose honour and fame are in your hands.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations, and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published early in September next by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and will be procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There will be two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited and considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

Tea	237,711	501,992	+19·5	+34·2

It will be seen from the above table that there was an increase in the imports of rice (28·8 per cent.), Tea (19·5 per cent.), and Cotton raw (10·8 per cent.), while there was a decrease in the case of wheat (62 per cent.), gram and pulse (53·8 per cent.), jute (43·4 per cent.), linseed 39·7 per cent.), and rape and mustard seed (36·5 per cent.). The increase in the imports of cotton raw may be attributed to larger shipments, but the fall in the case of wheat is due principally to the absence of demand for shipment.

* Under the orders of the Government of India, in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, dated the 26th July 1889.

1. (1) The following persons shall be deemed to be natural-born British subjects, namely :—

(a) any person born within His Majesty's dominions and allegiance ; and

PART II.

No. 1251-F. E.

Simla, the 30th September, 1914.

RESOLUTION.—By the Government of India, Finance Department.

In supersession of the Resolution in this Department, No. 281-F. E., dated the 17th January 1911, the following revised rules are prescribed for the examination of candidates in India for admission to the General List of the Indian Finance Department:—

I.—A register of candidates will be kept from which not less than three candidates for each vacancy will be nominated by the Government of India from time to time as vacancies are expected. Only candidates so nominated will be entitled to compete.

II.—Names will ordinarily be entered in the register only on the recommendation of a Local Government.

III.—On or before the 1st of May in each year Local Governments will send to the Government of India the names of any persons whom they desire to recommend for entry in the register. The list should be accompanied by a statement containing in respect of each such person—

(1) A duly verified statement of age.

(2) Copies of certificates of character and education.

(3) A statement, duly supported, showing the mathematical reading which the candidate has done, and the examinations involving mathematics which he has passed.

(4) Information regarding any services that may have been rendered to the State by his parents or family.

Before being recommended by a Local Government, each applicant must give satisfactory proof that he is a native of India within the meaning of the Statute 33 Vict., cap. 3, section 6*.

* The words "Native of India" shall include any person born and domiciled within the dominions of His Majesty in India of parents habitually resident in India and not established there for temporary purposes only.

IV.—The names of persons not possessed of high educational qualifications will not be registered. Clear and distinct hand-writing, a business familiarity with the English language, a good knowledge of arithmetic and an elementary knowledge of algebra are indispensable.

V.—The Government of India reserve an absolute discretion not only in regard to the selection of persons to be entered on the register of candidates but also as to the nomination of candidates to compete at the examination. It must be clearly understood that registration of a candidate's name does not in any way imply that he will be nominated for admission to examination.

VI.—The name of a registered candidate will be struck off the register when he has failed in two examinations. It will also be liable to be struck off if he has been twice nominated and has failed to appear at the examination on one or both occasions.

VII.—A candidate nominated for admission to one examination will not be admitted to a later examination unless again nominated.

VIII.—The age of a candidate on the first day of the month in which the examination is held must not be less than twenty-two and not more than twenty-five years. A candidate who has been continuously in Government employ since before the age of 25 may, however, at the discretion of the Government of India, be allowed to compete at the examination up to the age of 30, provided that he is satisfactorily recommended by the Head of his Department.

IX.—A nominated candidate before appearing at the examination must produce a certificate in the annexed form by a Commissioned Medical Officer or by a Medical Officer in charge of a Civil Station:

CERTIFICATE.

I do hereby certify that I have examined A. B., a candidate for employment in the Indian Finance Department, and that I cannot discover that he has any disease, constitutional affection or bodily infirmity unfitting him, or likely to unfit him, for the public service in any part of India.

X.—Such candidate must also, before appearing for examination, produce a certificate of age from the officer in charge of the district in which his family reside, or, if they reside in a Presidency town or a Native State, from the Presidency Magistrate or Political Agent, respectively. To obtain this certificate the date and place of the candidate's birth must be proved before the district officer, Presidency Magistrate or Political Agent, as the case may be, by documentary evidence, supplemented, where this is not conclusive proof by statements of relatives and others on oath or solemn affirmation.

XI.—Nominated candidates will be examined in the subjects described in the schedule attached to this Resolution. No candidate will be admitted to the Department who fails to show a competent knowledge of the compulsory subjects, and the Government reserve the right of declining to make any appointment when no candidate reaches a high standard of proficiency.

XII.—The examination will be mainly by written questions and answers. The questions will be prepared, and the examination conducted, in such manner as the Governor General in Council from time to time directs.

XIII.—Some months before an examination is to be held, its date and place, and the conditions of examination, will be notified in the Gazette of India, and the number of vacancies which the Government expect to fill on the results of the examination will at the same time be stated.

THE INDIAN CIVIL SERVICE FAMILY PENSION REGULATIONS

The following regulations are designed to secure suitable provision for the wi and orphans of members of the Covenanted Indian Civil Service not being subscribe the Bengal, Madras, or Bombay Civil Funds:—

The Secretary of State for India in Council reserves to himself the absolute rig regulate from time to time the contributions to be required from Civil Servants under regulations and to make any alterations in the regulations themselves that may ap to him equitable: provided always that the scale of pensions fixed thereby shall not reduced in the case of actual incumbents. The Secretary of State in Council will en deavour to adjust the contributions to be levied from members exactly, so that they shall neither be too large nor too small to supply the pensions provided by these regulations. But if it should appear on experience that they have been fixed too low, the Government will not require any supplementary retrospective payments; and if they are found to have been fixed too high, no claim to refund will be admitted.

No insurance fund is established by these regulations. The contributions will be credited and the pensions charged directly to Indian revenues as civil receipts and charges. But in order to adjust the rates of contribution from time to time to what is necessary to supply the pensions provided by these regulations and no more, a separate pro forma account will be kept of all contributions levied and all payments made under these regulations and of the interest which would have been allowed upon such contributions if a mutual insurance fund had actually been established.

In accordance with the principle announced in this notification that the Government does not intend that the pensions provided by these regulations shall bring any charge on Indian revenues in excess of the amount specially sanctioned in aid of the pensions and for the cost of management, the rate of interest to be allowed in this pro forma account will be the rate which may be fixed from time to time by the Secretary of State in Council upon a consideration of the market rates of the day. Conversion of sterling into rupees and of rupees into sterling in transactions under these regulations and in the pro forma account shall be made at the rate of fifteen rupees to the pound sterling.

All needfull statistics of ages, births, marriages, and deaths will be carefully registered, and these statistics, with the pro forma accounts, will be submitted at such periods as may be determined by the Secretary of State in Council to such actuary or actuaries as he may select, with instructions to investigate and ascertain whether the rates of contribution are such as will, at the rate of interest then to be reconsidered and refixed, supply the pensions payable under these regulations and no more. The expense of such actuarial enquiries and reports shall be borne by the State.

Upon the report of the actuary or actuaries the Secretary of State in Council will order any necessary alterations in the rates of contribution.

The report of the actuary or actuaries, with the orders of the Secretary of State in Council thereupon, shall be published in the Gazette of India and no alteration ordered in the rates of contribution will take effect before the beginning of the month following the date of such publication. No retrospective adjustments will be made.

The benefits provided at the cost of the State are shown in the regulations; but should it at any time appear from a valuation that the aggregate liabilities on account of those benefits, when the pension list shall have reached a normal state, will exceed 35,000*l.* per annum, they will be subject to such reduction as may be necessary to restrict the assistance to 35,000*l.* per annum, but the reduction shall in no case affect the benefits payable to incumbent annuitants.

Reports of Marriages, Births and Deaths.

12. A civil servant who is married at the date of his admission into the service must report the fact of his marriage on his arrival in India, and the names and dates of birth of his children, if any have been born to him. A member in the service must report his marriage, or the birth of a child born in wedlock, or the death of his wife or child, within one month of the occurrence. These reports must be made in accordance with the instructions given in the Appendix, page 15.

13. A member in the service must report the birth of every child born alive ; but if a child die before it is 30 days old, no payment in respect to it will be required. If the report of birth be not made within one month of the occurrence a fine of 12*s.* will be imposed, and an additional 2*s.* will be charged for each succeeding month's delay. After 12 months' delay medical evidence as to the state of the member's health must be furnished in order that it may be determined whether and, if so, on what terms, liability for orphan's pension shall be accepted.

14. If the report of a marriage be not made within one month of the occurrence, the donation payable will be increased 2½ per cent., and interest thereon charged from the date of marriage. After six months' delay the donation will be increased 5 per cent, and interest charged as above. After 12 months' delay, medical evidence* as to the state of the member's health must be furnished in order that it may be determined whether and, if so, on what terms, liability for widow's pension shall be accepted.

15. In the event of the report of a marriage or the birth of a child not being made by a member during his lifetime, in accordance with the rules, the widow or child will not be entitled to any benefits.

Posthumous Child.

16. Provided the birth of a posthumous child is reported within one month of occurrence and the contribution required by the regulations has been or is being paid the father's youngest child, if any, living at the time of his death, a pension will be granted to the child without any payment if the child is born of a marriage contracted while father was in the service. If, however, the child is born of a marriage contracted after the father's retirement from the service pension will only be granted if, in addition, a certificate of health required under Article 23 had been furnished by the father himself the time of his marriage or subsequently, and the donation prescribed in Table VI paid though the father were alive at the date of the child's birth.

Duration of Pensions.

17. If a widow re-marry she will retain half her pension during coverture, but if she again become a widow she will be entitled to revert to full pension as widow of her first husband, or, if her last husband have been a contributor, to receive a pension at her option as his widow. A widow can only receive one pension. Reduction to the half rate takes effect from the commencement of the quarter following that in which the re-marriage occurred ; the full pension is restored from the day following that on which the pensioner again becomes a widow.

18. The pension of a male orphan is payable until he attains the age of 24 years unless he was admitted to pension with effect from a date prior to 1st April 1914 in which case his pension is payable until he attains the age of 21 years only.

19. The Secretary of State for India in Council will be prepared to consider an application for the commutation of a portion of the pension of a son with a view to the proceeds being applied to his advancement in life, provided that he has attained the age of 16.

Each case will be decided on its merits.

When the pension is payable out of India an application should be addressed to the Director of Funds, India Office—by the mother or guardian, until the pensioner attains the age of 21, and thereafter by the pensioner himself.

* See Form (D) in Appendix, page 1654.

When the pension is being drawn in India from a Government Treasury there it will rest with the Government of India to deal with the application which should be addressed to the Comptroller, India Treasuries, Calcutta.

20. The pension of a female orphan continues until her marriage, and then ceases absolutely. It does not revive on widowhood.

Good Conduct.

21. The pensions provided under these regulations shall in all cases be held during good behaviour only, and will be withheld if any pensioner is found to be leading an immoral life, or on proof of any gross misconduct. In any such case the order of the Secretary of State for India in Council, or, when the pension is being drawn in India from a Government Treasury there, the order of the Government of India shall be final and conclusive.

Alienation of Pension.

22. A pension paid under these regulations may not be transferred or assigned, or in any way alienated from the pensioner to whom or for whose benefit it is payable.

Retired Members.

23. A member who marries after he has retired from the service on an annuity may, if he think fit, provide pension under these regulations for his widow or for his children resulting from such marriage or for both on the following conditions:—

(1) That reports of occurrences are made in accordance with the requirements of Articles 12 and 13, and subject to Articles 14 and 15, as in the case of members in the service.

(2) That a certificate of health, signed by two qualified medical practitioners showing that he is free from any bodily complaint of a dangerous tendency, and that he is believed to be a good average life* is furnished either—

(a) with the report of the marriage if he wishes to provide pension for his widow and for children resulting from the marriage, or for his widow only, or—

(b) with the report of the birth of the first child resulting from the marriage if he wishes to provide pension for his children only.

(3) That the donations on marriage (see Tables IV and V), or on the births of children (see Table VI) are paid (see Articles 9 and 11, and, as regards posthumous children, Article 16).

4. An annuitant may withdraw his name from the list of members; but he will not be entitled to any refund of his payments under these regulations.

Members who resign the Service before becoming entitled to an Annuity.

25. A member who resigns the Service before becoming entitled to an annuity, will cease, ipso facto, to be a contributor. He will have no claim to any refund, and his family will not be entitled to any pensions under these regulations.

Dismissed Members.

26. A subscriber who is dismissed the service by competent authority will cease, ipso facto, to be a contributor. He will have no claim to any refund, and his family will not be entitled to any pensions under these regulations.

Declarations.

27. Declarations as to continued widowhood and the survival of children must be furnished quarterly to the Accountant General, India Office, or to the proper officer in India.

APPENDIX.

Reports and applications under these Regulations should be made:—

1. To the Comptroller, India Treasuries, Calcutta, when the member is drawing pay in India or in a Colony to which he has gone direct from India.

2. To the Director of Funds, India Office, Whitehall, London, S.W., if the member is drawing his pay in England or in a Colony to which he has gone direct from England.

RESULT OF THE MEASURES ADOPTED IN THE DIFFERENT PROVINCES FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF WILD ANIMALS AND VENOMOUS SNAKES DURING THE YEAR 1913.

NOS. 1794-1809.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

PUBLIC.

Simla, the 3rd October 1914.

RESOLUTION.

The reports received from the various local Governments and Administrations show that 1,680 persons were killed by wild animals in British India during the year 1913, a figure which constitutes a remarkable diminution from the number reported in each of the four preceding years, the casualties from this cause in 1912 numbering 2,066. The largest number of victims was reported from Bihar and Orissa which claims nearly one-third of the total for all India. In 1912 the same province claimed nearly 40 per cent. and inasmuch as it bulks so largely in the total the variations in other provinces are of comparatively minor effect in comparison with the influence exercised on the consolidated figures by such a fall as occurred in this one Province for example in the year under review, when the mortality fell to 546 as against 807 in 1912. The other provinces generally exhibit decreases, the most marked being in Bengal, but in Madras the number of deaths rose from 322 to 379 and there were trivial increases in the Punjab and the Central Provinces and Berar. The North-West Frontier Province which showed a blank return in the two preceding years reports two victims in 1913.

2. Tigers were, as usual, the most destructive beasts, though the total number of persons killed by them decreased from 885 in 1912 to 641 in 1913. The decrease is shared by all provinces except Madras, where 173 human beings were killed by tigers as compared with 164 in the preceding year. The highest mortality occurred in Bihar and Orissa, which with 251 deaths shows, however, a satisfactory improvement over the heavy casualties (396) which took place in the preceding year. The depredations of two man-eaters in Sambalpur caused considerable havoc. In the United Provinces, where the figures have fallen from 71 to 30, a noticeable decrease from 20 to nil occurred in the Almora district, while the destruction of the man-eater which was responsible for no less than 41 deaths in the Naini Tal district in 1912 had a marked effect. To tigers were attributed 84 deaths in Bengal, 31 in Burma, 36 in the Central Provinces and Berar (where reports show a steady decrease in the ravages caused by this beast), and 33 in Assam. Of other animals leopards caused 250 deaths against 261 in 1912. The victims to bears increased from 88 to 104, but the number killed by wolves declined from 255 to 152. Elephants were responsible for 62 deaths, or nine more than in the preceding year, and hyenas for 12. Under the unclassified head "other animals" 459 deaths were reported against 498 in 1912.

3. There was a slight increase in the mortality amongst human beings caused by snake bite, the figures reported being 21,773 against 21,461 in 1912. As in that year Bihar and Orissa with 5,640 deaths, the United Provinces with 5,166 and Bengal with 4,495 were the provinces which suffered most severely. As compared with the year 1912, the figures in these provinces do not show material variations, but while in the first two provinces there was a decrease, the third province shows a small increase. Decreases are noticed in the North-West Frontier Province and Burma, and, as in 1912, Coorg returned only one death. In Bombay the introduction of special remedial measures are being considered for the extermination of snakes in the Ratnagiri district which has an unenviable notoriety in the Presidency in this respect. Sir Lauder Brunton's lancets are reported to have effected a fair number of cures in cases in which they were used, but as on previous occasions the information furnished in these reports does not justify any definite conclusions as to the efficacy of this method of treatment.

4. The total number of cattle reported to have been killed by wild animals was 94,290, a slight decrease from the figures for 1912. Bihar and Orissa heads the list with 16,942 casualties, while Assam reports no fewer than 16,732 deaths. In the latter province the previous year's figure was exceeded by about 2,000, but it is stated that this increase was probably due to more accurate reporting rather than to any actual variation in the number of deaths. Leopards were, as usual, responsible for the largest number of victims, and nearly half the total number of deaths reported was attributed to this animal. More than 30,500 cattle were killed by tigers and about 9,300 by wolves. The number of deaths among cattle attributed to snake bite was returned at 10,637 as compared with 10,301 in the preceding year.

5. The number of wild animals destroyed during the year was 24,631, which constitutes a trifling excess of 19 over the figure recorded for 1912. Included in this total were 1,374 tigers, 6,638 leopards, 2,922 bears and 3,867 wolves. A sum of Rs. 1,90,307 was paid as rewards for the destruction of wild animals, being nearly Rs. 7,000 more than in the previous year. There was a large decrease in the number of snakes destroyed, the figures for 1912 and 1913 being 1,14,229 and 90,172 respectively. This variation was largely due to the fall of over 29,000 in Burma, where with a population opposed to the taking of life in any form it is particularly difficult to adjust a scale of rewards which will induce the people to kill even venomous snakes, and which will yet avoid the danger of snakes being bred for the purpose of claiming rewards. The total amount disbursed throughout India in rewards for killing snakes was Rs. 7,421 in 1912 and Rs. 2,802 in 1913.

6. Under the Indian Arms Act of 1878, 25,626 licenses were issued in forms XVI, XVII and XVIII during the year as compared with 23,581 issued in 1912. The total number of licenses in force was 1,82,417 against 1,82,760 in the previous year.

ORDER:—Ordered that a copy of this resolution (and annexure) be forwarded to local Governments and Administrations,* and that it be published in the supplement to the Gazette of India for general information; also that a copy be forwarded to the Director-General, Commercial Intelligence.

*Including the Chief Commissioners of the North-West Frontier Province and Ajmer-Merwara and the Resident in Mysore.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 8th October 1914, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. An area of low pressure was shown on the 2nd over the Andaman Sea, and developed into a storm which moved northwards and crossed the coast near Chittagong on the 6th. It gave a burst of heavy rain over the whole of Burma and a few heavy falls in the southern half of northeast India. With the disappearance of the storm rainfall almost ceased in Burma, but humid winds from the Bay entered northeast India and on the 7th gave widespread rain in Bengal and south Assam.

A disturbance of the winter type occasioned light precipitation in the western Himalayas and the plains of the Punjab on the 7th.

2. Burma.—Rainfall was nearly general excluding the northern districts on the 3rd, and excluding Tenasserim from the 4th to the 6th.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Rainfall occurred chiefly during the last three days of the week, and was most widespread in Assam and Bengal on the 7th.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Only a few scattered falls of rain occurred; they were most numerous in the east of the Central Provinces on the 1st, and in the northwest of the United Provinces on the 7th.

Northwest India.—The disturbance from the west gave some light falls of rain in the Punjab and Kashmir on the 7th.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 3rd October 1914.

Burma.—Light to moderate rain was general over the whole of Burma. Replanting of flooded areas in Lower Burma and agricultural operations for winter rice and miscellaneous crops in Upper Burma are proceeding. Standing crops are doing well. Agricultural stock is healthy. The price of unhusked rice continues to be much below normal.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable with continuation of moderate rain which has improved the condition of standing crops. Transplantation of winter rice and harvesting of autumn rice and jute have practically finished. The outturn of autumn rice is fair and the prospects of winter rice, cotton and tea are fair to good. The average price of common rice has risen slightly in Sylhet. Cattle disease is reported from three districts.

Bengal.—During the week under report light showers fell generally throughout the Province. More rain is wanted for winter rice. Harvesting of jute is nearly finished. Preparation of lands for spring crops has commenced Weeding of winter rice is in progress and prospects are good so far. Injury by insect pests is reported from Midnapore. Cattle disease is reported from nine districts. The average price of common rice for the Province has a slight tendency to rise as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—During the week under report there was practically no rain except for a few scattered showers in parts of the Orissa and Bhagalpur divisions. Harvesting of jute and other autumn crops is nearing completion. More rain is wanted for steeping of jute in Purnea. Preparation of lands for spring sowings has commenced in some districts. Winter paddy is doing well but more rain is required for the crops in most districts of Bihar and Chota Nagpur. Some damage to paddy by insect pests is reported from Balasore. The average price of common rice has remained almost stationary as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from fourteen districts. Agricultural prospects in the Feudatory States of Orissa are on the whole good.

United Provinces.—The week was practically rainless and more rain is still needed for late rice in the Allahabad, Gonda and south eastern districts. Floods have damaged crops in parts of the western submontane, Upper and Central Doab and the North Central Districts and locusts and insects have injured crops in parts of the Agra, Mainpuri, Badaun and Ballia districts. NOTIFICATION.

No. 684-W.

Simla, the 15th October, 1914.

In continuation of the Notification by the Government of India in the Foreign and Political Department, No. 503-W., dated the 22nd September 1914, the following paper having been presented to Parliament by His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs is published for general information:—

DESPATCH FROM HIS MAJESTY'S AMBASSADOR AT VIENNA RESPECTING THE RUPTURE OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT.

Sir M. de Bunsen to Sir Edward Grey.

SIR,

THE rapidity of the march of events during the days which led up to the outbreak of the European war made it difficult, at the time, to do more than record their progress by telegraph. I propose now to add a few comments.

The delivery at Belgrade on the 23rd July of the Austrian note to Servia was preceded by a period of absolute silence at the Ballplatz. Except Herr von Tchirsky, who must have been aware of the tenour, if not of the actual words of the note, none of my colleagues were allowed to see through the veil. On the 22nd and 23rd July, M. Dumaine, French Ambassador, had long interviews with Baron Macchio, one of the Under-Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, by whom he was left under the impression that the words of warning he had been instructed to speak to the Austro-Hungarian Government had not been unavailing, and that the note which was being drawn up would be found to contain nothing with which a self-respecting State need hesitate to comply. At the second of these interviews he was not even informed that the note was at that very moment being presented at Belgrade, or that it would be published in Vienna on the following morning. Count Forgach, the other Under-Secretary of State, had indeed been good enough to confide to me on the same day the true character of the note, and the fact of its presentation about the time we were speaking.

So little had the Russian Ambassador been made aware of what was preparing that he actually left Vienna on a fortnight's leave of absence about the 20th July. He had only been absent a few days when events compelled him to return. It might have been supposed that Duc Avarna, Ambassador of the allied Italian Kingdom, which was bound to be so closely affected by fresh complications in the Balkans, would have been taken fully into the confidence of Count Berchtold during this critical time. In point of fact his Excellency was left completely in the dark. As for myself, no indication was given me by Count Berchtold of the impending storm, and it was from a private source that I received on the 15th July the forecast of what was about to happen which I telegraphed to you the following day. It is true that during all this time the "Neue Freie Presse" and other leading Viennese newspapers were using language which pointed unmistakably to war with Servia. The official "Fremdenblatt," however, was more cautious, and till the note was published, the prevailing opinion among my colleagues was that Austria would shrink from courses calculated to involve her in grave European complications.

On the 24th July the note was published in the newspapers. By common consent it was at once styled an ultimatum. Its integral acceptance by Servia was neither expected nor desired, and when, on the following afternoon, it was at first rumoured in Vienna that it had been unconditionally accepted, there was a moment of keen disappointment. The mistake was quickly corrected, and as soon as it was known later in the evening that the Servian reply had been rejected and that Baron Giesl had broken off relations at Belgrade, Vienna burst into a frenzy of delight, vast crowds parading the streets and singing patriotic songs till the small hours of the morning.

The demonstrations were perfectly orderly, consisting for the most part of organised processions through the principal streets ending up at the Ministry of War. One or two attempts to make hostile manifestations against the Russian Embassy were frustrated by the strong guard of police which held the approaches to the principal embassies during those days. The demeanour of the people at Vienna, and, as I was informed, in many other principal cities of the Monarchy, showed plainly the popularity of the idea of war with Servia, and there can be no doubt that the small body of Austrian and Hungarian statesmen by whom this momentous step was adopted gauged rightly the sense, and it may even be said the determination, of the people, except presumably in portions of the provinces inhabited by the Slav races. There had been much disappointment in many quarters at the avoidance of war with Servia during the annexation crisis in 1908 and again in connection with the recent Balkan war. Count Berchtold's peace policy had met with little sympathy in the Delegation. Now the flood-gates were opened, and the entire people and press clamoured impatiently for immediate and condign punishment of the hated Servian race. The country certainly believed that it had before it only the alternative of subduing Servia or of submitting sooner or later to mutilation at her hands. But a peaceful solution should first have been attempted. Few seemed to reflect that the forcible intervention of a Great Power in the Balkans must inevitably call other Great Powers into the field. So just was the cause of Austria held to be, that it seemed to her people inconceivable that any country should place itself in her path, or that questions of mere policy or prestige should be regarded anywhere as superseding the necessity which had arisen to exact summary vengeance for the crime of Serajevo. The conviction had been expressed to me by the German Ambassador on the 24th July that Russia would stand aside. This feeling, which was also held at the Ballplatz, influenced no doubt the course of events, and it is deplorable that no effort should have been made to secure by means of diplomatic negotiations the acquiescence of Russia and Europe as a whole in some peaceful compromise of the Servian question by which Austrian fears of Servian aggression and intrigue might have been removed for the future. Instead of adopting this course the Austro-Hungarian Government resolved upon war. The inevitable consequence ensued. Russia replied to a partial Austrian mobilisation and declaration of war against Servia by a partial Russian mobilisation against Austria. Austria met this move by completing her own mobilisation, and Russia again responded with results which have passed into history. The fate of the proposals put forward by His Majesty's Government for the preservation of peace is recorded in the White Paper on the European Crisis. On the 28th July I saw Count Berchtold and urged as strongly as I could that the scheme of mediation mentioned in your speech in the House of Commons on the previous day should be accepted as offering an honourable and peaceful settlement of the question at issue. His Excellency himself read to me a telegraphic report of the speech, but added that matters had gone too far; Austria was that day declaring war on Servia, and she could never accept the conference which you had suggested should take place between the less interested Powers on the basis of the Servian reply. This was a matter which must be settled directly between the two parties immediately concerned. I said His Majesty's Government would hear with regret that hostilities could not be arrested, as you feared they would lead to European complications. I disclaimed any British lack of sympathy with Austria in the matter of her legitimate grievances against Servia, and pointed out that, whereas Austria seemed to be making these the starting point of her policy, His Majesty's Government were bound to look at the question primarily from the point of view of the maintenance of the peace of Europe. In this way the two countries might easily drift apart.

His Excellency said that he too was keeping the European aspect of the question in sight. He thought, however, that Russia would have no right to intervene after receiving his assurance that Austria sought no territorial aggrandisement. His Excellency remarked to me in the course of his conversation that, though he had been glad to co-operate towards bringing about the settlement which had resulted from the ambassadorial conferences in London during the Balkan crisis, he had never had much belief in the permanency of that settlement, which was necessarily of a highly artificial character, inasmuch as the interests which it sought to harmonise were in themselves profoundly divergent. His Excellency maintained a most friendly demeanour throughout the interview, but left no doubt in my mind as to the determination of the Austro-Hungarian Government to proceed with the invasion of Servia.

The German Government claim to have persevered to the end in the endeavour to support at Vienna your successive proposals in the interest of peace. Herr von Tchirsky abstained from inviting my co-operation or that of the French and Russian Ambassadors in carrying out his instructions to that effect, and I had no means of knowing what response he was receiving from the Austro-Hungarian Government. I was, however, kept fully informed by M. Schebeko, the Russian Ambassador, of his own direct negotiations with Count Berchtold. M. Schebeko endeavoured on the 28th July to persuade the Austro-Hungarian Government to furnish Count Szapary with full powers to continue at St. Petersburgh the hopeful conversations which had there been taking place between the latter and M. Sazonof. Count Berchtold refused at the time, but two days later (30th July), though in the meantime Russia had partially mobilised against Austria, he received M. Schebeko again, in a perfectly friendly manner, and gave his consent to the continuance of the conversations at St. Petersburgh. From now onwards the tension between Russia and Germany was much greater than between Russia and Austria. As between the latter an arrangement seemed almost in sight, and on the 1st August I was informed by M. Schebeko that Count Szapary had at last conceded the main point at issue by announcing to M. Sazonof that Austria would consent to submit to mediation the point-in the note to Servia which seemed incompatible with the maintenance of Servian independence. M. Sazonof, M. Schebeko added, had accepted this proposal on condition that Austria would refrain from the actual invasion of Servia. Austria, in fact, had finally yielded, and that she herself had at this point good hopes of a peaceful issue is shown by the communication made to you on the 1st August by Count Mensdorff, to the effect that Austria had neither "banged the door" on compromise nor cut off the conversations. M. Schebeko to the end was working hard for peace. He was holding the most conciliatory language to Count Berchtold, and he informed me that the latter, as well as Count Forgach, had responded in the same spirit. Certainly it was too much for Russia to expect that Austria would hold back her armies, but this matter could probably have been settled by negotiation, and M. Schebeko repeatedly told me he was prepared to accept any reasonable compromise.

Unfortunately these conversations at St. Petersburgh and Vienna were cut short by the transfer of the dispute to the more dangerous ground of a direct conflict between Germany and Russia. Germany intervened on the 31st July by means of her double ultimatums to St. Petersburgh and Paris. The ultimatums were of a kind to which only one answer is possible, and Germany declared war on Russia on the 1st August, and on France on the 3rd August. A few days delay might in all probability have saved Europe from one of the greatest calamities in history.

Russia still abstained from attacking Austria, and M. Schebeko had been instructed to remain at his post till war should actually be declared against her by the Austro-Hungarian Government. This only happened on the 6th August when Count Berchtold informed the foreign missions at Vienna that "the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at St. Petersburgh had been instructed to notify the Russian Government that, in view of the menacing attitude of Russia in the Austro-Servian conflict and the fact that Russia had commenced hostilities against Germany, Austria-Hungary considered herself also at war with Russia."

M. Schebeko left quietly in a special train provided by the Austro-Hungarian Government on the 7th September. He had urgently requested to be conveyed to the Roumanian frontier, so that he might be able to proceed to his own country, but was taken instead to the Swiss frontier, and ten days later I found him at Berne.

M. Dumaine, French Ambassador, stayed on till the 12th August. On the previous day he had been instructed to demand his passport on the ground that Austrian troops were being employed against France. This point was not fully cleared up when I left Vienna. On the 9th August, M Dumaine had received from Count Berchtold the categorical declaration that no Austrian troops were being moved to Alsace. The next day this statement was supplemented by a further one, in writing, giving Count Berchtold's assurance that not only had no Austrian troops been moved actually to the French frontier, but that none were moving from Austria in a westerly direction into Germany in such a way that they might replace German troops employed at the front. These two statements were made by Count Berchtold in reply to precise questions put to him by M. Dumaine, under instructions from his Government. The French Ambassador's departure was not attended by any hostile demonstration, but his Excellency before leaving had been justly offended by a harangue made by the Chief Burgomaster of Vienna to the crowd assembled before the steps of the town hall, in which he assured the people that Paris was in the throes of a revolution, and that the President of the Republic had been assassinated.

The British declaration of war on Germany was made known in Vienna by special editions of the newspapers about midday on the 5th August. An abstract of your speeches in the House of Commons, and also of the German Chancellor's speech in the Reichstag of the 4th April, appeared the same day, as well as the text of the German ultimatum to Belgium. Otherwise few details of the great events of these days transpired. The "Neue Freie Presse" was violently insulting towards England. The "Fremdenblatt" was not offensive, but little or nothing was said in the columns of any Vienna paper to explain that the violation of Belgian neutrality had left His Majesty's Government no alternative but to take part in the war.

The declaration of Italian neutrality was bitterly felt in Vienna, but scarcely mentioned in the newspapers.

On the 5th August I had the honour to receive your instruction of the previous day preparing me for the immediate outbreak of war with Germany, but adding that, Austria being understood to be not yet at that date at war with Russia and France, you did not desire me to ask for my passport or to make any particular communication to the Austro-Hungarian Government. You stated at the same time that His Majesty's Government of course expected Austria not to commit any act of war against us without the notice required by diplomatic usage.

On Thursday morning, the 13th August, I had the honour to receive your telegram of the 12th, stating that you had been compelled to inform Count Mensdorff, at the request of the French Government, that a complete rupture had occurred between France and Austria, on the ground that Austria had declared war on Russia who was already fighting on the side of France, and that Austria had sent troops to the German frontier under conditions that were a direct menace to France. The rupture having been brought about with France in this way, I was to ask for my passport, and your telegram stated, in conclusion, that you had informed Count Mensdorff that a state of war would exist between the two countries from midnight of the 12th August.

After seeing Mr. Penfield, the United States Ambassador, who accepted immediately in the most friendly spirit my request that his Excellency would take charge provisionally of British interests in Austria-Hungary during the unfortunate interruption of relations, I proceeded, with Mr. Theo Russell, Counsellor of His Majesty's Embassy, to the Ballplatz. Count Berchtold received me at midday. I delivered my message, for which his Excellency did not seem to be unprepared, although he told me that a long telegram from Count Mensdorff had just come in but had not yet been brought to him. His Excellency received my communication with the courtesy which never leaves him. He deplored the unhappy complications which were drawing such good friends as Austria and England into war. In point of fact, he added, Austria did not consider herself then at war with France, though diplomatic relations with that country had been broken off. I explained in a few words how circumstances had forced this unwelcome conflict upon us. We both avoided useless argument. Then I ventured to recommend to his Excellency's consideration the case of the numerous stranded British subjects at Carlsbad, Vienna, and other places throughout the country. I had already had some correspondence with him on the subject, and his Excellency took a note of what I said, and promised to see what could be done to get them away when the stress of mobilisation should be over. Count Berchtold agreed to Mr. Phillpotts, till then British Consul at Vienna under Consul-General Sir Frederick Duncan, being left by me at the Embassy in the capacity of Chargé des Archives. He presumed a similar privilege would not be refused in England if desired on behalf of the Austro-Hungarian Government. I took leave of Count Berchtold with sincere regret, having received from the day of my arrival in Vienna, not quite nine months before, many marks of friendship and consideration from his Excellency. As I left I begged his Excellency to present my profound respects to the Emperor Francis Joseph, together with an expression of my hope that His Majesty would pass through these sad times with unimpaired health and strength. Count Berchtold was pleased to say he would deliver my message.

Count Walterskirchen, of the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office, was deputed the following morning to bring me my passport and to acquaint me with the arrangements made for my departure that evening (14th August). In the course of the day Countess Berchtold and other ladies of Vienna society called to take leave of Lady de Bunsen at the embassy. We left the railway station by special train for the Swiss frontier at 7 P.M. No disagreeable incidents occurred. Count Walterskirchen was present at the station on behalf of Count Berchtold. The journey was necessarily slow, owing to the encumbered state of the line. We reached Buchs, on the Swiss frontier, early in the morning of the 17th August. At the first halting place there had been some hooting and stone throwing on the part of the entraining troops and station officials, but no inconvenience was caused, and at the other large stations on our route we found that ample measures had been taken to preserve us from molestation as well as to provide us with food. I was left in no doubt that the Austro-Hungarian Government had desired that the journey should be performed under the most comfortable conditions possible, and that I should receive on my departure all the marks of consideration due to His Majesty's representative. I was accompanied by my own family and the entire staff of the embassy, for whose untiring zeal and efficient help in trying times I desire to express my sincere thanks. The Swiss Government also showed courtesy in providing comfortable accommodation during our journey from the frontier to Berne, and, after three days' stay there, on to Geneva, at which place we found that every provision had been made by the French Government, at the request of Sir Francis Bertie, for our speedy conveyance to Paris. We reached England on Saturday morning the 22nd August.

DESPATCH FROM HIS MAJESTY'S AMBASSADOR AT VIENNA RESPECTING THE RUPTURE OF DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT.

Sir M. de Bunsen to Sir Edward Grey.

SIR,

THE rapidity of the march of events during the days which led up to the outbreak of the European war made it difficult, at the time, to do more than record their progress by telegraph. I propose now to add a few comments.

The delivery at Belgrade on the 23rd July of the Austrian note to Servia was preceded by a period of absolute silence at the Ballplatz. Except Herr von Tchirsky, who must have been aware of the tenour, if not of the actual words of the note, none of my colleagues were allowed to see through the veil. On the 22nd and 23rd July, M. Dumaine, French Ambassador, had long interviews with Baron Macchio, one of the Under-Secretaries of State for Foreign Affairs, by whom he was left under the impression that the words of warning he had been instructed to speak to the Austro-Hungarian Government had not been unavailing, and that the note which was being drawn up would be found to contain nothing with which a self-respecting State need hesitate to comply. At the second of these interviews he was not even informed that the note was at that very moment being presented at Belgrade, or that it would be published in Vienna on the following morning. Count Forgach, the other Under-Secretary of State, had indeed been good enough to confide to me on the same day the true character of the note, and the fact of its presentation about the time we were speaking.

So little had the Russian Ambassador been made aware of what was preparing that he actually left Vienna on a fortnight's leave of absence about the 20th July. He had only been absent a few days when events compelled him to return. It might have been supposed that Duc Avarna, Ambassador of the allied Italian Kingdom, which was bound to be so closely affected by fresh complications in the Balkans, would have been taken fully into the confidence of Count Berchtold during this critical time. In point of fact his Excellency was left completely in the dark. As for myself, no indication was given me by Count Berchtold of the impending storm, and it was from a private source that I received on the 15th July the forecast of what was about to happen which I telegraphed to you the following day. It is true that during all this time the "Neue Freie Presse" and other leading Viennese newspapers were using language which pointed unmistakably to war with Servia. The official "Fremdenblatt," however, was more cautious, and till the note was published, the prevailing opinion among my colleagues was that Austria would shrink from courses calculated to involve her in grave European complications.

On the 24th July the note was published in the newspapers. By common consent it was at once styled an ultimatum. Its integral acceptance by Servia was neither expected nor desired, and when, on the following afternoon, it was at first rumoured in Vienna that it had been unconditionally accepted, there was a moment of keen disappointment. The mistake was quickly corrected, and as soon as it was known later in the evening that the Servian reply had been rejected and that Baron Giesl had broken off relations at Belgrade, Vienna burst into a frenzy of delight, vast crowds parading the streets and singing patriotic songs till the small hours of the morning.

The demonstrations were perfectly orderly, consisting for the most part of organised processions through the principal streets ending up at the Ministry of War. One or two attempts to make hostile manifestations against the Russian Embassy were frustrated by the strong guard of police which held the approaches to the principal embassies during those days. The demeanour of the people at Vienna, and, as I was informed, in many other principal cities of the Monarchy, showed plainly the popularity of the idea of war with Servia, and there can be no doubt that the small body of Austrian and Hungarian statesmen by whom this momentous step was adopted gauged rightly the sense, and it may even be said the determination, of the people, except presumably in portions of the provinces inhabited by the Slav races. There had been much disappointment in many quarters at the avoidance of war with Servia during the annexation crisis in 1908 and again in connection with the recent Balkan war. Count Berchtold's peace policy had met with little sympathy in the Delegation. Now the flood-gates were opened, and the entire people and press clamoured impatiently for immediate and condign punishment of the hated Servian race. The country certainly believed that it had before it only the alternative of subduing Servia or of submitting sooner or later to mutilation at her hands. But a peaceful solution should first have been attempted. Few seemed to reflect that the forcible intervention of a Great Power in the Balkans must inevitably call other Great Powers into the field. So just was the cause of Austria held to be, that it seemed to her people inconceivable that any country should place itself in her path, or that questions of mere policy or prestige should be regarded anywhere as superseding the necessity which had arisen to exact summary vengeance for the crime of Serajevo. The conviction had been expressed to me by the German Ambassador on the 24th July that Russia would stand aside. This feeling, which was also held at the Ballplatz, influenced no doubt the course of events, and it is deplorable that no effort should have been made to secure by means of diplomatic negotiations the acquiescence of Russia and Europe as a whole in some peaceful compromise of the Servian question by which Austrian fears of Servian aggression and intrigue might have been removed for the future. Instead of adopting this course the Austro-Hungarian Government resolved upon war. The inevitable consequence ensued. Russia replied to a partial Austrian mobilisation and declaration of war against Servia by a partial Russian mobilisation against Austria. Austria met this move by completing her own mobilisation, and Russia again responded with results which have passed into history. The fate of the proposals put forward by His Majesty's Government for the preservation of peace is recorded in the White Paper on the European Crisis. On the 28th July I saw Count Berchtold and urged as strongly as I could that the scheme of mediation mentioned in your speech in the House of Commons on the previous day should be accepted as offering an honourable and peaceful settlement of the question at issue. His Excellency himself read to me a telegraphic report of the speech, but added that matters had gone too far; Austria was that day declaring war on Servia, and she could never accept the conference which you had suggested should take place between the less interested Powers on the basis of the Servian reply. This was a matter which must be settled directly between the two parties immediately concerned. I said His Majesty's Government would hear with regret that hostilities could not be arrested, as you feared they would lead to European complications. I disclaimed any British lack of sympathy with Austria in the matter of her legitimate grievances against Servia, and pointed out that, whereas Austria seemed to be making these the starting point of her policy, His Majesty's Government were bound to look at the question primarily from the point of view of the maintenance of the peace of Europe. In this way the two countries might easily drift apart.

His Excellency said that he too was keeping the European aspect of the question in sight. He thought, however, that Russia would have no right to intervene after receiving his assurance that Austria sought no territorial aggrandisement. His Excellency remarked to me in the course of his conversation that, though he had been glad to co-operate towards bringing about the settlement which had resulted from the ambassadorial conferences in London during the Balkan crisis, he had never had much belief in the permanency of that settlement, which was necessarily of a highly artificial character, inasmuch as the interests which it sought to harmonise were in themselves profoundly divergent. His Excellency maintained a most friendly demeanour throughout the interview, but left no doubt in my mind as to the determination of the Austro-Hungarian Government to proceed with the invasion of Servia.

The German Government claim to have persevered to the end in the endeavour to support at Vienna your successive proposals in the interest of peace. Herr von Tchirsky abstained from inviting my co-operation or that of the French and Russian Ambassadors in carrying out his instructions to that effect, and I had no means of knowing what response he was receiving from the Austro-Hungarian Government. I was, however, kept fully informed by M. Schebeko, the Russian Ambassador, of his own direct negotiations with Count Berchtold. M. Schebeko endeavoured on the 28th July to persuade the Austro-Hungarian Government to furnish Count Szapary with full powers to continue at St. Petersburgh the hopeful conversations which had there been taking place between the latter and M. Sazonof. Count Berchtold refused at the time, but two days later (30th July), though in the meantime Russia had partially mobilised against Austria, he received M. Schebeko again, in a perfectly friendly manner, and gave his consent to the continuance of the conversations at St. Petersburgh. From now onwards the tension between Russia and Germany was much greater than between Russia and Austria. As between the latter an arrangement seemed almost in sight, and on the 1st August I was informed by M. Schebeko that Count Ssapary had at last conceded the main point at issue by announcing to M. Sazonof that Austria would consent to submit to mediation the points in the note to Servia which seemed incompatible with the maintenance of Servian independence. M. Sazonof, M. Schebeko added, had accepted this proposal on condition that Austria would refrain from the actual invasion of Servia. Austria, in fact, had finally yielded, and that she herself had at this point good hopes of a peaceful issue is shown by the communication made to you on the 1st August by Count Mensdorff, to the effect that Austria had neither "banged the door" on compromise nor cut off the conversations. M. Schebeko to the end was working hard for peace. He was holding the most conciliatory language to Count Berchtold, and he informed me that the latter, as well as Count Forgach, had responded in the same spirit. Certainly it was too much for Russia to expect that Austria would hold back her armies, but this matter could probably have been settled by negotiation, and M. Schebeko repeatedly told me he was prepared to accept any reasonable compromise.

Unfortunately these conversations at St. Petersburgh and Vienna were cut short by the transfer of the dispute to the more dangerous ground of a direct conflict between Germany and Russia. Germany intervened on the 31st July by means of her double ultimatums to St. Petersburgh and Paris. The ultimatums were of a kind to which only one answer is possible, and Germany declared war on Russia on the 1st August, and on France on the 3rd August. A few days delay might in all probability have saved Europe from one of the greatest calamities in history.

Russia still abstained from attacking Austria, and M. Schebeko had been instructed to remain at his post till war should actually be declared against her by the Austro-Hungarian Government. This only happened on the 6th August when Count Berchtold informed the foreign missions at Vienna that "the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at St. Petersburgh had been instructed to notify the Russian Government that, in view of the menacing attitude of Russia in the Austro-Servian conflict and the fact that Russia had commenced hostilities against Germany, Austria-Hungary considered herself also at war with Russia."

M. Schebeko left quietly in a special train provided by the Austro-Hungarian Government on the 7th September. He had urgently requested to be conveyed to the Roumanian frontier, so that he might be able to proceed to his own country, but was taken instead to the Swiss frontier, and ten days later I found him at Berne.

M. Dumaine, French Ambassador, stayed on till the 12th August. On the previous day he had been instructed to demand his passport on the ground that Austrian troops were being employed against France. This point was not fully cleared up when I left Vienna. On the 9th August, M. Dumaine had received from Count Berchtold the categorical declaration that no Austrian troops were being moved to Alsace. The next day this statement was supplemented by a further one, in writing, giving Count Berchtold's assurance that not only had no Austrian troops been moved actually to the French frontier, but that none were moving from Austria in a westerly direction into Germany in such a way that they might replace German troops employed at the front. These two statements were made by Count Berchtold in reply to precise questions put to him by M. Dumaine, under instructions from his Government. The French Ambassador's departure was not attended by any hostile demonstration, but his Excellency before leaving had been justly offended by a harangue made by the Chief Burgomaster of Vienna to the crowd assembled before the steps of the town hall, in which he assured the people that Paris was in the throes of a revolution, and that the President of the Republic had been assassinated.

The British declaration of war on Germany was made known in Vienna by special editions of the newspapers about midday on the 5th August. An abstract of your speeches in the House of Commons, and also of the German Chancellor's speech in the Reichstag of the 4th April, appeared the same day, as well as the text of the German ultimatum to Belgium. Otherwise few details of the great events of these days transpired. The "Neue Freie Presse" was violently insulting towards England. The "Fremdenblatt" was not offensive, but little or nothing was said in the columns of any Vienna paper to explain that the violation of Belgian neutrality had left His Majesty's Government no alternative but to take part in the war.

The declaration of Italian neutrality was bitterly felt in Vienna, but scarcely mentioned in the newspapers.

On the 5th August I had the honour to receive your instruction of the previous day preparing me for the immediate outbreak of war with Germany, but adding that, Austria being understood to be not yet at that date at war with Russia and France, you did not desire me to ask for my passport or to make any particular communication to the Austro-Hungarian Government. You stated at the same time that His Majesty's Government of course expected Austria not to commit any act of war against us without the notice required by diplomatic usage.

On Thursday morning, the 13th August, I had the honour to receive your telegram of the 12th, stating that you had been compelled to inform Count Mensdorff, at the request of the French Government, that a complete rupture had occurred between France and Austria, on the ground that Austria had declared war on Russia who was already fighting on the side of France, and that Austria had sent troops to the German frontier under conditions that were a direct menace to France. The rupture having been brought about with France in this way, I was to ask for my passport, and your telegram stated, in conclusion, that you had informed Count Mensdorff that a state of war would exist between the two countries from midnight of the 12th August.

After seeing Mr. Penfield, the United States Ambassador, who accepted immediately in the most friendly spirit my request that his Excellency would take charge provisionally of British interests in Austria-Hungary during the unfortunate interruption of relations, I proceeded, with Mr. Theo Russell, Counsellor of His Majesty's Embassy, to the Ballplatz. Count Berchtold received me at midday. I delivered my message, for which his Excellency did not seem to be unprepared, although he told me that a long telegram from Count Mensdorff had just come in but had not yet been brought to him. His Excellency received my communication with the courtesy which never leaves him. He deplored the unhappy complications which were drawing such good friends as Austria and England into war. In point of fact, he added, Austria did not consider herself then at war with France, though diplomatic relations with that country had been broken off. I explained in a few words how circumstances had forced this unwelcome conflict upon us. We both avoided useless argument. Then I ventured to recommend to his Excellency's consideration the case of the numerous stranded British subjects at Carlsbad, Vienna, and other places throughout the country. I had already had some correspondence with him on the subject, and his Excellency took a note of what I said, and promised to see what could be done to get them away when the stress of mobilisation should be over. Count Berchtold agreed to Mr. Phillpotts, till then British Consul at Vienna under Consul-General Sir Frederick Duncan, being left by me at the Embassy in the capacity of Chargé des Archives. He presumed a similar privilege would not be refused in England if desired on behalf of the Austro-Hungarian Government. I took leave of Count Berchtold with sincere regret, having received from the day of my arrival in Vienna, not quite nine months before, many marks of friendship and consideration from his Excellency. As I left I begged his Excellency to present my profound respects to the Emperor Francis Joseph, together with an expression of my hope that His Majesty would pass through these sad times with unimpaired health and strength. Count Berchtold was pleased to say he would deliver my message.

Count Walterskirchen, of the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office, was deputed the following morning to bring me my passport and to acquaint me with the arrangements made for my departure that evening (14th August). In the course of the day Countess Berchtold and other ladies of Vienna society called to take leave of Lady de Bunsen at the embassy. We left the railway station by special train for the Swiss frontier at 7 P.M. No disagreeable incidents occurred. Count Walterskirchen was present at the station on behalf of Count Berchtold. The journey was necessarily slow, owing to the encumbered state of the line. We reached Buchs, on the Swiss frontier, early in the morning of the 17th August. At the first halting place there had been some hooting and stone throwing on the part of the entraining troops and station officials, but no inconvenience was caused, and at the other large stations on our route we found that ample measures had been taken to preserve us from molestation as well as to provide us with food. I was left in no doubt that the Austro-Hungarian Government had desired that the journey should be performed under the most comfortable conditions possible, and that I should receive on my departure all the marks of consideration due to His Majesty's representative. I was accompanied by my own family and the entire staff of the embassy, for whose untiring zeal and efficient help in trying times I desire to express my sincere thanks. The Swiss Government also showed courtesy in providing comfortable accommodation during our journey from the frontier to Berne, and, after three days' stay there, on to Geneva, at which place we found that every provision had been made by the French Government, at the request of Sir Francis Bertie, for our speedy conveyance to Paris. We reached England on Saturday morning, the 22nd August.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 15th October 1914, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

An area of low pressure and disturbed weather appeared off the Malabar coast on the 12th and was practically unchanged in position up to the end of the week. It caused a revival of the activity of the monsoon in the south of the Peninsula, where rainfall was widespread and moderately heavy.

There was very little rain in the rest of the country.

2. Burma.—Weather was almost dry, except on the 10th when nearly general rain fell in Lower Burma and local rain in Upper Burma.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Only a few falls of rain occurred, chiefly in Assam.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was good and well distributed throughout the Province. Planting of winter rice is completed in Lower Burma except in the flooded areas. Sowing of late sesamum, juar and wheat has commenced. Harvesting of cotton and groundnut is progressing in the dry zone. Standing crops are doing well. Live stock is healthy. The price of unhusked rice continues to be much below normal.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable and partially cool and beneficial to standing crops. Harvesting of autumn rice still continues in Darrang. Transplantation of winter rice and harvesting of jute are practically over. Sowing of pulses is in progress. Ploughing for mustard has commenced. The prospects of winter rice, cotton and tea are fair to good. The average price of common rice is almost stationary. Cattle disease is reported from two districts.

Bengal.—During the week under report light showers fell generally throughout the Province. More rain is wanted for the winter rice crop especially in the western districts. Harvesting of jute is nearly over. Preparation of lands for and sowing of spring crops are in progress. The prospects of standing crops are fairly good. Cattle disease is reported from thirteen districts. The average price of common rice for the Province has fallen by about 1·4 per cent as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—Rain fell in all the districts except Gaya and Sambalpur. The fall was generally light except in Manbhum and Singhbhum where good rain has been received. Harvesting of jute and other autumn crops is approaching completion. More rain is urgently wanted for steeping of jute in Purnea. Preparation of lands for spring crops has commenced in some districts. Winter rice is doing well but more rain is urgently wanted for the crop in Bihar and in parts of Hazaribagh and Palamau. Some damage to the crop by insect pests is reported from Balasore, Angul and Sambalpur. The average price of common rice has remained almost stationary as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from eleven districts. Agricultural prospects in the Feudatory States of Orissa are on the whole good.

United Provinces.—Showers were received in the north and west of the Provinces and in Bundelkhand. More rain is much needed for late rice in some of the eastern districts. Floods and locusts have slightly damaged crops in some parts of the Provinces. Harvesting and threshing of autumn crops and picking of cotton are in progress. Preparation of land for the next crops and sowing of spring crops, wheat, gram and peas continue. Standing crops are doing well and prospects are favourable. The condition of agricultural stock is good and cattle disease is reported to have slightly abated during the week. Fodder and water are ample. Markets are well stocked except in Etawah where stocks are short. Prices are practically stationary.

Punjab.—Light to moderate rain was nearly general and was beneficial for spring sowings. The condition and expected yield of cotton and sugarcane and of other standing irrigated crops are generally good. Unirrigated crops are in a fair to good condition Picking of cotton and reaping of other autumn crops continue and the yield is average to good. Ploughings for and sowings of spring crops are in progress and are normal. Cattle are generally healthy. Fodder and water are generally sufficient. The price of wheat ranges between normal and warning rates and of other grains between warning and scarcity rates.

North-West Frontier Province.—The week was rainless. Standing crops are good on irrigated but average on unirrigated lands. Crops have been slightly damaged by locusts in certain villages of the Kulachi tahsil of the Dera Ismail Khan district. The Paharpur canal is running. Cutting of autumn crops is in progress in Peshawar and Bannu. Spring sowings continue in Peshawar, Bannu and Dera Ismail Khan. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are high but are falling in the case of maize in Peshawar and of gram in Dera Ismail Khan.

Jammu.—The rainfall was slight. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 10 to 14 and maize from 14 to 20 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. There is no cattle disease. Fodder is sufficient Kashmir.—The rainfall was good in Muzaffarabad and slight elsewhere. Autumn crops are being gathered and the outturn is average. Cattle disease prevails in Uttermachipura and Sripartabsinghpura. Prices have slightly fallen in Baramula and are normal elsewhere. Fodder and water are sufficient.

Rajputana.—The weather was seasonable. Slight showers were reported in the Tonk and Bharatpur States. Harvesting of autumn crops and preparation of land for spring crops are in progress. Standing crops are in good condition. Prospects are favourable with the exception of the Tonk Pergana where the harvest is below normal. Much damage has been caused by locusts in Jaisalmer and slight damage by floods and locusts in Bharatpur. The condition of cattle is good. Fodder and water are sufficient. Cattle disease prevails in one Pergana of Gwalior, the Barwaha Mahal of Indore, the Khilchipur State of Bhopal and in parts of Dhar, Jobat and Alirajpur of the Southern States. The condition of cattle is good elsewhere. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. Prices are rising in Bhopal and Baghelkhand, are falling in the Orchha, Sarila and Banka Pahari States of Bundelkhand, are fluctuating in Nimar and the Rampura Bhanpura districts of Indore and in the Datia and Bijawar States of Bundelkhand and are steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been clear and occasionally cloudy. The days are warm but the nights and mornings are cool. No rain fell except in Mandla where 2¾ inches were received accompanied by hail which appears to have caused no damage. Harvesting of autumn crops and spring sowings were proceeding and prospects are excellent. The supply of fodder and water is adequate. Agricultural stock is in good condition. The price of rice and juar in Nimar fell by 2½ and 3½ seers per rupee while in Amraoti and Yeotmal juar fell by 2 and 4 seers per rupee, respectively.

Feudatory States.—The States received no rain. Standing crops are flourishing. Rice sells cheaper by two seers per rupee in Jashpur and Korea.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in the Konkan, the Deccan, the Karnatak, Kathiawar, Savantvadi and Kolhapur. Crops are generally good except for slight damage done by insects in one taluka of Sukkur, two talukas of the Upper Sind Frontier, one taluka of Thar and Parkar, three talukas of Khandesh and one taluka of Bijapur, by rats in one taluka of Karachi and two States of Rewa Kantha, by insufficient rain in one taluka and two Mahals of Karachi and by heavy rain in Ahmedabad and two talukas of West Khandesh. Harvesting continues. Picking of cotton is progressing in Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar and Nawabshah. Spring sowing continues in Sind, the Deccan, the Karnatak, Broach, Surat, Kathiawar, Palanpur, Cutch, Rewa Kantha and Kolhapur. The fodder supply is sufficient except in the area affected by floods in the hilly tracks of Karachi, in two talukas of Thar and Parkar and in one taluka of Poona. Cattle are in good condition. Agricultural stock is sufficient except in Ahmedangar and Poona. Drinking water is adequate and irrigation water is generally sufficient. Prices have slightly fallen in Sind the Karnatak and are steady elsewhere. The numbers on gratuitous relief during the week ending 10th October were Bijapur 254.

Hyderabad.—Slight and partial rain fell during the week, the average fall being 22 cents. The highest fall was 2 inches 86 cents in Kalam. Autumn crops left after damage by rain are fair and are being harvested. The early rice crop is fair to good and is being weeded in places. Sowings of spring crops continue. Cattle disease prevails in ten talukas. Prices of grains are almost constant. White juar is selling at 12½ and coarse rice at 6½ seers per rupee in Hyderabad City. The highest price in districts is juar 9 seers per rupee in Raichur and Mahbubnagar and the lowest 22 seers in Bir.

Mysore.—The rainfall was light to fair throughout the State. Prices of food grains are steady. Markets are well supplied. Weeding and transplanting operations are in progress in parts. Gingelly and sugarcane are being harvested in parts. Standing crops are generally in fair condition. The prospects of the season are generally good but more rain is needed in Bangalore, Mysore, Hassan, Shimoga and the Chitaldrug districts. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are generally available.

Coorg.—The rainfall was general. Rice is in good condition. Picking of cardamom continues. Prices of food grains are high. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall was heavy in Malabar and Cochin, good in Banganapalle, Salem, Coimbatore, Trichinopoly, South Canara, Travancore, the Nilgiris and the south and light to fair elsewhere. Standing crops are fair to good generally but require rain in parts of three districts. Harvesting of paddy and dry crops is proceeding or ending in parts and the outturn is fair to normal generally. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water-supply is sufficient for irrigation in the Sircars, Chingleput, Tanjore, the West Coast and the Nilgiris. Pasture and fodder are generally sufficient. Prices show a tendency to fall.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations, and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published early in September next by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and will be procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There will be two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited and considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Finance Department.

The rise in prices in India, though in evidence from an earlier date, began to attract general notice from about the year 1907. In 1910 the Government of India decided to undertake a full and detailed investigation of the problem, and the task was entrusted to Mr. Datta, a senior and experienced officer of the Finance Department, assisted by Mr. Findlay Shirras, late professor of Economics of the Dacca College, and Mr. S. D. Gupta of the Finance Department. Mr. Datta was instructed to tour throughout British India, to collect and analyse the relevant statistics, to ascertain the views of both the official and non-official community, and to report his conclusions to the Government of India. The specific points referred for investigation were :-

(1) What has been the actual rise in prices in India during the past fifteen years ? Has the rise affected all commodities alike or is it specially marked in the case of food grains ? Are there marked differences in respect of enhancement of prices as between different areas ?

(2) To what extent is the rise in prices due to what may be styled " world factors ", and how far may it be ascribed to local conditions ?

(3) Does it appear that the rise is a permanent feature or is it only temporary ?

(4) If it be more or less permanent, what are its probable economic effects on the country as a whole, and on the different sections of the community ?

2. Mr. Datta was placed on special duty in 1910. His report was received in 1913, and the complete subsidiary volumes of statistics, on which it is based, were finally ready by April 1914. The Government of India desire to place on record their appreciation of the care and industry which Mr. Datta and his assistants brought to bear on their arduous task. The report with its statistical appendices constitutes an almost complete survey of the progress achieved during the past 22 years. It brings together, and exhibits the inter-relation of, a mass of statistical material, drawn from a wide variety of sources, and illustrating the many-sided evolution of the country. Whatever view may be taken of the conclusions reached in regard to individual issues arising out of the terms of reference—some of which inevitably involve controversial points of economic theory—the report as a whole must be recognised as a very valuable contribution to the recent economic and financial history of India.

General course of prices.

3. The general course of prices is indicated in the following table, taken from page 29 of the report, which exhibits the variations in average wholesale* rupee prices, during the years 1890 to 1912, of different groups of articles, for the 24 more or less homogeneous economic circles, into which, for the reasons noted in Chapter II of the report, Mr. Datta has divided India exclusive of Burma and the Native States. The figure 100 represents in this table the average wholesale price of each group of commodities for the years 1890 to 1894, which have been selected by Mr. Datta as period the length of metalled roads increased from 36,400 to 51,900. This development in the means of communication, apart from its levelling effect already referred to, has brought all parts of the country into much closer touch with foreign markets, and has thus immensely facilitated and enhanced the influence in the direction of a rise which, as will be brought out further on, these markets have exercised on Indian prices.

*Wholesale prices have been used for the reasons noted by Mr. Datta on page 29 of the report, viz., that they are more sensitive than retail prices in reflecting industrial and trade conditions, and that retail prices in India correspond in their movements generally with wholesale prices, because the cost of retailing is extremely small.

9. Another factor of smaller, though still considerable, efficacy, has been the improvement in banking and monetary facilities. Relatively to the immense developments in western countries, the Indian banking system is still in its infancy. Remarkable progress has nevertheless been made of late. As indicated in paragraphs 214 to 218 of the report, the paid up capital and reserves of the Presidency and major joint stock banks (excluding the exchange banks) increased by 55·7 per cent. during the decade ending 1911. Private deposits available for commercial enterprise in the Presidency and joint stock banks, including exchange banks, rose, from an average of about 26 crores in the five years 1890 to 1894, to an average of 61 in the quinquennium 1905 to 1909 and of 83 in the years 1910 and 1911. The increase has been exceptionally rapid since 1900. The deposits, which in that year amounted to 31 crores, rose to 51 crores in 1905, 73 in 1909, 82 in 1910, and 85 in 1911. Again, between 1890 and 1912 the value of the cheques cleared at the clearing houses in Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras increased from 138 to 517 crores. There can be no doubt that, as observed by Mr. Datta (page 83, paragraph 214, of the report), the extended use of credit has had an important effect on prices.

10. A still greater influence has been attributed in some quarters to the large additions which, as shown in the table on page 90 of the report, were made to the monetary circulation, during the years 1903-04 to 1907-08, by the coinage of new rupees. It has been suggested that these additions were excessive, and in the long run largely contributed to, if they did not wholly cause, the exceptionally great rise in Indian prices. The facts set forth on pages 88 to 91 of the report indicate what little foundation there is for this suggestion. As shown on page 88 (paragraph 229), whenever the Government of India have coined more rupees, they have been compelled to do so by the depletion of their reserves, due to the demands of trade. In 1902-03 the percentage of the rupees held in the currency reserve to the total circulation of currency notes was 30·6; in 1903-04, 30; in 1904-05, 28·7; in 1905-06, 30·4; in 1906-07, 29·2; while in 1911-12, when coinage was again resumed, after having been in abeyance for some years, it fell to 25·1. Moreover, as Mr. Datta has clearly brought out on pages 91-92, (paragraphs 233 and 234), whilst the volume of metallic currency has expanded greatly since the year 1899, there is nothing to indicate that the increase has been larger than what has been required by the growth of business transactions. As far as can be judged from the suggestive statistics (page 93, paragraph 234) in which Mr. Datta has collated the leading data relating to external and internal trade, railway traffic, post office and treasury transactions, the capital of joint stock companies, the consumption of rice, wheat and coal, and the production of jute and cotton, the expansion of business as a whole has probably been more rapid than that of the metallic currency.

The Indian currency system of to-day is, in fact, as Mr. Datta brings out (page 88, paragraph 228) really quite as automatic as it was previous to the closing of the mints to the free coinage of silver. Additions to the rupee coinage are determined by the needs of the trade of the country, and the action of the Government is confined to fixing the amount of fresh coinage which it is desirable to undertake at any particular moment. If its action should prove inadequate, trade demands will force on further coinage: if it should be excessive, the surplus rupees simply lie in the currency reserves till called forth by further trade demands. A rise in prices which is not the result of a diminished supply of commodities must necessarily be attended by an increase in the volume of currency. Both facts are different sides of one and the same phenomenon. But the suggestion above referred to reverses the true order of causation. It has been the increased demand for Indian commodities and the rise in prices resulting, as will be shown later, therefrom, which has necessitated the increased coinage of rupees.

11. Amongst the other possible causes of a rise in prices which are grouped as peculiar to India, Mr. Datta devotes special attention to the interesting, but difficult, problem of the relation between the supply of food stuffs and the demand for food as measured by the growth of population. The conclusions he arrived at may best be presented in his own words: "Considering the growth of the population and the increase in the external demand" (he observes on page 61, paragraph 156) "the supply has been short during the greater part of the period embraced in the enquiry. The demand for both internal consumption and exports having increased at a quicker rate than the production of food grains, it is only natural that the general level of prices of food grains over a series of years would rise, although in a particularly favourable year it might have fallen to some extent. The food supply in India, compared with the demand, both internal and external, reached its lowest level in the quinquennium 1905-09, and this shortage of supply has doubtless contributed, in no small measure, to the unusual rise in prices during that quinquennium". And in the final chapter of the report, summing up the causes of the increase in the price level, he states that "in recent years the production of food grains has not been keeping pace with population. This would explain the almost continuous rise in the price of food grains" (page 188, paragraph 453). This result is attributed in part to unfavourable seasons, and in part to the failure of the area under cultivation to expand pari passu with the population; and on pages 64 to 66 (paragraphs 169 to 175), it is suggested that the substitution of non-food for food crops has to some extent been responsible for the latter circumstance.

12. It is evident that Mr. Datta intended these generalisations to be treated as qualified by his remarks elsewhere on the effect of the extended cultivation of non-food crops, and of the increased external demand for India's food products. Thus, on page 66 of the report, he observes that the total area which commercial crops have occupied at the expense of food grains is very small compared with the total area under cultivation of the latter, and consequently the effect of this substitution could not have been very great: and on page 96 (paragraph 240) in discussing the imposition of an export duty on food grains, he points out that the proportion of exports to the total production is ordinarily very low, not rising even in exceptionally favourable years much above 4 per cent. An even more important qualification is supplied by his confident and evidently well-founded conclusions—to which fuller reference will be made below—as to the generally beneficial effect of the rise in prices. The whole question, however, is one of much obscurity, and it may be convenient to bring together the leading data bearing on the problem.

13. Mr. Datta's main statistical results, as far as this question is concerned, are presented in the following table (page 58, paragraph 145), which compares the growth in population with that in the area under cultivation, and in the production of food grains. The figures have reference to the official year ending on the 31st March, and the average of the first quinquennium is denoted by the figure 100, the figures for the years which follow being expressed as percentages of this:—

	Average of the quinquennium 1890-91 to 1894-95.	Average of the quinquennium 1895-96 to 1899-00.	Average of the quinquennium 1900-01 to 1904-05.	Average of the quinquennium 1905-06 to 1909-10.	1910-11.	1911-12.

Area under food grains	100	96	101	102	106	103

As Mr. Datta, however, is careful to point out (page 54 (paragraph 134) and page 226 (Appendix D, paragraph 11)) the data from which this table has been constructed are, with the exception of the population statistics, largely conjectural and uncertain. For the immense areas of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, for about one-third of the Madras Presidency, for the hill tracts in the United Provinces, and in Assam—and, it may be added, for the Native States, which, though excluded by Mr. Datta, cannot legitimately be ruled out of account—neither the area under cultivation nor the area under food grains is known with any accuracy; and for such areas Mr. Datta had no alternative but to base his statistics of cultivation on more or less arbitrary assumptions. Further, attempts to estimate the total outturn of agricultural produce, even when the area is definitely ascertainable, are beset with insuperable difficulties. The normal yields per acre, the foundation of all such estimates, are notoriously untrustworthy. These yields have been revised from time to time—there has been some revision even since Mr. Datta's report was written—but the figures are still far from satisfactory, and the Government of India have had for some time under consideration the substitution of a more reliable agency for the conduct of the investigations from which the yields are ultimately derived. The remaining factor in the calculation, the percentage of the yearly outturn to the normal, is a still more uncertain quantity, resting as it does on district returns, which are little more than loose conjectures, vitiated in particular by a distinct bias in the direction of under-estimation. Finally, the whole mass of material, comprising elements of every degree of validity, has to be reduced by a complicated process of averaging and weighting, and it is evident from a study of the detailed results that here, too, considerable further difficulty has been experienced and divergent methods employed.

In such conditions, the sounder course from the statistical standpoint is to dispense with the superficial and misleading appearance of completeness, and to consider what inferences are suggested by a less ambitious enquiry, which confines itself to the more trustworthy of the available statistics.

14. The following table shows the total acreage under cultivation and the population during the period 1890 to 1912, in the tracts for which relatively accurate returns are procurable, viz., parts of Assam, the United Provinces exclusive of the hill districts, the Central Provinces and Berar, the Punjab, the North-West Frontier Province and the Bombay Presidency* :—

Except during the quinquennium 1895-96 to 1899-1900, the figures for which reflect the results of repeated and severe famines, the area under cultivation has expanded more rapidly than the population.

15. The area under food grains during the same period was as follows:—

*(1) No figures have been included for the Madras Presidency. In one-third of that Presidency, as explained in paragraph 13, no accurate data are available. For the remaining two-thirds, or thereabouts, the figures are sufficiently correct for each year taken by itself, but cannot be used for the purpose of a comparison extending over a series of years, owing to the gradual extension of the reliable statistics, which is due mainly to progress of statistical work in respect of proprietary villages.

(2) Certain small areas in the Bombay Presidency, for which statistics are not available in all the quinquennia, have been omitted. A corresponding deduction has been made in the population figures.

(3) The figures of population in the different quinquennia have been calculated by the method of interpolation on the assumption of equal annual increments.

Excluding again the famine quinquennium 1895-96 to 1899-1900, this table exhibits an almost precise parallelism between growth of population and extension of food cultivation; and the only interpretation which the figures can bear is that the correspondence between the two has been substantially maintained.

16. These figures can, however be supplemented to some extent. As already explained, it is idle to attempt any exact estimate of the yield of any given acreage—and without such exactitude, no further progress can be made on purely statistical lines, when a fractional discrepancy only remains to be dealt with. But it is known that the cultivated area at the close of the period under review included irrigated land to a considerably greater extent than at the outset, and the consequent improvement of outturn and increased certainty of securing it, must have more than counterbalanced any slight defect in area as compared with population, if indeed any such defect has existed. The statistics bearing on this subject, which have been extracted from the records of the Irrigation Department, are tabulated below.

Area and outturn, moreover, are not the only factors involved. An additional factor of crucial importance is the great development of communications already referred to, and its incalculable effect in enhancing the "efficiency" of any given aggregate of food production. This principle, which is a truism of famine policy, is also applicable to the conditions of supply in normal years, and its bearing on the question of food supply must not be overlooked.

17. As applied to a country like India, which has the world's supplies to draw upon, the conception of an absolute shortage, which appears to underlie Mr. Datta's whole treatment of the subject, can have no valid significance. The real problem as regards a country so situated is obviously to determine whether the purchasing power of the people generally has increased. If that has been demonstrated in the case of India, as Mr. Datta affirms, it may be confidently inferred that the Indian community has continued to provide itself, to an at least equal extent, with the necessaries of life, which constitute its first requirement. In this connection a very relevant consideration is that brought out by Mr. Datta on page 189 (paragraph 455), viz., that "India has now to part with much less of her produce to meet her foreign obligations for the simple reason that her produce has risen in value in European markets." In virtue of this rise India has been in an exceptionally favourable position for procuring from outside sources such additional supplies of food as she may have needed; though the statistics of imports of food grains on page 97 of the report do not indicate that in fact the internal supply has required to be supplemented in any markedly increased degree. The statistical study of food production, in short, while it has a certain value as suggesting a test by which to qualify conclusions independently obtained, cannot stand alone. In so far, however, as they admit of separate formulation, the following appear to the Government of India to be the principal inferences which can fairly be drawn from this branch of Mr. Datta's enquiries.

18. In the first place, strictly speaking, there has been no substitution of non-food for food crops in the country as a whole. The food cultivation area has grown, though the area under commercial crops has increased in a higher proportion; and the more rapid expansion of the cultivation of jute and cotton in certain areas cannot, in view of the very small proportion of the total area which these crops occupy, have exercised any appreciable influence on the general level of food prices.

Secondly, so far as trustworthy statistical evidence is available, it would appear that the area under food crops has increased in almost exact correspondence with the growth of population—a fact which must be held to imply the production on the average of a relatively larger and more efficient food supply, in view of the large extension of irrigation and transport facilities. The statistical data relating to acreage under food crops do not, however, cover the whole ground, as information is admittedly wanting for large areas; and, partly for this reason, and partly owing to the defective character of the information available regarding the other factors involved, no really reliable estimate of the outturn during the period under review can be framed.

Thirdly, as regards export of food grains, Mr. Datta has clearly brought out (pages 96-97, paragraph 240) the relative insignificance of the proportion between food exports and food production.

Finally, analysis of the general statistics in regard to the increase of prices elicits the very significant point that there was no sustained upward movement of food prices till after 1904. Even in 1899, very shortly after a large temporary increase definitely attributable to failure of the rains, food prices had reverted to practically the level of the basic period 1890-1894; and in 1904 they fell below it. The causes of the rapid and sustained rise subsequent to this year, which is even more conspicuous in the case of a number of other commodities, must be sought for in a different and independent group of circumstances.

19. The point last mentioned leads up to a distinction, the fundamental importance of which, though not entirely unrecognised in the report, has been overshadowed in the attempt to deal with the question of food prices as a self-contained problem. The essential fact which emerges from Mr. Datta's enquiry, is the division of the history of Indian prices since 1890 into two well marked periods dominated on the whole by widely different conditions. From 1890 to 1904 internal conditions were the principal factors in the determination of the price level. Prices rose and fell in the main in accordance with changes in the agricultural conditions from year to year. The only articles which show a continued rise during this period are hides and skins, the prices of which are governed by those prevailing in the world markets; building materials; and after 1897, metals. With these exceptions, the only indication of a permanent upward tendency in prices is the increase in the prices of exports from 1900-1901, which affected to some extent the general level in that and the four following years. Whilst the volume of export trade expanded slowly between 1890-1891 and 1899-1900, the average prices of Indian exports, as shown on pages 137-138 (paragraph 334) of the report, were lower in the quinquennium 1895-1896 to 1899-1900 than in the preceding five years. There are signs in the general foreign price level, the statistics regarding which are exhibited in the table on page 48, of an upward movement after 1896, but the advance shown, apart from the exceptional year 1900, was not very marked in most countries, nor does it appear to have exercised any considerable influence on Indian prices till some years after the opening of the new century.

20. With the year 1905 Indian prices entered upon a new phase. Prices rose rapidly to unprecedented heights, and so far there is nothing to suggest the probability of a reversion to the levels of former years. The explanation of this remarkable phenomenon cannot be found in changes of an internal nature; and examination of the statistics of prices in other countries indicates clearly that the increase in Indian prices has been broadly synchronous with a general upward movement in price levels throughout the world, and that its origin must accordingly be sought in causes more or less common to the whole civilised world. In the United Kingdom prices, taking the average of the Economist's and Sauerbeck's index numbers, rose between 1903 and 1912, 25 points; in Germany between 1902 and 1911, 35 points; in Italy between 1902 and 1911, 21 points; in Belgium between 1897 and 1911, 27 points; and in the United States between 1899 and 1912, 33 points. As to the precise causes responsible for this phenomenon economic authorities are not as yet completely agreed, but the worldwide character of the rise, and the broad parallelism between this and the upward movement of Indian prices since 1904, are indisputable.

21. The influence on the Indian price level of this notable change in world prices can be traced clearly in the statistics of foreign trade. As indicated above, the average price of exports rose to some extent between 1900-1901 and 1904-1905. But from 1905-1906 onwards the increase has been altogether unprecedented.

As shown in the table on page 138 of the report, during the quinquennium 1905-1906 to 1909-1910, the value of Indian exports* exceeded by rather more than 116·6 crores, or an annual average of 23⅓ crores, the value which would have been represented by the same quantities dealt with at the average rates prevailing during the basic period. In 1910-1911 and 1911-1912 the difference in value was even greater, being 42·12 and 48·58 crores respectively. Of these increases, cotton contributed† about 22 per cent., jute about 28 per cent., hides and skins about 9 per cent., seeds about 13 per cent., and grains and pulses about 9 per cent. It is to this immensely enhanced demand for Indian commodities of export that the relatively larger rise in the Indian price level as compared with that of other countries is probably to be attributed. While the rise since 1904 in the prices of imports, which reflect more accurately than exports the general course of world prices, has been considerable and has assisted materially to raise the Indian level, it has been proportionately much smaller than in the case of exports.

Economic effects.

22. The social effects of the rise in prices during recent years have been the theme of much discussion in every country. As regards India Mr. Datta's conclusion, as already stated, is that on the whole they have been beneficial. His views on this aspect of the enquiry are summarised in the following extracts from pages 184-186 and 189 of the report.

"There has undoubtedly been a real progress, an increase of wealth and a general diffusion of it, in consequence of an increase in the profits of agriculture, and a remarkable increase in wages greater than the cost of living in almost all parts of India during the period of rising prices. There has indeed been a very great increase in the annual income of India. Dr. Marshall defines a country's income as 'the net aggregate of commodities and capital, material and immaterial, including services, produced annually by the labour of the country acting upon its natural resources.' It is beyond all doubt that in recent years there has taken place with the development of the resources of the country and the growth of enterprise on the part of the community as a whole, a very considerable increase in this annual income." (Page 184, paragraph 439).

"The standard of living amongst all classes of the population, especially among landholders, traders and ryots, has increased very considerably in recent years, and extravagance on occasions of marriage and other social ceremonies has seriously increased. The average villager lives in a better house and eats better food than did his father; brass and other metal vessels have taken the place of coarse earthenware, and the clothing of his family in quality and quantity has improved. We may also say that the increase in passenger miles travelled predicates the existence of spare money to pay for railway fares." (Page 185, paragraph 443).

"The wage-earners of all classes and in all circles have secured an increase in wages commensurate with the rise in the cost of living. The only exceptions are domestic servants in cities and other urban areas in a few circles, and wage-earners employed in some industries." (Page 186, paragraph 445).

"Landlords have, except in some special areas, received increased cash rents, cultivators increased profits from agriculture, and wage-earners generally have gained in consequence of their wages having increased more than prices. It is only persons on fixed salaries or dependent on income from securities and shares, and professional men who live upon customary fees, who have suffered from the rise in prices, as their income, not being at all elastic, has not risen sufficiently to meet the increased cost of living. The effects on the different sections of the community in different areas have been in the same direction and differ only in degree." (Page 189, paragraph 455).

* As explained by Mr. Datta on page 139 of the report, the table on page 138 represents the values declared and calculated, of about 99 per cent. of the exports, because it was not possible to ascertain the quantities of exports in the case of the remainder.

† For the reason given in the preceding note, the percentages cannot be calculated with absolute accuracy. The margin of error, however, is insignificant.

23. That there has been during the last 20 years a remarkable growth in the general prosperity of India is a fact recognised by all impartial observers, and testified to by all the available statistical evidence. The volume of foreign trade has grown enormously. The quantities of goods carried by rail rose from 23 million tons in 1890 to 48 million in 1903, and 71 million in 1911. The number of passengers by rail increased from 114 million in 1890 to 210 million in 1903, and 390 million in 1911. The value of money orders issued rose from 16·4 crores in 1890-91 to 32·1 in 1903-04, and 48·7 in 1911-12; and the fresh deposits in Saving Banks from 2·68 crores in 1890-91 to 4·66 in 1903-04, and 8·28 in 1911-12. The absorption of gold has been of late on an unparallelled scale, amounting between 1900 and 1911 to no less than 116 million sterling, as against 27 million sterling in the preceding 12 years. Great strides have been made in the manufacturing and mining industries. The number of looms and spindles rose, beween 1903-04 and 1911-12, in cotton mills from 41,977 and 4,900,106 respectively, to 81,899, and 6,040,760; in jute mills from 18,400 and 376,718 to 32,927 and 677,519; and in woollen mills from 633 and 23,806 to 772 and 29,369; whilst the production of coal has about doubled since 1901. But the most striking evidence perhaps of the improving condition of the people is to be found in the statistics of the import of articles of luxury and convenience such as kerosine oil, apparel, boots and shoes, matches and soap, which increased by 26 per cent. between the basic period 1890-94 and 1903-04; and by 74 per cent. between the latter year and 1911-12. On all sides there are indications of a higher standard of living.

24. That the rise in prices has contributed to this result is indicated both by the comparatively more rapid expansion under the heads above mentioned since 1904, and by analysis of the statistics of foreign trade. A country necessarily benefits by any special demand for its exports, and as has been shown, the demand for Indian exports has expanded immensely since 1904-1905. Against the gain in this direction has to be set the increased cost which India has had to pay for her imports; but Mr. Datta estimates (pages 133-139, paragraphs 335 and 336 of the report) that, allowing for the increase in the cost of imports, the annual gain to India through the enhanced prices obtained for her exports amounted during 1900-1901 to 1904-05 to 3·1 crores, during 1905-06 to 1909-10 to 14·7 crores, and during 1910-11 and 1911-12 to no less than 34·2 crores. It is impossible in the face of these figures to doubt that India as a whole has benefited by the rise in the price level since 1904. It is a matter of greater difficulty to measure the resulting gain or loss to different sections of the community. Adequate data do not in fact exist for any precise and minute measurement of changes in real income or real earnings. Comparison between the prices of goods produced or wages earned, and the prices of goods most commonly consumed, furnishes, however, a rough index of the effects of the rise in prices on the various classes.

25. The most important section of the community are the cultivators, who comprise, according to the census of 1911, (Volume I, Part II, Table XV) more than half the total population. As a rule cultivators grow their own food, and to ascertain therefore the changes in their real income resulting from the rise in prices, comparison has to be made between their expenditure as measured by their payments for rents or land revenue, wages and commodities purchased, and their income as measured by the prices secured for produce sold. The general conclusion to be drawn from this comparison is unmistakeable. On the income side, in the quinquennium 1908-1912, the wholesale price of raw jute was 43 per cent. above the level of the basic period 1890-1894, that of raw cotton 45 per cent., of hides and skins 59 per cent., of oil-seeds 45 per cent., of food grains (cereals) 42 per cent., and of food grains (pulses) 43 per cent. On the expenditure side, cotton manufactures, the largest item in the normal expenditure of the cultivator, rose only 25 points, the cost price of salt fell by 3 per cent. apart from the reduction of the general rate of duty from Rs. 2-8-0 to Re. 1-0-0 a maund, metals rose 20 per cent., and sugar 9 per cent., while kerosine oil shows no great increase. The movements of rents have varied greatly in different areas, and as regards the different classes of tenants. Grain rents, as measured by their cash value, have no doubt risen proportionately to the rise in prices, but cash rents in general have lagged behind prices; whilst the enhancements of land revenue in ryotwari areas, so far as attributable to the rise in prices, have been comparatively small. Wages have risen more rapidly even than prices. But, on the balance, the gain in real income is manifest.

26. The valuable wage tables prepared by Mr. Datta point to a great improvement in the condition of the wage earning population. The collection of reliable statistics of wages has always been a matter of great difficulty in India; and Mr. Datta's figures do not in all respects agree with those of the wage census carried out in the years 1911-1912. There is no reason to doubt, however, that they represent with sufficient accuracy the broad trend of wages. In many countries wages have only slowly adapted themselves to the rise in prices; and the necessary readjustment has been attended with much social friction. But in India circumstances have favoured the wage-earner. The increasing profits of agriculture, which, as shown in Mr. Gait's report on the census of 1911 (Volume I, paragraph 530) have enhanced the demand for labour on the land, the demand for labour on public works, the expansion of the factory industry already referred to, and in parts the mortality from plague* have combined to promote a great and rapid increase in wages during recent years.

27. Agricultural labourers still constitute the largest section of the labouring population. For many reasons changes in the real income of this class are peculiarly hard to measure. Payment in kind is still common; there are great variations in the continuity of employment; and in parts hereditary or customary obligations affect the rate of remuneration. But the statistics, compiled by Mr. Datta, of cash wages paid to independent labourers indicate roughly the general movement of earnings since the basic period. As compared with this period, cash wages, by 1912, had nearly doubled. When every allowance has been made for the disturbing factors above alluded to and the rise in prices, Mr. Datta's estimate (Volume III Statistics, page 203) of an increase of 38 per cent. in real income in 1912, as compared with the basic period 1890 1894, seems fully justified.

28. Equally or little less remarkable has been the rise in the real earnings of general labourers and artisans in villages, urban areas and cities. The statistics show advances in money wages ranging from 77 to 93 per cent. since the basic period. The case of factory hands, however, is more complicated. Wages in factories were in the earlier years above the general level; the rate of increase has accordingly been smaller, and has varied much, both as between different industries, and as between factories of the same kind in different provinces. In the absence of detailed family budgets, which Mr. Datta found it impossible to prepare, and of information as to periods of unemployment and overtime, no exact comparison of nominal and real wages can be made. Wages, however, have been rising rapidly in all factory industries since 1903, and it seems fairly certain that in the jute, wool, leather and mining industries, in the paper industry as a whole, and in the cotton mills of Calcutta, the United Provinces and the Central Provinces, they have risen faster than the cost of living. In the cotton mills of the Bombay Presidency, however, where wages in the basic period were higher than in other parts, and are still relatively high, and in those of Madras, it is doubt

* It is important not to overestimate the economic effects of plague which, though a grave calamity accounted only for a small proportion of the total deaths in the period under review, and left large tracts of India practically unaffected. Out of 132¼ million deaths reported in British India between 1896 and 1913, rather less than 7 million deaths were attributed to plague.

This opportunity may be taken of correcting some statements on this subject in paragraph 71, page 26, of the report:

(1) The report states that, between the first official intimation of plague and the census of 1901, ¾ million had died of the disease. The correct figure is about 424,000.

(2) The report states that the mortality in the town of Dinga in 1907 was 119·20 per mille. It should have been added that the population of this town was only 5,412, so that it cannot be taken as a general index in regard to the Province.

(3) The report states that "since the Black Death of the 14th century, there has never been such mortality from plague as in India between 1896 and 1912." The Government of India are not aware that authority exists for this categorical statement.

ful whether the rise in money-wages, considerable though it has been of late, has fully kept pace with the rise in prices.

29. Wages on railways exhibit similar variations. In Sind, Gujarat, and in the Bombay Deccan, where in the basic period they ruled high, wages have possibly lagged behind prices of late. But on the whole the wage-earners on railways seem to have secured increases in pay more than proportionate to the increase in the cost of living. The same is true for the most part of domestic servants.

30. In the case of the upper and middle classes, material is lacking for any but the most general estimate. The considerable expansion in the income tax receipts suggests, what indeed would seem to be obvious, that for the trading community the period has been one of growing prosperity. Cultivating proprietors have undoubtedly benefited, while in the case of landlords it has to be remembered that, if rents have risen less rapidly than prices, on the other hand, as indicated by Mr. Datta on page 145 (paragraph 315) of the report, "the share of the increased profits taken by Government as the supreme landlord is a comparatively small part of the total increase which has accrued from the rise in prices." Persons on fixed incomes have certainly suffered, and it is Mr. Datta's opinion that the professional classes too have been adversely affected, but the circumstances of this section of the community do not appear to have been made the subject of detailed statistical investigation. It may be observed, however, that in the case of the lower paid Government servants, civil and military, various measures in the direction of increased pay have been taken of recent years.

Future course of prices.

31. It has been shown that the prolonged rise in Indian prices dates from the year 1905, and that its ultimate origin must be sought in causes which have been operative throughout the civilised world. As the growth of communications within India has tended to equalise prices throughout the country, so the parallel development of communications with foreign countries has tended more and more to bring Indian prices into line with those of the world in general. The prices of Indian exports are governed by those prevailing in the world's markets, and through the growing influence of foreign trade, Indian prices, apart from temporary fluctuations resulting from the character of the seasons, tend to follow the same course as world prices. The problem of the future course of prices in India is one therefore to which no solution can be found in the analysis of Indian conditions only. It is essentially bound up with the question of the movement of prices throughout the world. Prices have so far shown no sign of reverting to former levels. As regards the future, the factors involved, even under normal conditions of evolution, are too numerous, too complex, and too incalculable in their operation to warrant any definite and confident prediction: and the normal course has now been interrupted by the catastrophe of general war, the total effect of which upon the highly organised western systems of production, trade and finance it is quite impossible to forecast.

Ordered that a copy of the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations, to the several Departments of the Government of India, to the Financial Adviser, Military Finance, to the Heads of Departments subordinate to this Department, and to the Comptroller and Auditor General; also to all Chambers of Commerce and to the Secretary and Treasurer, Banks of Bengal, Bombay and Madras.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 22nd October 1914, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

1. A disturbance in the extreme north gave fairly widespread rain at the beginning of the week in the North-West Frontier Province, Kashmir, the Punjab and the west of the United Provinces, and a few falls were also reported from north Rajputana. On the disappearance of this disturbance dry weather prevailed over nearly the whole country, the south of the Peninsula and Assam being the only areas where rainfall of any importance occurred.

Northwest India.—Nearly general rain fell in the Punjab on the 15th, and local rain fell in the North-West Frontier Province on the 15th, and in Kashmir on the 15th, 16th and 17th. Light falls were reported from Jaipur.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 17th October 1914.

Burma.—Very little rain was recorded in the deltaic area, the dry zone and Upper Burma. Planting of winter rice has been almost completed in Lower Burma. Sowing of late sesamum has been completed and that of juar, maize, wheat and peas is progressing. Harvesting of groundnut and plucking of cotton are proceeding. The condition of crops is satisfactory. Cattle are healthy. The price of unhusked rice continues below normal but the market is firm.

The condition and expected yield of cotton, sugarcane and other standing irrigated crops are good and those of unirrigated crops are fair to good. Picking of cotton and reaping of other autumn crops continue and the yield is average to good. Damage to crops by hailstorm is reported in parts of the southeast and western districts. Ploughings for and sowings of spring crops are in progress and are normal. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices of wheat range between normal and warning rates and of other grains between warning and scarcity rates.

Harvesting of autumn crops is in progress in Gwalior and Bundelkhand. Standing crops are generally good but have been damaged by insects in parts of Gwalior and are withering for want of rain in the Samthar State of the Bundelkhand Agency. Cattle disease prevails in the Barwaha Mahal of Indore and in the Khilchipur State of Bhopal. The condition of cattle is good elsewhere. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations, and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published early in September next by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and will be procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There will be two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited and considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

AN ACT TO AMEND THE SUPERANNUATION ACTS, 1834 TO 1909.

[18th September, 1914.]

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

Distribution of gratuities without probate in certain cases.

1. Where the Treasury has decided to grant a gratuity to the legal personal representatives of a deceased civil servant under section two or section three of the Superannuation Act, 1909, probate or other proof of the title of the personal representatives of the deceased may be dispensed with and the gratuity paid or distributed in manner provided by section eight of the Superannuation Act, of 1887, and that section shall apply accordingly as if such gratuity as aforesaid were a sum due to the deceased at the time of his death in respect of superannuation allowance.

10 & 51 Vict., c. 67.
9 Edw. 7, c. 10.

Amendment of s. 2 (1) of Act of 1909.

2. The amount of the gratuity which may be granted under sub-section (1) of section two of the Superannuation Act, 1909, to the legal personal representatives of a civil servant who dies whilst still employed in the service shall be either the amount specified in that sub-section, or an amount equal to the amount of the additional allowance which the Treasury might have granted to him if he had retired from the civil service on the ground of ill-health at the date of his death, whichever may be the greater.

Amendment to s. 4 of Act of 1887.

3. If any person dies while in his employment, being a person to whom a gratuity might have been granted under section four of the Superannuation Act, 1887, if at the time of his death he had retired from such employment because of infirmity of mind or body, the Treasury may, if they think fit, grant to his dependants such compassionate gratuity as they might have granted to the deceased person had he so retired.

Power to grant superannuation allowances to civil servants transferred to other employment in certain cases.

4. (1) If a civil servant has been before the passing of this Act or is thereafter transferred, with the consent of the head officer of his department, to employment which is approved employment within the meaning of this section, it shall be lawful, upon his retirement from that employment under conditions which would have entitled him to any superannuation allowance, additional allowance, or gratuity had he continued to be employed as a civil servant, for the Treasury, if the head officer of the department in which he was serving at the time of transfer makes a recommendation to that effect, to grant to him, out of moneys provided by Parliament, such superannuation allowance, additional allowance, or gratuity as might have been granted to him if, at the date of transfer, he had retired from the Civil Service on the ground of ill-health.

(2) For the purposes of this section "approved employment" means employment, whether within or without His Majesty's Dominions (not being employment in a public office within the meaning of the Superannuation Act, 1892, service in which qualifies for the grant of a superannuation allowance), which is recognised by the head officer of the department in which the civil servant was serving at the time of transfer, and by the Treasury, as being employment to which it is expedient that the provisions of this section should apply.

55 & 56 Vict., c. 40.

(3) Section twelve of the Superannuation Act, 1859, is hereby repealed, but nothing in this repeal shall affect the rights of any officer who, before the passing of this Act, has been transferred from employment entitling him to a superannuation allowance to public employment under the Crown not so entitling him, nor shall this repeal affect the said section as applied by any other enactment.

22 Vict., c. 26.

Repeal of s. 4 of the Act of 1859 and s. 3 of the Act of 1884 as to added years.

5. Section four of the Superannuation Act, 1859, and section three of the Superannuation Act, 1884 (which relate to superannuation allowances of persons holding professional and other special offices), are hereby repealed, but nothing in this repeal shall affect the rights of any person who, before the date of the passing of this Act, has been appointed to an office to which an order, warrant, or minute of the Treasury, issued under either of the said sections, applied.

47 & 48 Vict., c. 57.

Repeal of s. 7 (2) of the Act of 1887.

6. Sub-section (2) of section seven of the Superannuation Act, 1887 (which provides for the reduction of the pension, superannuation and other allowance payable to a person when that person is or becomes a lunatic towards whose maintenance a contribution is made out of moneys provided by Parliament), is hereby repealed.

Short title.

BE it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

From the marks assigned to Candidates in each subject such deduction will be made as the Civil Service Commissioners may deem necessary in order to secure that no credit be allowed for merely superficial knowledge.

Consistently with the limitations specified above Candidates are at liberty to name any of the foregoing subjects, provided that the maximum number of marks that can be obtained from the subjects chosen is limited to 6,000. If this maximum is exceeded by a Candidate's selection he will be required to indicate one of his subjects, the marks for which should, in his case, be reduced so as to bring his maximum marks within the prescribed limit. The marks so reduced will be subject to a correspondingly reduced deduction.

Moreover, if a Candidate's handwriting is not easily legible a further deduction will, on that account, be made from the total marks otherwise accruing to him.*

6. A list of the competitors shall be made out in order of their proficiency as disclosed by the aggregate marks finally awarded to each competitor, and in that order so many competitors, up to the determined number of appointments, as are found by the Civil Service Commissioners to be qualified by examination, shall be designated to be Selected Candidates for the Civil Service of India, provided that they appear to be duly qualified in other respects. Should any Selected Candidate become disqualified, the Secretary of State for India will determine whether the vacancy thus created shall be filled or not. In the former case the Candidate next in order of merit, and in other respects duly qualified, shall be deemed to be a Selected Candidate.

7. Selected Candidates, before proceeding to India, will be on probation for one year, at the end of which time they will undergo an examination, called the Final Examination, in the following compulsory subjects (b) :—

	Marks.
1. Indian Penal Code	400
2. Code of Criminal Procedure	200
3. The Indian Evidence Act	200
4. Indian History	400
5. The principal Vernacular Language of the Province to which the Candidate is assigned	400

* It is notified for general information that the number of marks deducted for bad handwriting may be considerable.

(b) Instructions, showing the extent of the examination, will be issued to Selected Candidates, as soon as possible after the result of the Open Competition is declared.

The principal Vernacular Language prescribed for each Province to which Candidates are assigned is as follows:—

For the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, the Punjab or the Central Provinces	Hindustani.
For Bengal or Assam	Bengali.
(unless it is the Candidate's mother tongue.)
For Bihar and Orissa	Hindustani.
For Burma	Burmese.
For Bombay	Marathi.
(unless it is the Candidate's mother tongue.)
For Madras	Tamil or Telugu.
(at the option of the Candidate.)

In Hindustani the Candidate will be required to be acquainted with both the Persian and the Nagari character.

A Candidate assigned to Bengal or Assam, whose mother tongue is Bengali, must offer for examination Hindustani; a Candidate assigned to Bombay, whose mother tongue is Marathi, must offer for examination Hindustani; and a Candidate assigned to Madras, whose mother tongue is either of the languages shown against his Province, must offer the other for examination.

8. Selected Candidates may in addition offer in the Final Examination one of the following optional subjects:—

	Marks.
1. Hindu and Muhammadan Law	450
2. Sanskrit	400
3. Arabic	400
4. Persian	400
5. Hindustani	400

No Candidate who offered Sanskrit or Arabic at the Open Competition may offer the same language at the Final Examination; and only Candidates assigned to the Province of Burma may offer Hindustani as an optional subject.

9. In the Final Examination, as in the Open Competition, the merit of the Candidates examined will be estimated by marks (which will be subject to deductions in the same way as the marks assigned at the Open Competition), and the number set opposite to each subject denotes the greatest number of marks that can be obtained in respect of it. The examination will be conducted on paper and vivâ voce, as may be deemed necessary.

If any Candidate is prevented by sickness or any other adequate cause from attending such examination, the Commissioners may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for India in Council, allow him to appear at the Final Examination to be held in the following year, or at a special examination.

10. The selected Candidates will also be tested during their probation as to their proficiency in Riding.

The examinations in riding will be held as follows:—

(1) Shortly after the result of the Open Competitive Examination has been declared, or at such time or times as the Commissioners may appoint during the course of the probationary year.

(2) Again, at the time of the Final Examination. Candidates who may then satisfy the Commissioners that they are sufficiently at home in the saddle for the efficient performance of all the duties of the Civil Service of India will be awarded marks ranging between 101 and 200 according to the degree of proficiency displayed, to be added to their marks in the Final Examination. Candidates who fall short of this adequate proficiency but show such minimum proficiency as is evidence that with a moderate amount of practice they can attain full proficiency, will receive marks ranging between 1 and 100; they will be allowed to proceed to India and will on their arrival there be subjected to such further tests in riding as may be prescribed by their Government, and shall receive no increase to their initial salary until they have passed such tests to the satisfaction of that Government.

A Candidate who fails at the end of the year of probation to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners that he has reached the minimum standard of proficiency in riding, will be liable to have his name removed from the list of Selected Candidates.

11. The Selected Candidates who, on examination, shall be found to have a competent knowledge of the subjects specified in Regulation 7, and who shall have satisfied the Civil Service Commissioners of their eligibility in respect of nationality, age, health, character, conduct during the period of probation, and ability to ride, shall be certified by the said Commissioners to be entitled to be appointed to the Civil Service of India provided they shall comply with the regulations in force, at the time, for that Service.

12. Persons desirous to be admitted as Candidates must apply on Forms, which may be obtained from "The Secretary to the Civil Service Commissioners, London," at any time after the 1st December, in the year previous to that in which the Examination is to be held. No person will be admitted to the Examination from whom the Secretary to the Civil Service Commissioners has not received on or before the 1st June (or, if that date should fall on a Sunday or public holiday then, on or before the first day thereafter on which their office is open), in the year in which the Examination is to be held, an application, in the handwriting of the Candidate, on the prescribed form.

The Civil Service Commissioners are authorized by the Secretary of State for India in Council to make the following announcements :—

(i.) Selected Candidates will be allotted to the various provinces upon a consideration of all the circumstances, including their own wishes; but the requirements of the Public Service will rank before every other consideration.

(ii.) An allowance amounting to £150 will be given to any Candidate who passes his probation at one of the Universities or colleges which have been approved by the Secretary of State, viz., the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, Dublin, Glasgow, Edinburgh, St. Andrews, Aberdeen and London (University College); Victoria University, Manchester.

This allowance will be paid to the selected Candidate in four instalments on the following dates respectively:—December 24th after his selection, March 25th, June 24th and the date of his signing his covenant on being finally appointed to the Service.

With the final instalment an allowance on account of passage to India will be paid to each newly appointed civilian to the amount of £37 10s. 0d., for passage to Calcutta, Madras or Bombay, and £45 for passage to Rangoon, the Officer then making his own arrangements for his passage.

The payment of each of the first three instalments will be conditional on the receipt, by the Secretary of State, through the Civil Service Commissioners, of a Certificate that the Candidate has fulfilled up to date the requirements of the Authorities, and shown satisfactory conduct at the Authorized University or College; the fourth and final instalment will be paid as soon as the selected Candidate has signed his covenant, and for its payment no certificate from College Authorities will be required.

The whole probation must ordinarily be passed at the same Institution. Migration will not be permitted except for special reasons approved by the Secretary of State.

(iii.) Each Candidate will be required before receiving the first instalment of his allowance to execute an agreement binding himself and one surety, jointly and severally, to refund all monies he may have received from the Secretary of State for India in the event of—

(1) his failure to pass the Final Examination within the time prescribed by the Regulations, and to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners of his fitness for admission to the Civil Service of India, or

(2) his subsequent failure to execute the usual covenant, and to proceed to India, as and when he shall be directed by the Secretary of State for India.

(iv.) All Candidates obtaining Certificates will be also required to enter into covenants by which, amongst other things, they will bind themselves to make such payments as under the rules and regulations for the time being in force, they may be required to make towards their own pensions or for the pensions of their families. The stamps payable on these covenants amount to £1.

(v) The seniority in the Civil Service of India of the Candidates obtaining Certificates will be determined according to the order in which they stand on the list resulting from the combined marks of the Open Competitive and Final Examinations.

(vi.) Candidates obtaining Certificates will be required to report their arrival in India within such period after the grant of their Certificates of Qualification as the Secretary of State may in each case direct.

(vii) Candidates who fail to satisfy the Civil Service Commissioners at the Final Examination held in any year will be definitely rejected, and will not be allowed to present themselves for re-examination, unless it shall appear to the Secretary of State in Council, after reference to the Civil Service Commissioners, that such failure is due to circumstances wholly exceptional and beyond the control of the candidate.

Syllabus of any Open Competitive Examination for the Civil Service of India, Clerkships (Class I) in the Home Civil Service, and Eastern Cadetships in the Colonial Service that may be held in the year 1915, and of any other competition that may be held in combination therewith.

In view of the importance of legible handwriting in the public service, Candidates are warned that the provision as to deductions for bad handwriting in these competitions will be strictly enforced

Candidates are warned that full marks cannot be obtained on any paper unless the whole of it is answered, or, in cases where the number of questions to be answered is specified, unless the full number specified is answered.

English Composition.—An Essay to be written on one of several specified subjects.

Sanskrit Language and Literature.—Translation from Sanskrit; composition in Sanskrit; Sanskrit Literature, including the life, thought, and antiquities of Ancient India, together with such knowledge of history as bears upon the subject; questions on the Sanskrit Language (including questions on Philology).

Composition will be required in Classical Sanskrit alone; elsewhere Vedic Sanskrit is also included.

Candidates are expected to make a special study of the Seventh Mandala of the Rig-veda, but other Vedic hymns may also be set in the examination.

Arabic Language and Literature.—Translation from Arabic; set composition and free composition in Arabic; Arabic Literature, including the life and thought of the Arabs as shown in the literature, together with such knowledge of history as bears upon the subject; questions on the Arabic language (including questions on Philology).

Greek Literature.—Questions on the Greek Language (including questions on Philology), Literature, and Antiquities.

Latin Literature.—Questions on the Latin Language (including questions on Philology) and on Roman Literature and Antiquities.

English Language and Literature.—The Examination will be in two parts. In the one Candidates will be expected to show a general acquaintance with the course of English Literature, as represented in the chief writers in verse and prose, between the reign of Edward III and the death of Queen Victoria.

A minute and detailed knowledge will not be looked for in this part of the Examination. But its aim will be to test how far the Candidates have studied at first hand the chief productions of the greatest English writers, and are acquainted with the leading characteristics of their thought and style, and with the place which each of them occupies in the history of English Literature.

The other part of the Examination will relate to one of the following periods, which will follow each other year by year in rotation.

Period I: 1360 to 1600, Chaucer to Spenser.

Period II 1600 to 1660, The later Elizabethans.

Period III 1660 to 1744, The age of Dryden and Pope.

Period IV 1744 to 1800, From the death of Pope to Cowper.

Period V 1800 to 1832, Nineteenth Century writers to the death of Scott.

Period VI 1832 to 1892, From the death of Scott to the death of Tennyson.

The Examination in this part will require from the Candidates a more minute acquaintance with the history of the English Language and Literature, as illustrated in the chief works produced in each period, and will be based to a considerable extent, but by no means exclusively, on certain books specified each year by the Commissioners. The names and other indications placed beside the dates are intended to suggest the general character of the literary development of the period, and, consequently, the natural limits of the Examination. All the works of Shakespeare and Milton, for example, will be regarded as falling within the period 1600 to 1660; all the works of Wordsworth and Coleridge within the period 1800 to 1832; all the works of Carlyle, Landor, and Macaulay within the period 1832 to 1892.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 24th October 1914.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was insignificant. Planting of winter rice has been completed. Harvesting of ground nut and plucking of cotton are progressing. Ploughing for upland highland crops is in progress. The condition of crops is satisfactory. The health of cattle is good. The price of unhusked rice continues below normal but district markets are firm. Arrivals in Rangoon are upto average for the last two to three weeks.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable with some light rain in places. Harvesting of autumn rice is approaching completion. Plucking and manufacture of tea, ploughing for and sowing of mustard and pulses are still in progress. Prospects of tea, winter rice, cotton and sugarcane are fair to good. The average price of common rice shows a tendency to fall. Cattle disease is reported from one district.

Bengal.—During the week under review practically no rain fell throughout the Province. Rain is badly wanted everywhere for winter rice and also for sowing of spring crops. Winter rice on high lands is reported to be withering in places. The prospects of sugarcane are good. Harvesting of jute is almost finished and steeping and washing are also approaching completion. Injury to winter rice by insect pests continues to be reported from Midnapore. Cattle disease is reported from ten districts. The average price of common rice remains stationary as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—There was no rain during the week except very light showers in parts of Cuttack, Angul, Puri and Bhagalpur. Preparation of fields and sowing of spring crops continue but progress of the operation is being restricted in some districts for want of moisture. Rain is urgently wanted for the standing paddy crops in the Bihar and Orissa districts and also in parts of Chota Nagpur. Crops are suffering for want of moisture in the non-irrigated areas in Patna, Gaya, Saran, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Purnea the Santhal Parganas and Balasore. Locusts have appeared in parts of the Santhal Parganas and have damaged the paddy crop to some extent. Some damage by insect pests is also reported from Balasore and Sambalpur. Sugarcane and vegetables are on the whole doing well. Prospects are generally good in Chota Nagpur and also in greater parts of Orissa. The average price of common rice has risen as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from thirteen districts. Agricultural prospects in the Feudatory States of Orissa are on the whole good.

United Provinces.—During the week under report showers were received in a few districts of the Provinces, otherwise the week was rainless. More rain is still needed in some of the eastern districts for late rice which is being irrigated where practicable. Considerable damage has been done by locusts in some villages of two tahsils of the Banda district. Slight damage to crops by hail and locusts is also reported from four other districts. The extent of damage recently done by floods to crops in two tahsils of Sitapur has been ascertained to be about ten annas. Harvesting of autumn crops, picking of cotton and preparation of land for spring crops continue. Sowing is also in progress. Standing crops are generally doing well and prospects are good. Some cattle disease is reported from a number of districts. The condition of agricultural stock is on the whole good. Fodder and water are sufficient. Market supplies are ample. Prices are for the most part stationary.

Punjab.—Slight showers fell in parts of all the reporting districts except in a few districts in the South East and South West. The condition of cotton, sugarcane and other standing irrigated crops is good. Unirrigated crops are in fair to good condition. Picking of cotton and reaping of other autumn crops continue. The yield of cotton is generally average to good and of other crops normal on irrigated and below normal to normal on unirrigated areas. Ploughings for and sowings of wheat, barley, gram and other spring crops are in progress and are normal. Germination is good. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices of wheat range between normal and warning rates and of other grains between warning and scarcity rates.

North-West Frontier Province.—Slight rain fell at certain stations. The weather is cloudy and temperate. Crops are good on irrigated but average on unirrigated lands. Crops have been somewhat damaged by locusts in several villages of Dera Ismail Khan. The Paharpur Canal is running. Cutting of autumn crops, picking of cotton and sowing of spring crops continue. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are high but are falling in the case of barley and maize in Peshawar and rising in the case of gram and wheat in Dera Ismail Khan.

Jammu.—The rainfall was slight. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 10 to 18 and maize from 13 to 24 seers per rupee. Standing crops have been slightly damaged in the Rampur, Rajouri and Jasmergarh tahsils by hail storm but in the other tahsils of the Province their condition is good. Cattle disease of a mild type prevails in the Udhampur, Rampur, Rajouri and Riasi tahsils. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—The rainfall was insignificant. Crops have been gathered in Baramula and the outturn is average. Sowings are in progress. Cattle disease is reported in Uttermachipura and Sripartabsinghpura. Prices have slightly fallen in Baramula and are normal elsewhere. Fodder and water are sufficient.

Rajputana.—During the week slight rain fell in Jaipur. The weather is clear and temperate. Harvesting of autumn crops and sowing of spring crops are in progress. Standing crops and their prospects are good except in Jaisalmer and Karauli where locusts are reported to be doing damage. Cattle are in good condition. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are generally high and stationary.

Central India.—The rainfall was slight in the Mehidpur district of Indore and in the Datia, Baoni, Sarila and Garrauli States of the Bundelkhand Agency. The rainfall was sufficient except in parts of Bundelkhand. Harvesting of autumn crops is in progress in Bundelkhand and in the Southern States. Sowing of spring crops has commenced in the Southern States and Malwa and is in progress elsewhere. Standing crops are generally good. Crops have been damaged in parts of Datia by insects and in Lughasi for want of rain. Cattle disease prevails in a village of the Mehidpur district of Indore and in parts of the Naged State of Baghelkhand. The condition of cattle is good elsewhere. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. Prices are rising in Gwalior, Bhopal, Baghelkhand and in the Orchha and Datia States of Bundelkhand, are falling in the Sarila and Gaurihar States of Bundelkhand, are fluctuating in the Bijawar and Baoni States of the Bundelkhand and are steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—The weather has been clear and warm and occasionally cloudy but the nights and mornings are cool. Harvesting of autumn crops and sowing of spring crops continue. Germination hitherto is satisfactory. Standing crops are in good condition and prospects are excellent. The supply of fodder and water is adequate. Agricultural stock is in good condition. Variations in prices are unimportant but wheat shows a tendency to rise in places.

Feudatory States.—Jashpur received half an inch of rain. Standing crops are in good condition and of spring crops sowings are in progress. The price of rice fell by 2 seers per rupee in Nandgaon.

Bombay.—The week was practically rainless. More rain is needed for spring crops in Satara, Dharwar, Kolhapur, two talukas and two pethas of Poona, two talukas of Sholapur and six talukas of Belgaum. Crops are generally good except for slight damage by insects and adverse winds in some talukas of the Upper Sind Frontier, by rats in one taluka of Thar and Parkar, Maira and two States of Rewa Kantha, by locusts in two talukas of Karachi, Thar and Parkar and by insufficient rain in one taluka and two mahals of Karachi and one taluka and one petha of Poona. Harvesting continues. Picking of cotton is progressing in Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar, Nawabshah, Khandesh, Ahmednagar and Kathiawar. Spring sowings generally continue in the Presidency proper. The fodder supply is sufficient except in the area affected by floods and in the hilly tracts of Karachi, one taluka of Thar and Parkar, Nawabshah and Poona. Cattle are in good condition. Agricultural stock is sufficient except in Ahmednagar and Poona. Drinking water is adequate. Irrigation water is generally sufficient. Prices have fallen in Sind, Gujarat, the Deccan and are steady elsewhere. The numbers on gratuitous relief during the week ending 24th October were Bijapur 234.

ANNUAL REPORT

ON

THE POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS OF INDIA

FOR THE YEAR

1913-14.

No. 932 s.-B.P., dated Simla, the 19th October 1914.

FROM—THE HON'BLE MR. W. MAXWELL, C.I.E., M.V.O., I.C.S., DIRECTOR-GENERAL OF POSTS AND TELEGRAPHS,

TO—THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

I have the honour to submit the Annual Report on the Posts and Telegraphs of India for the year 1913-14. This is the first combined Report on those two Departments.

2. The administration was in my hands throughout the year. Charge.

POSTS.—GENERAL REMARKS.

3. At the close of 1913-14 there were 93,955 postal officials, 18,946 post offices and 155,806 miles of mail lines. During the year 1,049 million articles, including 25 million registered articles, were posted; stamps worth 2 million pounds sterling were sold for postal purposes; 31 million money orders of the total value of 38 million pounds were issued; a sum of 8 million pounds was collected for tradesmen and others on value-payable articles; 3 million insured articles valued at 48 million pounds were handled; customs duty aggregating £68,948 was realised on parcels and letters from abroad; pensions amounting to £202,475 were paid to Native military pensioners; 12,059 lbs. of quinine were sold to the public. On the 31st March 1914 there were 1,638,735 Savings Bank accounts with a total balance of 15½ million pounds, and General survey.

24,574 Postal Life Insurance policies with an aggregate assurance of 2¼ million pounds. The total revenue and expenditure for the year, after making the various administrative adjustments, amounted to £2,536,305 and £2,261,302 respectively.

incipal events.

4. The railway strike in southern and western India in May 1913 and the floods in Bengal in August 1913 disorganised the local mail services, but owing to the exertions of the staff the situation in each case was dealt with promptly and effectively.

The time-tables of many mail trains were altered in September 1913 resulting in a general improvement in communications, especially in northern India.

The maximum weight of pattern packets for transmission by the inland post was raised from 80 to 200 tolas.

The new district of Putao formed on the Chinese frontier of Burma was provided with combined post and telegraph offices at Putao, Konglu and Laza and was connected with Myitkina by mail lines nearly 200 miles long.

The large concentration of troops at Dacca in January and February 1914 necessitated special postal arrangements, for the efficiency of which the General Officer Commanding conveyed his acknowledgments to the Postmaster-General of the province.

Motor mail services were introduced in Hyderabad (Deccan) and Ootacamund, and the question of replacing horse-vans by motor vehicles for the conveyance of mails in the larger cities generally is under consideration.

5. Increases of pay were granted to 2 head postmasters, 1 deputy postmaster, 520 sub-postmasters, 599 branch postmasters, 651 clerks and sorters, 3,633 postmen and village postmen, 1,171 runners and 1,388 other inferior servants.

orking of P. & O. contract.

6. The Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company's steamers carrying the weekly mails from Europe arrived in Bombay on 51 occasions on Friday, the due day, and once on Saturday. This late arrival was due to a delayed departure from Brindisi and bad weather between that place and Port Said.

Particulars of the time occupied in the transit of the mail between London and Bombay are given below :—

Post offices and Postal Communications.

st offices, letter-oxes and village postmen. ppendix I, page)

7. There were 18,946 post offices and 49,131 letter-boxes at the close of the year, or 157 post offices and 607 letter-boxes more than in the preceding year. The number of post offices in charge of schoolmasters and other extra-departmental agents rose from 12,279 to 12,362. The number of village postmen was 8,234 against 8,190 in 1912-13.

stal communica-ions. ppendix I, page)

8. The total length of all mail lines by road, rail, river or sea was 155,806 miles, representing a net increase of 1,31 miles, as follows :—

Postal Articles and Postage Stamps.

9. The total number of postal articles of all kinds, excluding money orders, transmitted during the year is estimated at 1,050 millions, being 35 millions more than in the preceding year, as detailed below : Statistics of postal articles. (Appendix II, page 21.)

Grand Total ...	1,049,921,980	+35,133,535	+3·46

There was an increase in all classes of articles except unpaid letters, the marked decrease in which is, of course, a tendency in the right direction.

The diagram on the adjoining leaf shows graphically the growth of postal traffic in its principal branches since 1879-80.

10. It is computed that of the total of 1,080 million articles and money orders which were posted 99·79 per cent were actually delivered or paid as compared with 99·75 per cent in the preceding year. Delivery work.

11. The following details show the work done by Dead Letter Offices :— Work of Dead Letter Offices. (Appendix III, page 22.)

	1912-13.	1913-14.
Postal articles received in Dead Letter Offices—total number	9,294,168	9,706,858
Redirected to addressees	37 per cent.	41 per cent.
Redirected to senders	42 „	39 „
Finally treated as undeliverable to either addressees or senders	2,281,494	2,156,411

This last figure includes a large number of articles which bore no address. In Bengal, Madras and Bombay alone 129 such articles, many containing money or valuables, were posted every day on an average. In articles opened by the five larger Dead Letter Offices, cheques, hundis, currency notes, bills of exchange, coins and other property of the nominal value of R6½ lakhs were found, and the great majority of these were successfully redirected to the addressees or the senders.

Foreign correspondence. (Appendix IV, page 28.)

12. It is estimated that the total number of letters, postcards and packets sent and received by the foreign post was 69 millions as compared with 64 millions in 1912-13. Of the total, 43 millions were exchanged with the United Kingdom, India receiving 28 millions from that country and sending 15 millions. In the case of other countries the receipts, 12 millions, were more than balanced by the despatches, 13 millions. In particular classes of articles a striking difference occurs between the number of newspapers and book and sample packets coming into and leaving India, the approximate figures being 19 millions and 7 millions respectively. Of these 19 millions received 14 came from the United Kingdom, while of the 7 millions despatched 2 were for that country.

Foreign parcels. (Appendix IV, page 28.)

13. The total number of foreign parcels sent and received rose from 889,781 to 994,921, of which more than half were exchanged with the United Kingdom.

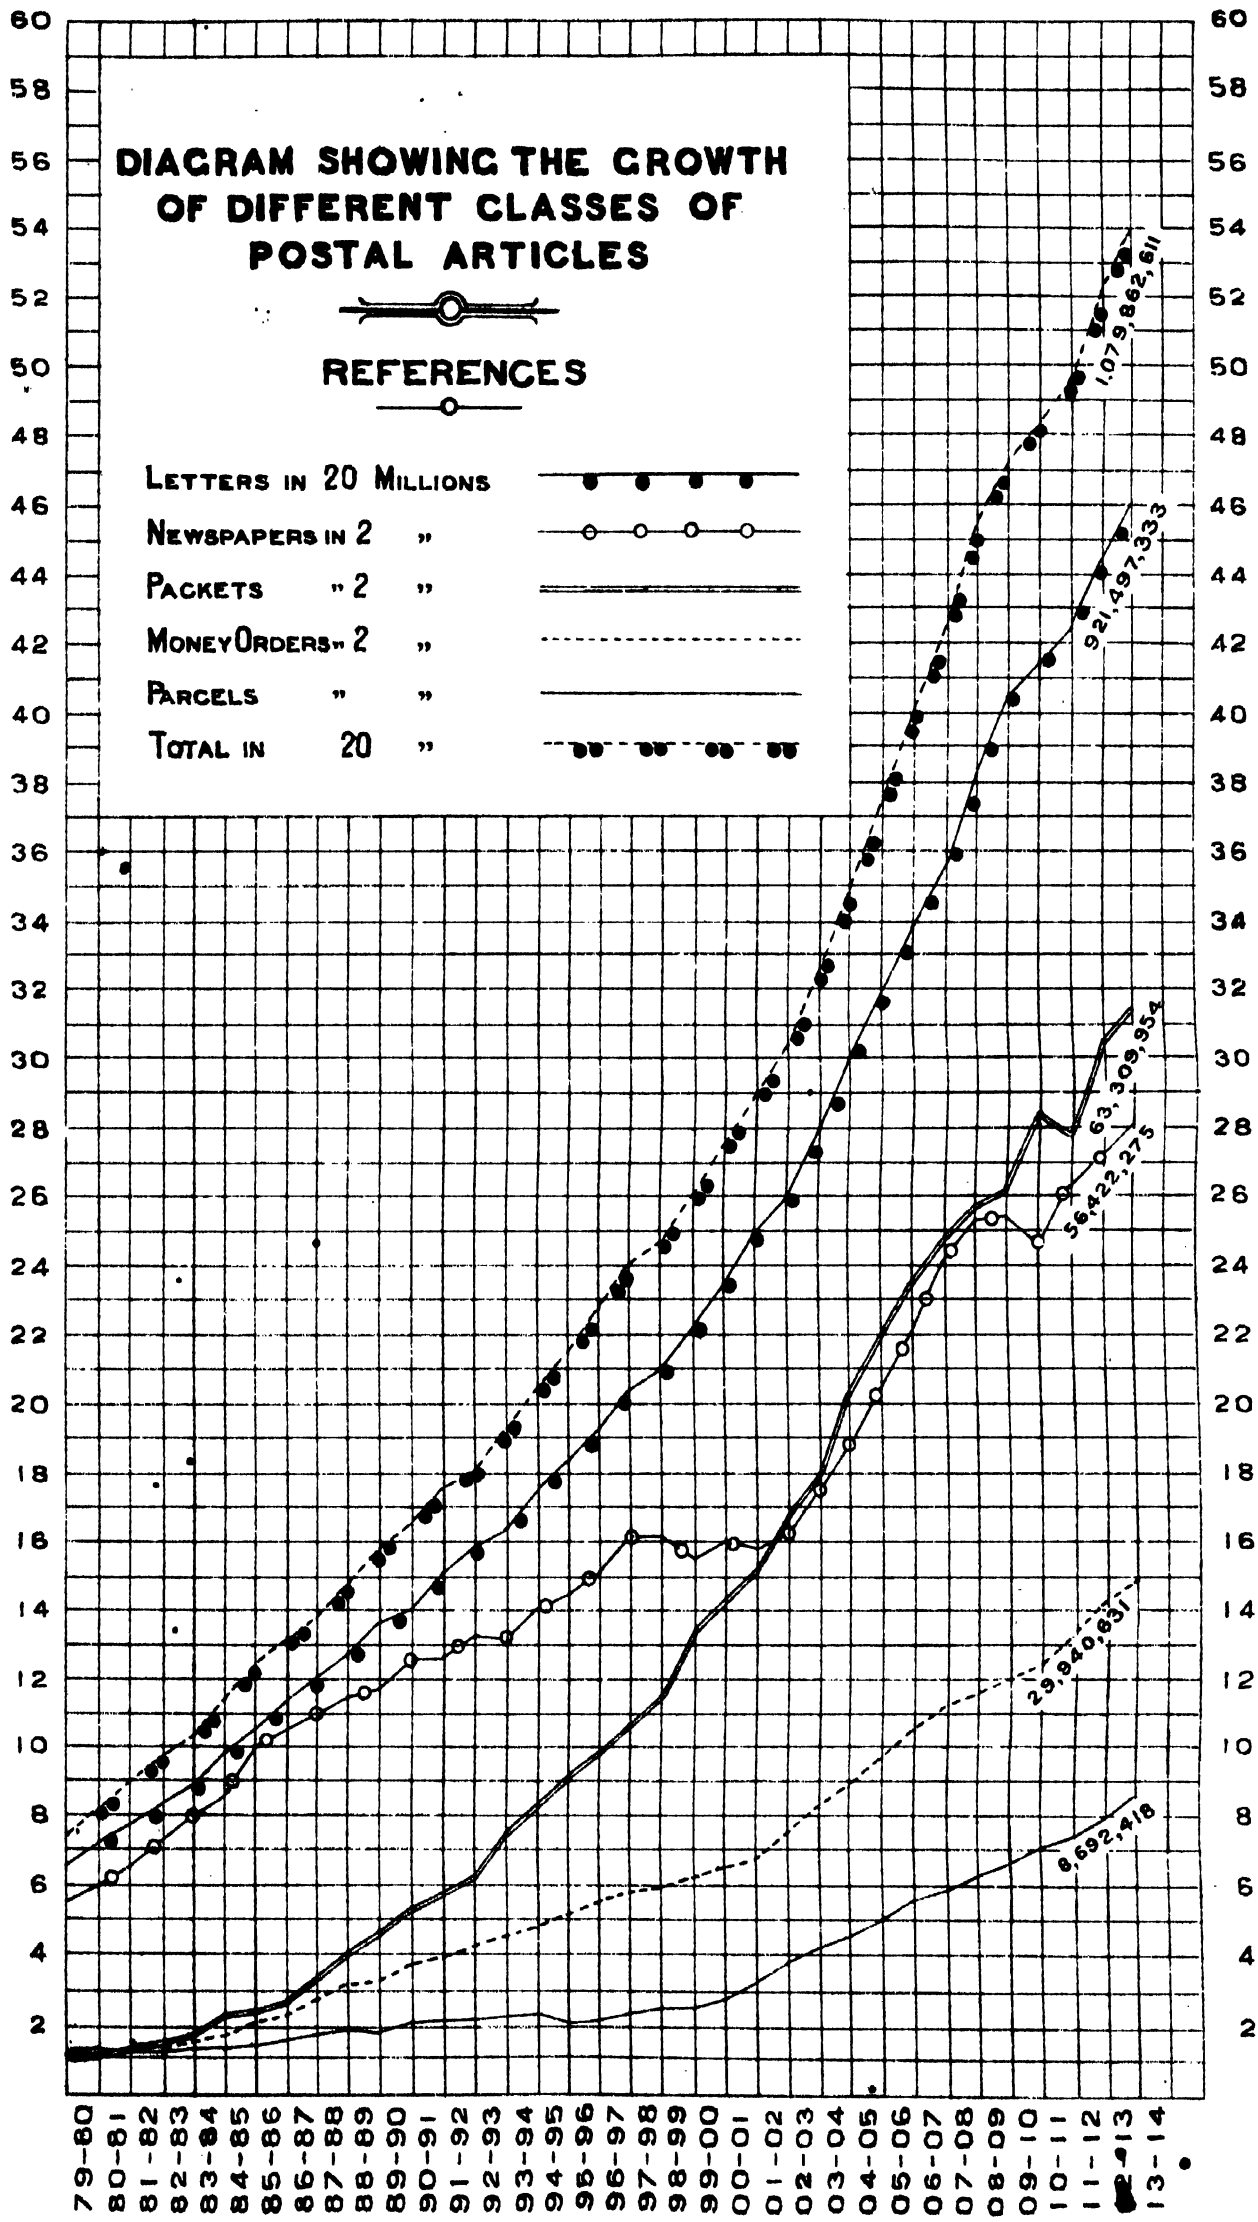
14. The aggregate value of stamps issued for sale was—

Ordinary postage stamps and postal stationery ... R3 crores 98 lakhs—increase R17 lakhs.



Service stamps and stationery ... R56½ lakhs—increase R2¾ lakhs.

The varieties of ordinary postage stamps and postal stationery which commanded specially high sales were as follows:—

	1912-13.	1913-14.
¼ anna ordinary adhesive stamp ...	238	180
½ anna ordinary adhesive stamp ...	135	145
¼ anna single postcard	113	140
1 anna ordinary adhesive stamp ...	79	84
Inland reply postcard	42	70
Small ½ anna envelope	67	67

The new and larger Georgian postcards which were issued for the first time during the preceding year were in great demand, and their popularity is reflected both in the increased sales of postcards and in the diminished sales of ¼ anna ordinary adhesive stamps, which however continued to hold the lead. For the rest sales increased to a fair extent generally, the few exceptional cases calling for no remarks.

Stamp booklets, which were introduced in 1907, are becoming increasingly popular, the total number sold having risen from 1,884,781 in 1911-12 to 2,438,100 in 1913-14.

In addition to postage stamps, non-judicial and court-fee stamps are sold by many post offices but, except in Burma, postmasters act as private vendors of these stamps, which do not form part of the Post Office balance. In Burma, where such stamps are kept by postmasters in the same way as postage stamps, the sales amounted to R85,482.

INSURED AND VALUE-PAYABLE POST.

Insurance business.

15. The number of insured letters and parcels posted was 2,941,204 of the aggregate declared value of R73 crores, being an increase of 234,768 in number and of R6 crores in value. The insurance fees realised amounted to R9½ lakhs, or about R1 lakh more than in 1912-13.

Claims for compensation.

16. The number of claims for compensation received in respect of insured articles was 270, of which 133 were admitted as well-grounded. The total amount paid as compensation was R31,101 as against R23,073 in 1912-13. Recoveries to the extent of R11,557 were however made, so that the net loss to the Department was R19,544 as compared with R12,012 in the preceding year.

Value-payable business.

17. The total number of value-payable articles posted advanced from 8,815,915 to 9,572,023 or by 8 per cent, while the aggregate amount specified for recovery grew from R11 crores to R12½ crores, a rise of 14 per cent. The increase extended to all classes of value-payable articles.

In Calcutta alone 2,629,587 value-payable articles were posted, and the Department realised for the tradesmen of that city a total sum of R3,30,65,373. Corresponding figures for the city of Bombay were 1,260,985 articles and R1,74,24,902 collected.

The number of value-payable articles despatched from India to Ceylon was 132,667 of the aggregate value of R12,03,110 as compared with 116,446 articles valued at R10,80,672 in 1912-13.

MONEY ORDERS.

Money order business generally. (Appendix VI page 3...)

18 The total number of money orders of all kinds, inland and foreign, issued was 31 millions of the aggregate value of R56½ crores as compared with 29½ million money orders for R52¼ crores in the preceding year.

Inland money orders. (Appendices VI (b) and VI (c), pages 26 and 27.)

19. Nearly 30 million inland money orders, ordinary and telegraphic, for a total sum of R51¼ crores were issued, on which R59½ lakhs were realised as commission. There was an increase over the previous year of 4 per cent. in number, 8 per cent in value and 8 per cent in commission.

Telegraphic money orders. (Appendix VI (b), page 26.)

20. The number of telegraphic money orders issued rose from 541,856 to 630,031, while their total value increased from R4 crores 26 lakhs to R4 crores 82 lakhs The postal commission realised on these orders was R4,90,835 as compared with R4,39,692 in the preceding year.

Foreign money orders. (Appendix VI (d), page 28.)

21. In the sterling exchanges which are in force with the United Kingdom and British dominions and with foreign countries generally, the total number of money orders sent and received was 216,662 of the aggregate value of £1,483,689, as against 219,075 orders for £1,399,687 in the preceding year.

Foreign rupee money orders which are exchanged with Ceylon and countries and places in East Africa and the Far East rose from 486,117 to 516,732 in number and from R2 crores 14 lakhs to R2 crores 34 lakhs in value.

Remittances to India considerably exceeded those from this country, the balance in India's favour being about £600,000 on sterling money orders and R2 crores on foreign rupee orders. In the case of the sterling money order exchanges the largest amounts were received from the United Kingdom (£392,974), South Africa (£274,175), Italy (£230,900), Egypt (£58,643) and Germany (£22,804), and in the case of the rupee exchanges from Ceylon (90 lakhs), the Federated Malay States (48 lakhs), the Straits Settlements (32 lakhs), British East Africa (19 lakhs) and German East Africa (10 lakhs).

British postal orders.

22. The following figures show the year's transactions in British postal orders :—

	Sold in India.			Paid in India.
	Number.	Value.	Commission realised.	Number.	Value.
		£	R
	453,943	294,643	18,374	158,540	108,170
Increase	36,414	22,559	1,837	24,839	16,700

Of the number sold two-thirds were for 5, 10 and 20 shillings, although there are 41 denominations ranging from 6d to 21 shillings.

Of the orders paid 21,101 for £9,462 had also been sold in India.

Post Office Savings Bank.

General results (Appendix VII, page 29.)

23. The total number of active accounts was 1,638,725, representing an increase of 4 per cent. The total balance at the credit of depositors rose from R20 crores to R23 crores or by 12 per cent. The average balance at the credit of a depositor was R141 as compared with R132 in 1912-13.

24. A marked development also took place in investments in Government securities through the Post Office, as the following statement shows :— Transactions in Government securities.

	Government Promissory Notes. (Nominal value.)			Investment certificates for fractional amounts of Government Promissory Notes. (Nominal value).
	Purchased.	Sold.	Held in custody of Accountant-General, Post Office and Telegraphs, on behalf of depositors.	Purchased.	Sold.

Percentage of increase	46·02	16·75	22·27	79·12	8·72

25. An estimate of the financial result of working the Savings Bank is subjoined in accordance with Resolution No. 2428, dated the 13th May 1902, of the Government of India in the Finance and Commerce Department :— Financial result of working the Post Office Savings Bank.

Receipts.	Amount.	Expenditure.	Amount.
	R		R
Interest at 3½ per cent. per annum on total balance at credit of depositors.	75,27,870	Interest actually paid to depositors	61,90,960
		Estimated cost of managing the Bank.	9,10,000
Total	75,27,870	Total	71,00,960

The estimated cost of managing the Post Office Savings Bank in the preceding year was R4,90,000 and the increase in 1913-1914 is due to the fact that many items of charge were omitted from the figures of 1912-1913 and previous years, while the estimate in respect of 1913-14, which has been most carefully framed in consultation with the Accountant-General and Postmasters-General, includes a considerable amount of special expenditure on account of important changes in procedure.

Miscellaneous Post Office matters.

26. The surplus of receipts over charges against the Guarantee Fund during the year was R14,583 as against R17,472 in 1912-13. An important change was introduced whereby the limit of the amount payable out of the fund annually in compassionate gratuities to deserving postal officials or their families was raised from 25 to 75 per cent of the surplus for the preceding year. The total sum actually disbursed in this way during 1913-14 was R6,008 as compared with R2,872 in 1912-13. Post Office Guarantee Fund. (Appendix VIII, page 30.)

The balance of the fund was R11,24,994.

27. The number of complaints received from the public was 63,360 against 58,522 in 1912-13. Of the total number only 36 per cent were found to be justified as compared with 37 per cent in 1912-13, while no less Complaints by public.

than 28,982 or 45 per cent proved to be groundless. In the remaining cases either no definite conclusion could be arrived at or the investigation had not been completed by the end of the year.

Compensation for uninsured registered articles.

28. Compensation amounting to R2,348 was paid during the year in respect of inland uninsured registered letters, packets and parcels lost or damaged in course of transmission by post.

Offences by postal officials. (Appendix IX, page 31)

29. The number of postal officials dealt with for criminal offences was 485, of whom 262 were convicted in court and the remainder punished departmentally, as against 425 offenders and 260 convictions in the preceding year. The defalcations and losses amounted to R44,355 as compared with R41,070 in 1912-13. By the end of the year adjustments had been effected to the extent of R21,505, of which only R412 were written off.

Offences by other persons.

30. The offences against the Post Office committed by persons not belonging to the Department included 21 cases of money order fraud, involving a sum of R3,582, and 6 cases of fraudulent withdrawal from the Savings Bank of sums amounting to R975. There were 90 cases of theft of Government money from mails and post offices, in addition to highway robberies which are dealt with in the next paragraph. The total amount stolen was R12,711, of which R5,434 were recovered and R695 written off as finally lost, R6,582 remaining unadjusted at the close of the year.

Highway robberies of mails.

31. There were 25 cases of highway robbery, of which special mention may be made of the following :—

In the Banganapalle State (Madras) a runner was attacked and robbed of the mails. Most of the property was eventually recovered and four men were arrested, but were not convicted. The runner succumbed to his wounds and an extraordinary pension was sanctioned for the support of his family.

A runner in the Bellary district was found murdered near the road, but the mails were untouched.

Afghan and Dir raiders attacked the Chitral mails in the Lowari Pass. The runner and two of the escort of levies were killed and four other levies were wounded. No arrest was made, nor were the mail bags recovered.

Of the total number of cases 13 occurred in British territory and 12 in Native States. The mail was entirely recovered in 6 and partially in 10 cases, the ultimate loss to Government amounting to R1,756. One conviction was obtained out of 6 prosecutions instituted.

Other casualties.

32. In the district of Vizagapatam a sub-postmaster and his wife were murdered by the office postman who decamped with the cash, but was ultimately arrested, found guilty and hanged. Two village postmen were drowned on their beats while fording streams in flood, and three officials engaged in exchanging mails with the Railway Mail Service were run over by trains.

33. On the 31st March 1914 the total number of postal officials was 93,955 compared with 92,870 at the close of 1912-13. The figure includes 292

pensioned soldiers of the Native Army and 97 women, of whom 89 were Europeans or Eurasians.

The number of officials dismissed was 515 against 471 in the previous year. Of this number 229 were postmen or village postmen.

The total number of Burmans employed was 632 compared with 649 in the previous year and 497 in 1911-12, and every effort is being made to induce them to take service in the Post Office.

Buildings.

34. The most important buildings completed were the post offices at Agra, Alipore, Benares City and Mandalay, while substantial alterations and improvements were made in the Bombay General Post Office and the Meerut, Muzaffarnagar and Poona post offices.

Post and Telegraph Administration offices were under construction at Nagpur and Lucknow, and projects for similar offices at Rangoon and Bankipore have been accepted. In the case of Nagpur, Rangoon and Bankipore, the buildings will accommodate the General Post Office as well as the offices of the administration.

Among other buildings under construction may be mentioned those for the Allahabad, Gaya, Ajmer, Bareilly and Sholapur post offices.

Financial results of working the posts in Kashmir.

35. The revenue obtained from post offices situated in the Kashmir and Jammu State was R2,51,278 as compared with R2,27,402 in 1912-13 and R2,22,140 in 1911-12, while the expenditure amounted to R2,41,406 against R2,37,041 in 1912-13 and R2,46,718 in 1911-12. There was thus a surplus of R9,872, which was due mainly to increased sales of stamps.

Non-postal Branches of the Post Office.

Post Office Insurance Fund. (Appendices XII, pp. 82 and 83.)

36. New Life Insurance and Endowment Assurance policies numbered 2,126 of the aggregate value of R27,00,231 against 1,920 for R26,85,000 in 1912-13. 2,034 were taken out by pure Asiatics and 3 by women, making 28 female policy holders in all.

One new contract for a monthly allowance was entered into, the amount secured being R 4.

One Life Annuity was also purchased from the Post Office under Article 807 of the Civil Service Regulations.

The total sum realised on account of premia on old and new policies taken together amounted to R13,59,116 as compared with R12,97,702, the revised figure for the previous year. Claims to the extent of R7,79,182 were discharged as compared with R5,99,666 in 1912-13, while 436 policies representing a gross sum of R4,54,299 lapsed, were surrendered or cancelled.

Receipt of salt revenue.

37. The Post Office continued to act as an agent for the receipt of salt revenue at certain selected offices in the Punjab and North-West Frontier, United Provinces, Bengal and Central Circles. Authority to receive salt revenue was withdrawn from 38 post offices in the Central Circle, as no business had been transacted through those offices during the previous two years; but in the remaining offices there was an appreciable increase in the work, as shown by the following figures :—

		1912-13.	1913-14.
Post Offices authorised to receive salt revenue ...	Number	308	273
Indents received	„	2,245	2,651
Quantity of salt indented for	Maunds	634,697	731,558
Value of salt indented for	₹	7,32,319	8,50,844
Postal commission realised	₹	1,411	1,930

Sale of quinine.

38. The quantity of quinine obtained for sale to the public was 12,059lbs. as compared with 10,694lbs. in 1912-13. This increase of 1,365lbs. following on one of 1,132lbs. in the preceding year seems to show that, notwithstanding the spread of dispensaries and hospitals, the Post Office with its ubiquitous agency still continues to play an important part in the distribution of the drug.

Payment of Native military pensioners.

39. The number of pensioners of the Native Army whose pensions were paid through the agency of the Post Office in the Punjab and North-West Frontier was 40,996 as compared with 38,282 in 1912-13, the amount disbursed being ₹30,37,129 against ₹28,77,665 in the previous year. The Post Office received ₹22,778 as commission for this special service.

Financial Results of the Post Office.

40. The Post Office Accounts show the following results :—

	Receipts.	Charges.	Surplus.
1912-13	3,39,17,726	2,95,80,116	43,37,610
1913-14	3,61,35,526	3,05,44,739	55,90,787

After allowing for the sum of ₹8,29,305 charged against the Post Office in the Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Government of India and after making the usual adjustments, notably in connection with free services rendered by or to the Department, the net surplus is ₹41,25,042 as compared with ₹28,02,918 for the previous year. This amount is exclusive of any credit for the maintenance of unremunerative post offices and lines required for military or political purposes.

TELEGRAPHS.—General Remarks.

General survey

41. At the close of 1913-14 there were 11,982 telegraph officials, of whom 80 were women. The total number of telegraph offices was 12,707, of which 10,340 were open for public business. Of these, 249 were departmental offices, 3,147 were combined post and telegraph offices, 6,938 were railway and 6 canal offices.

During the year 16,864,178 telegrams were transmitted over the lines of the Department, being 1,099,913 more than in 1912-13.

The telegraph system was extended by 2,731 miles of line and 10,767 miles of wire and cable and consisted on the 31st March 1914 of 81,593 miles of line and 321,801 miles of wire and cable, of which 99,845 miles of wire and cable were used by railways, 10,604 for canals, 21,945 for telephone exchanges and private lines and 189,407 for departmental purposes.

The number of instruments of all kinds rented from the Department was 26,374, of which 7,452 were on railway, 1,262 on canal and 17,660 on private lines.

The total receipts of the Telegraph Department were R1 crore 55 lakhs against working charges amounting to R1 crore 36 lakhs.

The chief items of revenue were fees on telegrams R1,16,69,184; claims from railways and canals R28,83,398; claims from guarantors R85,166; rent for telephone connections R7,44,497 and royalties from telephone companies R82,852.

The total number of signalling operations entailed in the transmission of all telegrams from the office of origin to the office of destination was 85,730,358, giving an average of 5·08 operations per telegram against 4·96 for 1912-13.

Statistics taken for 85 of the principal offices showed that 37 per cent of the telegrams accepted for despatch were transmitted within 10 minutes of booking, and 50 per cent within 20 minutes, while 81 per cent of the telegrams received for delivery were sent out to the addressees within 10 minutes of arrival.

Principal events.

42. The experimental amalgamation of posts and telegraphs in the Bombay and Central Circles continued to work satisfactorily, and in February 1914 the Secretary of State for India communicated his approval to the complete fusion of the two Departments from the 1st April 1914. The conspicuous feature of the scheme has been the co-ordination and closer co-operation of the Post Office and the Telegraph Department.

The new central telegraph office at Calcutta was opened to the public, and that city may now claim to have one of the finest and most up-to-date telegraph offices in the East.

The more important departmental offices were supplied with specially designed typewriters, with the result that a large proportion of the telegrams delivered to the public in the larger cities are now typewritten.

In connection with the formation of the new district of Putao in the north of Burma 223 miles of wire were erected for the Local Government, which conveyed its acknowledgments for the work done by the staff.

By laying an uninsulated wire on the snow over the Burzil Pass it was found practicable to provide an alternative telegraphic route between Gilgit and Srinagar, and thus avoid risking the lives of the staff for the purpose of removing interruptions to the aerial wire during the avalanche season.

The Lahore wireless station collaborated with the Italian Scientific Expedition under Count de Filippi for the purpose of determining accurately the longitude of certain places in the Himalayas.

A number of telegraphists and Post Office signallers were lent to the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway during the serious strike in May and June 1913, and the valuable services rendered by them were acknowledged by the railway authorities and the Government of India.

A cable was laid between Penang and Colombo with an extension to Aden and the effect will be to divert from this country a great deal of the traffic exchanged between countries east and west of India, which has hitherto been transmitted over the lines of this Department. The transit charges received on such traffic yielded a considerable revenue which has been affected seriously, and the opportunity was taken to induce the cable companies concerned to agree to a substantial reduction of 4d. a word in the rates for telegrams exchanged between India and Europe from May 1914. Through wires between Bombay and Madras were also leased to the associated companies to enable them to make the fullest possible use of the Indian route for telegrams between Europe and the Far East.

Certificates in telegraphy were granted to 217 soldiers and 370 Post Office clerks.

To encourage proficiency in the use and care of the Baudot apparatus, sanction was accorded to the grant of a certain number of special allowances tenable by telegraphists who qualify in that branch of work.

The sum of R1,67,172 was disbursed to telegraphists as "pie-money" or extra remuneration for messages disposed of in excess of certain standards.

The co-operative credit society of the Central Telegraph Office at Calcutta increased its shares from 2,000 to 3,000, while similar societies were started and are doing well in the Bombay, Madras, Agra and Lahore offices. Everywhere the staff evince the keenest interest in these beneficient institutions and have spared no pains to make them a real success.

Inland Telegraphs.

Inland telegrams. (Appendix XVII (1), page 42.)

43. The total number of inland telegrams was 14,938,401 and the charges realised amounted to R87,52,111, representing an increase of 7 per cent in number and 8 per cent in value.

State telegrams advanced by 12 per cent in number and 18 per cent in value and private telegrams by 7 per cent in number and 7 per cent in value. Press telegrams showed an increase of 8 per cent in value, but a decrease of 5 per cent in number.

The average value of a State telegram was R0·917 against R0·872 in 1912-13; of a private telegram R0·547 compared with R0·549, and of a press telegram R1·12 against R0·981.

Inland telegraphic money orders. (Appendix XVII(2), page 42.)

44. The number of inland telegraphic money orders rose from 506,436 to 599,896, on which R2,73,728 were realised in telegraph charges compared with R2,42,174 in 1912-13.

Apparatus.

45. The Baudot apparatus proved most useful in the rapid disposal of traffic on busy circuits. It was also successfully worked duplexed between Calcutta and Madras as well as Bombay and Madras, a single wire being thus made to carry 4 messages at a time. In the Bombay Telegraph Office alone 2,557,887 telegrams, representing one-third of the total traffic, were disposed of on Baudot instruments.

An additional Baudot set was brought into use in the Madras office for work with Ceylon.

The standard connections for Duplex-Simplex Repeater stations were considerably simplified.

Combined post and telegraph offices.

46. The total number of combined post and telegraph offices open on the 31st March 1914 was 3,147 with a staff of 4,675 signallers, as against 2,860 offices and 4,443 signallers at the close of the preceding year. There was a net increase of 287 in the number of combined offices as compared with 147 in 1912-13. The delivery staff included 1,173 boy messengers against 1,135 in the preceding year.

Excluding free messages, the total number of telegrams sent from combined offices rose from 8,415,817 to 9,381,484, an increase of 11 per cent. The revenue realised was R52,41,133 or 13 per cent more than in 1912-13, the working charges being R14,87,626 as compared with R14,03,266 in the preceding year.

Telegrams received for delivery from combined offices aggregated 7,982,015 against 7,152,269 in 1912-13.

Postal receiving offices.

47. In addition to telegrams sent and received from combined post and telegraph offices, 69,281 telegrams yielding R38,799 in revenue were booked at other post offices for transmission by post to telegraph offices, the corresponding figures for the preceding year being 62,496 telegrams and R35,654 realised.

The number of telegrams received at post offices in the Persian Gulf for the Indo-European Telegraph Department was 445 against 260 in 1912-13, the fees obtained amounting to R3,986.

Foreign Telegrams.

Foreign telegrams generally. (Appendix XVII (3), page 42)

48. The total number of foreign telegrams dealt with rose from 1,606,149 to 1,658,296, being an increase of 3 per cent. The receipts fell from R26,45,183 to R25,79,064 or by 2 per cent, owing to the diversion of through traffic to the new Aden-Colombo-Penang cable referred to in paragraph 42.

State foreign telegrams showed an increase of 3 per cent in number, with a decrease of ·56 per cent in words and of 2 per cent in value.

Private foreign telegrams paid at full rates rose by 2 per cent in number and 5 per cent in words, but fell by 3 per cent in value.

Deferred foreign telegrams in plain language at half rates are growing rapidly in popularity, having increased by 58 per cent in number, 63 per cent in words and 72 per cent in value.

In foreign press telegrams there was an increase of 15 per cent in number and 9 per cent in words, but a decrease of 8 per cent in value.

Telegrams and telegraphic money order advices exchanged with Ceylon.

49. The number of telegrams originating in India for delivery in Ceylon and vice versâ was 227,480, being an increase of 24 per cent.

The number of telegraphic money order advices exchanged with Ceylon rose from 24,673 to 28,959 or by 17 per cent, largely as a result of the reduction of charges made in the preceding year.

Mixed postal and telegraph service with the United Kingdom.

50. The mixed postal and telegraph service between India and the United Kingdom declined further, only 248 messages having been sent and 27 received in that way as compared with 278 and 65 respectively in the preceding year. The service will probably fall into disuse with the growth of the system of deferred foreign telegrams.

Interruptions to telegraphic communication with foreign countries.

51. There was no total interruption of cable communication with Europe viâ Suez, but the route viâ Teheran was interrupted for 224 hours, which is the same number as in the preceding year. Interruptions on the Turkish route lasted for 390 hours as compared with 616 hours in 1912-13.

Communication with Siam over the Moulmein-Bangkok line viâ Kanburi was interrupted beyond the Indian frontier for 173 hours as against 225 hours in the preceding year, and within the Indian frontier for 252 hours as compared with 132 hours in 1912-13. The line viâ Raheng was interrupted for 451 hours outside and 139 within India, as against 489 and 15 hours respectively during the previous year.

Communication with China viâ Bhamo was interrupted beyond India for 2,310 hours as against 2,673 hours in 1912-13, and within Indian limits for 56 hours compared with 48 hours in that year.

Wireless Telegraphy.

Progress in wireless system.

52. The total number of wireless stations rose from 15 to 17, of which 10 were coast stations open for general public correspondence with ships at sea. The coast stations dealt with 76,526 messages of all kinds compared with 68,729 in 1912-13, the number exchanged with ships being 5,632 as against 3,857 in that year.

The Quetta and Peshawar stations of the inland wireless system were completed, while considerable progress was made with the stations at Madras and Secunderabad. The two new stations are equipped with Marconi apparatus of improved type, with which it has been possible to receive readable signals during periods of atmospheric disturbances and to exchange messages at comparatively long ranges, as for instance between Quetta and Bombay, a distance of 860 miles, and Peshawar and Allahabad, also over 800 miles.

It has been decided to erect a Marconi wireless station at Rangoon and to re-fit the stations at Port Blair, Victoria Point and Diamond Island with up-to-date installations. The Port Blair station will at the same time be removed to a site which is more suitable for communication with ships at sea in all directions. The apparatus for all these stations have already arrived from England, and when the reconstruction of the system is completed, the existing stations at Bassein and Mergui will cease to be required and will be closed. It is expected that the Rangoon station will be completed by the beginning of November.

Working of wireless stations.

53. The wireless stations worked well throughout the year, but great difficulty was experienced in maintaining communication during times of atmospheric disturbances, which vary for different parts of the country. Thus at Calcutta disturbing conditions prevail from April to June, while at inland stations they extend over the months of May to August. Again, at Bombay and Karachi they are usually less intense than elsewhere. Generally, these disturbances are much more severe in the afternoon than in the morning.

In Burma atmospherics greatly interfered with communication between Mergui and Victoria Point during June 1913.

There were seven breakdowns of apparatus, four occurring at Calcutta and one each at Allahabad, Lahore and Karachi. Arrangements have been made to provide spare transmitting sets in the coast stations to minimise the risk of interruptions to wireless communication.

TELEPHONES.

54. On the 31st December 1913 the number of telephone exchanges established by the Department was 180 having 5,193 connections as against 183 exchanges with 4,313 connections on the corresponding date of the preceding year. In addition there were 740 independent non-exchange circuits connecting 1,530 offices as compared with 663 circuits and 1,248 offices in the preceding year. The number of operators employed in the exchanges worked by the Department was 145. The gross rental obtained on account of all telephone services, except those for railways and canals, rose from R6,76,356 to R7,44,497 and there are indications that the people of this country are now beginning to realise the value of telephones. The rates of charge were revised to meet the convenience of the public and among other changes six-monthly rates were introduced. Statistics of telephones in use.

55. An automatic telephone exchange with 700 lines was successfully installed at Simla and has proved very popular, the public finding it more rapid, efficient and reliable than the old system. Progress in provision of telephonic communication.

A central battery exchange for 600 lines was fitted up at Delhi and one for 200 lines at Raisena, the site of the Imperial capital.

The magneto exchanges at Mandalay, Chittagong, Rawalpindi and Bassein (Burma) were refitted.

A new exchange was established at Dacca. The line-work in connection with an installation at Loyabad in the Bengal coal fields was nearly completed and the exchange has since been opened.

56. At the close of the year the number of telephone exchanges established by licensed telephone companies was 13 having 9,046 connections compared with 13 exchanges and 7,899 connections in 1912-13. The royalties paid to the Department amounted to R 82,852 against R 72,540 in the preceding year. Telephone exchanges established by companies.

CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE.

57. The principal departmental works completed were the following:— New construction and maintenance repairs.

NEW CONSTRUCTION.

	Miles of line.	Miles of wire.
Myitkyina-Putao with branch Langtao-Konglu ...	216	223

EXTRA WIRES.

Calcutta-Rangoon (portions)	492

Calcutta-Gaya	282
Moulmein-Tavoy	199
Chappamukh-Dimapur	102

In addition 350 miles of line and 2,142 miles of wire were reconstructed.

Maintenance repairs were carried out thoroughly and generally the lines of the Department were in excellent condition.

First fitting and fitting of offices.

58. The important work of fitting up the new Central Telegraph Office at Calcutta referred to in paragraph 42 was ably executed by the Technical Branch and the removal from the old office was effected without a hitch.

Electric lights and fans were installed in the Gauhati and Madura telegraph offices; an accumulator plant was provided at Madura and the telegraph offices at Gauhati and Rawalpindi were completely refitted.

Telegraph Stores and Workshops.

Telegraph Stores.

59. The value of the stores in stock at the beginning of the year was R48,00,000. During the year stores worth R47,33,700 were received, of which R15,38,500 represented the cost of articles imported from England ready for issue, R11,16,900 the value of stores transferred from the departmental Workshops, and R1,66,500 of purchases in India. Issues amounted to R45,24,700, including stores worth R1,79,200 transferred to other Government Departments or sold to the public. The stock remaining in hand on the 31st March 1914 was worth R50,09,000.

Telegraph Workshops.

60. The value of the year's outturn from the Telegraph Workshops rose from R10,25,000 to R14,18,000.

A vacuum insulating plant for treating coils of electrical instruments and machinery so as to obtain more perfect insulation was brought into use and worked satisfactorily.

The nickel-plating plant installed in February 1913 gave entire satisfaction and resulted in a saving of R13,800 for the year.

The value of stores consumed was R10,14,000, of which R2,63,000 represented local purchases. The pig iron, mild steel sections, plumbago, coke and coal used are now all of Indian production. Of English stores, 2,327 tons of steel sheets and 375 tons of zinc spelter were used in making telegraph poles.

Financial results of the Telegraph Department.

Financial position of the Telegraph Department.

61. The Telegraph Accounts show the following results :—

	Receipts.	Revenue Charges.	Surplus.
	R	R	R
1912-13	1,52,79,958	1,28,21,644	24,58,314
1913-14	1,55,54,029	1,36,56,203	18,97,826

The decrease in the surplus is mainly due to the fact that, in consequence of the adoption by railways of the official year for purposes of account, 5 quarters' rent for wires and instruments was recovered from them in 1912-13.

Revenue charges include gratuities, leave allowances paid out of India and the average capitalised value of pensions paid to telegraph officials, while receipts include the pro forma value of news-free and concessional traffic. No account, however, is taken of the services rendered by the Department in the care and maintenance of large quantities of mobilisation telegraph stores which are kept at the disposal of the military authorities at various centres; nor is any allowance made for the very heavy expenditure, both initial and recurring, that has had to be incurred in recent years in connection with the erection and upkeep of wireless telegraph stations for which there is practically no monetary return.

Expenditure debitable to Capital Account was incurred during the year to the extent of R37,17,170, bringing the grand total of such expenditure to R12,16,90,789.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

W. MAXWELL,

Director-General of Posts and Telegraphs.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations, and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published early in September next by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and will be procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There will be two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited and considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

NOTIFICATION.

Delhi, the 3rd November 1914.

No. 820-W.—The following statement, which was published in London on the 1st November 1914, by His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, dated the 31st October 1914, is republished for general information :—

At the beginning of the war the British Government gave definite assurances that if Turkey remained neutral her independence and integrity would be respected during the war and in the settlement of the terms of peace. In this France and Russia concurred. The British Government have since then endeavoured with the greatest patience and forbearance to preserve friendly relations in spite of the increasing breaches of neutrality on the part of the Turkish Government at Constantinople in the case of the German vessels in the Straits. On Friday, the 30th of October 1914, the British Government learnt with the utmost regret that the Turkish ships of war had, without any declaration of war, without warning and without provocation of any sort, made wanton attacks on the open undefended towns in the Black Sea of a friendly country, thus committing an unprecedented violation of the most ordinary rules of international law, comity and usage. Ever since the German men-of-war, the Goeben and Breslau, took refuge at Constantinople, the attitude of the Turkish Government towards Great Britain has caused surprise and some uneasiness. Promises made by the Turkish Government to send away the German officers and crews of the Goeben and Breslau have never been fulfilled. It was well known that the Turkish Minister of War was decidedly pro-German in his sympathies, but it was confidently hoped that the saner counsels of their colleagues, who had had experience of the friendship which Great Britain has always shown towards the Turkish Government, would have prevailed and prevented that Government from entering upon the very risky policy of taking a part in the conflict on the side of Germany. Since the war German offi in large numbers have invaded Constantinople, have usurped the authority of the Government and have been able to coerce the Sultan's Ministers to take up a policy of aggression. Great Britain, as well as France and Russia, has watched these proceedings patiently, protesting against the many acts which have been constantly committed contrary to neutrality, and warning the Government of the Sultan against the danger in which they were placing the future of the Ottoman Empire. Vigorously assisted by the Ambassadors of Germany and Austria, the German military elements at Constantinople have been persistently doing their utmost to force Turkey into war, both by their activities in the service of the Turks and by the bribes with which they have been so lavish. The Minister of War, with his German Advisers, has lately prepared an armed force for an attack on Egypt. The Mosul and Damascus Army Corps have, since their mobilisation, been constantly sending troops south, preparatory to an invasion of Egypt and the Suez Canal, from Akaba and Gaza. A large body of Bedouin Arabs has been called out and armed to assist in this venture and some of these have crossed the Sinai frontier. Transport has been collected, roads have been prepared up to the frontier of Egypt, and mines have been despatched to be laid in the Gulf of Akaba. The notorious Sheikh Aziz Shawish has published and disseminated through Syria, and probably India, an inflammatory document urging Muhammadans to fight against Great Britain. Doctor Prueffer, who was so long engaged in intrigues at Cairo against the British occupation and is now attached to the German Embassy at Constantinople, has been busily occupied in Syria trying to incite the people to take part in this conflict. Aggressive action was certain to be the result of the activity of the numerous German officers employed in the Turkish Army and acting under the orders of the German Government who have thus succeeded in forcing the hands of the advisers of the Sultan. German intrigue cannot influence the loyalty to Great Britain of the seventy millions of Muhammadans in India and the feeling of the Muhammadan inhabitants of Egypt. They must look with detestation on the misguided action, under foreign influence at Constantinople, which will inevitably lead to the disintegration of the Turkish Empire and which shows such forgetfulness of the many occasions on which Great Britain has shown friendship to Turkey. They must feel bitterly the degeneration of their co-religionists who ought not to have thus been dominated against their will by German influences, and many of them realise that, when Turkey is pushed into war by Germany, they must dissociate themselves from a course of action that is so prejudicial to the position of Turkey itself. The Turkish Government summarily and without notice on Friday shut off telegraphic communication with the British Embassy at Constantinople. This is no doubt the prelude to further acts of aggression on her part and the British Government must take whatever action is required to protect British interests in British territory and also Egypt from attacks that have been made and are threatened.

No. 812-W.—The following public announcement is published for general information :—

In view of the outbreak of war between Great Britain and Turkey, which to the regret of Great Britain has been brought about by the ill-advised, unprovoked and deliberate action of the Ottoman Government, His Excellency the Viceroy is authorised by His Majesty's Government to make the following public announcement in regard to the Holy Places of Arabia including the Holy Shrines of Mesopotamia and the port of Jeddah, in order that there may be no misunderstanding on the part of His Majesty's most loyal Moslem subjects as to the attitude of His Majesty's Government in this war in which no question of a religious character is involved. These Holy Places and Jeddah will be immune from attack or molestation by the British Naval and Military Forces so long as there is no interference with pilgrims from India to the Holy Places and Shrines in question. At the request of His Majesty's Government, the Governments of France and Russia have given them similar assurances.

Harvesting of maize has been completed. Plucking of cotton and harvesting of groundnuts are progressing. The condition of crops is fair. The health of cattle is good. The price of unhusked rice at Rangoon is above normal. The arrivals are small and the market for white rice is quiet.

Assam.—The weather has been seasonable and rainless except in Aijal. Plucking and manufacture of tea, sowing of mustard and pulses, pressing of sugarcane and harvesting of winter rice are in progress. Prospects of tea are good. The outturn of winter rice and sugarcane is fair. The average price of common rice has fallen by nearly 2 per cent. Cattle disease is reported from three districts.

Bengal.—During the week there was no rain throughout the Province except for some slight showers in parts of Darjeeling, Bakarganj and Chittagong. Sowing of spring crops is in brisk progress but rain is wanted for their growth. Harvesting of winter rice is proceeding. Prospects of standing crops are not very favourable for want of rain. Damage to winter rice by insects continues to be reported from Midnapore and Bakarganj. Cattle disease is reported from eleven districts. The average price of common rice has risen by about 0·6 per cent as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa.—There was no rain during the week. Harvesting of paddy is going on. The crop has suffered in places from want of rain. Sowing of spring crops still continues but the operation has been restricted in some districts for want of moisture. Rain is badly needed for the newly sown spring crops in several districts. The average price of common rice has remained almost stationary as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. The condition of standing crops in the Feudatory States of Orissa is generally good but in some States the crops require rain badly.

14. In a cause instituted as in Rule 7 and Rule 8 mentioned, the writ shall be served on the captors.

15. If it is made to appear to the Judge that service in the manner prescribed by these Rules is impracticable, the Judge may make such order for substituted or other service, or for the substitution for service of notice by advertisement or otherwise as may seem just. Every application for substituted service or for the substitution of notice for service shall be supported by an affidavit setting forth the grounds upon which the application is made.

16. Service of a writ may, by leave of the Judge, be allowed out of the jurisdiction.

17. Application for leave to serve a writ out of the jurisdiction shall be upon affidavit, stating that in the belief of the deponent the applicant has good cause for proceeding, and showing in what place or country the person or ship to be served is or probably may be found, and the grounds upon which the application is made.

18. An order giving leave to effect service out of the jurisdiction shall limit a time after such service within which an appearance shall be entered.

19. Where the person to be served out of the jurisdiction is not a British subject, or the ship is not the property of a British subject, notice of the writ and not the writ itself shall be served. Notice in lieu of service shall be served in the manner in which a notice of a writ of summons is served according to the procedure for the time being in force in the High Court. A form of notice in lieu of service will be found in Appendix A, No. 7.

20. Where under the practice of the High Court notice of a writ is served through the diplomatic channel, the notice shall, if the writ is issued by the High Court, be transmitted to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in accordance with such practice, and, if the writ is issued by a Prize Court in a British Possession, be transmitted through the chief executive authority to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, with a request for the further transmission of the same to the Government of the country in which service is to be effected.

21. A writ for condemnation and the fact of service thereof shall be advertised by the Registrar forthwith in one or more of such newspapers and on one or more occasions as he shall think proper.

22. Where a writ is issued on the application of an alien enemy an affidavit shortly stating the grounds of the claim must be filed in the Registry before the writ is issued.

23. Where a writ is issued in respect of a ship purporting to be neutral, notice of the institution of the cause shall be sent by the Registrar to the consular officer of the State to which the ship purports to belong.

ORDER III.

Appearance and Claim.

1. Any person, desiring to enter an appearance in a cause, shall enter an appearance (Appendix A, Form No. 8) in the Registry within eight days after service of the writ, or may by leave of the Court do so at any time before final adjudication. He shall thereupon become a party to the cause.

2. A person, on entering an appearance, shall give notice thereof to the party issuing the writ.

3. Where a person has no usual residence or place of business within the jurisdiction, appearance may be entered for him by the master of the ship or by an agent duly authorised.

4. A party who has entered an appearance may make a claim in one of the forms marked No. 9 (i) to (vii) in Appendix A, with such variations as the circumstances may require.

5. An alien enemy shall, before entering an appearance, file in the registry an affidavit stating the grounds of his claim.

6. Where no appearance has been entered the party issuing the writ may proceed in the cause subject to the filing of an affidavit of service of the writ. See Appendix A, Form No. 10.

ORDER IV.

Affidavit as to Ship Papers.

1. An affidavit as to ship papers shall, unless previously sworn or otherwise ordered by the Judge, be sworn within ten days after the ship is brought in for adjudication or is seized in port.

2. The affidavit shall, with the ship papers exhibited thereto, be filed in the Registry within three days after the same is sworn as aforesaid, or, if sworn before the ship is brought in for adjudication, within three days after the ship is brought in for adjudication.

3. If a captured ship is destroyed or lost, the affidavit as to ship papers shall, with the ship papers exhibited thereto, be filed within three days of the institution of the cause.

4. Where ship papers are in the custody or under the control of any person within the jurisdiction of the Court, the Judge may, on the application of the captor or of a claimant, order the person having such custody or control to bring the papers into Court; and thereupon such person shall bring in all ship papers as exhibits to an affidavit in the form marked No. 11 (iv) in Appendix A.

5. The ship papers shall be exhibited to the affidavit and shall be numbered consecutively; and the person before whom the affidavit is sworn shall initial each of the documents.

6. Every affidavit as to ship papers shall be sworn before a Commissioner appointed to administer oaths, or before any other person lawfully authorized to administer oaths in prize matters, or before the Registrar. The person in charge of the ship, or a person desiring to make an affidavit shall produce to the person before whom the affidavit is sworn all the ship papers (if any) delivered up or found on board the ship.

7. Where ship papers are delivered up or found in ordinary course at the time of capture, the affidavit as to ship papers shall be in the form marked No. 11 (i) in Appendix A.

Where any ship papers have, after being delivered up or found, been lost, mislaid, injured or altered, or where any ship papers are found hidden or concealed, the affidavit shall be in the form marked No. 11 (ii) in Appendix A, with such variations as the facts may require.

Where no ship papers are delivered up or found on board the ship, the affidavit shall be in the form marked No. 11 (iii) in Appendix A.

ORDER V.

Proceedings in case of failure to proceed by Captors.

1. Where a ship has been captured as prize, and still remains detained, and no cause is instituted against it within one month from the time it is so taken or seized, a claimant may, after issuing a writ as provided by Order II, apply for an order for the release of the ship and its restoration to him, and the Judge upon such application may make such order as to the restoration of the ship and as to damages or costs or as to proceeding to judgment as he may think fit.

2. Where a ship has been captured as prize, but has been subsequently released by the captors, or has, by loss, destruction, or otherwise, ceased to be detained by them without proceedings for condemnation having been taken any person interested in the ship wishing to make a claim for costs and damages in respect thereof, shall issue a writ as provided by Order II.

3. Where, after a cause has been instituted, the captors fail to take any of the steps within the respective times provided by these Rules, or, in the opinion of the Judge, fail to prosecute with effect the proceedings for adjudication, the Judge may, upon the application of a claimant who has entered an appearance as provided by Order III, order the ship to be released and to be restored to the claimant, and may make such order as to damages or costs as he may think fit.

4. Any person interested in a ship may, without issuing a writ, under the circumstances stated in Rule 1, provided he does not intend to make a claim for restitution or damages, apply by summons for an order that the captors proceed to adjudication, and the Judge may, on the hearing on such summons, order the captors to proceed to adjudication or make such other order as he may think fit.

ORDER VI.

Discontinuance.

Proceedings may be discontinued by leave of the Judge, and not otherwise; such discontinuance may be in respect of all or any part of the subject matter of the cause. No order for discontinuance shall be made or taken to prejudice the right (if any) of a claimant to costs and damages. Notice of discontinuance (Appendix A, Form No. 12) shall be served on the other parties.

ORDER VII.

Pleadings.

1. A party instituting a cause or making a claim shall, if ordered by the Judge, file a petition in the Registry, and serve a copy on the other parties to the cause. Any party served with a copy of the petition may within seven days file an answer thereto and forthwith serve the same, and there shall be no further pleadings except by order of the Judge.

2. The petition and answer shall be divided into short paragraphs numbered consecutively which shall state concisely the facts, and the effect of the documents, if any, on which the party relies, and shall be signed by the party or his solicitor or counsel.

3. A pleading may at any time be amended by consent of the parties, or by order of the Judge. If a party unreasonably refuses to give his consent he shall be liable to be condemned in the costs occasioned by such refusal.

4. A party may apply to the Judge to decide before the trial of the cause any question of law raised by any pleading, and the Judge shall thereupon make such order as he shall think fit.

5. Any person becoming a party after the filing of a petition, shall, after making a claim, or by leave of the Judge, be entitled to a copy of the petition, and shall within seven days of the receipt thereof plead thereto as in Rules 1 and 2 stated.

Forms of pleadings will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 13 (i) to (iv).

ORDER VIII.

Particulars.

In any cause the Judge may, on the application of any party by summons, order particulars in writing to be delivered by a party upon such terms as he may think just.

Forms of order and of particulars will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 14 and 15.

ORDER IX.

Discovery, Inspection, and Admission of Documents and Facts.

1. Any party to a cause or matter may, upon filing an affidavit, apply to the Judge for an order directing any other party to make discovery on oath of the documents which are or have been in his possession or power, relating to any matter in question therein, and the Judge shall make such order, either generally or limited to certain classes of documents, as he may think fit. Provided that discovery shall not be ordered unless the Judge shall be of opinion that it is necessary either for disposing fairly of the cause or for saving costs.

2. The affidavit of discovery (Appendix A, Form No. 16) shall specify which, if any, of the documents therein mentioned the party objects to produce, and the grounds of his objection.

3. Any party to a cause may, for the purposes of the hearing of a cause, serve a notice (Appendix A, Form No. 17) on any other party to produce, for inspection or for the purpose of being copied, any document in his possession or power relating to any matter in question in the cause.

4. If the party served with notice to produce omits or refuses to do so within the time specified in the notice, the adverse party may apply to the Judge for an order to produce, and the Judge may, if he thinks fit, make such order.

5. Notice to produce documents at the hearing or at an examination of witnesses shall be in the Form No. 18 of Appendix A, with such variations as the circumstances may require.

6. The captor or any party who has entered a claim, or, by leave of the Judge, any other party may inspect in the Registry and take copies of the ship papers filed in the cause.

7. A party may, for the purposes of any hearing of a cause, serve a notice (Appendix A, Form No. 19) on any other party to admit any document or fact, saving all just exceptions, and a party not admitting it after such notice shall be liable for the costs of proving the document or fact; unless at the hearing the Judge shall certify that the refusal or omission to admit was reasonable.

Form of admission of facts will be found in Appendix A, No. 20.

ORDER X.

Arrest of Prize—Warrant.

1. Where a ship is taken as prize and brought into port within the jurisdiction of the Court, or seized as prize in port within such jurisdiction, or having been taken or seized as prize comes or is howsoever within the jurisdiction of the Court, but is not delivered up to the marshal of the Court, the Judge may, after claim made, and upon the application of the claimant, order a warrant for the arrest of the ship to be issued.

2. Where, in any proceeding, it shall be made to appear to the Judge by the Crown or any party to a cause other than a claimant that property taken or seized as prize is within the jurisdiction of the Court, and that it is necessary or desirable that such property should be within the custody of the Court, the Judge may, on the application of the Crown or such party, order a warrant for the arrest of such property to be issued.

3. A warrant (Appendix A, Form No. 21) for the arrest of property shall be issued only on the order of the Judge.

No warrants shall be issued for the arrest of property until an affidavit has been filed by the party applying for the warrant as herein-after prescribed.

4. The affidavit shall state the grounds upon which the application is made and that the aid of the Court is required. Form of affidavit to lead warrant will be found in Appendix A, No. 22.

5. The warrant shall be issued out of the Registry, and lodged by the party applying for the same with the marshal, and it shall be served by the marshal in the manner following:—

(1) upon ship, freight, or goods on board, by attaching the warrant for a short time to some conspicuous part of the ship, and by leaving a copy of the warrant attached thereto;

(2) upon goods or freight where the goods have been landed or transhipped or are not on board a ship, by attaching the warrant for a short time to such goods, and by leaving a copy of the warrant attached thereto; or, if the person having the custody of the goods refuses access thereto, by showing the warrant to such person and by leaving with him a copy thereof;

(3) upon freight or proceeds of prize in the hands of any person other than a person holding the same on behalf of the Court, by showing the warrant to him, and by leaving with him a copy thereof;

(4) upon freight or proceeds in Court, by showing the warrant to the Registrar, and by leaving with him a copy thereof;

A warrant served as in paragraph (3) provided, shall be deemed to be an order for payment into Court forthwith of the freight or proceeds in respect of which the warrant is issued: Provided that, instead of such warrant, the Judge may, if he sees fit, order the person holding or having received such freight or proceeds to pay the same into Court.

6. In urgent cases, the marshal may, after a warrant is placed in his hands for execution, authorise his substitute by telegram or telephone to detain such property until the service of the warrant can be duly effected as herein provided.

7. Warrants may be served on any day, including Sunday and any public holiday.

8. Warrants shall be filed by the marshal within one week after service thereof has been completed, with a certificate of service endorsed thereon.

9. This order shall not apply to ships of war.

ORDER XI.

Sale, Appraisement, Safe Custody and Inspection of Prize.

1. The Judge may, at any time on the application of the marshal or any party, make such order as to the removal, safe custody or preservation of a ship as he may think fit, and may at any time on account of the condition of a ship, or on the application of a claimant, and on or after condemnation, order the ship to be appraised, if not already appraised, and sold.

2. The appraisement and sale of a ship, the removal and survey thereof, and the unlading and warehousing of goods shall be effected by the marshal under the authority of a commission.

Forms of commission and bills of sale by the marshal will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 23 and 25.

3. Where a ship is ordered to be sold, such sale shall be by public auction unless the Judge shall for good cause otherwise order, and the gross proceeds thereof shall be paid into Court by the marshal.

Form showing usual conditions of sale will be found in Appendix A, No. 26.

4. Where the Judge orders any act or acts in Rule 2 mentioned to be done, the party who has obtained the order shall thereupon obtain out of the Registry a commission and shall lodge the same with the marshal for execution.

5. Every commission issued under Rule 2 shall, as soon as possible after its execution, be filed in the Registry by the marshal with a return, setting forth the manner in which it has been executed. The marshal shall, with the commission, file his accounts and the vouchers in support thereof.

Forms of marshal's certificate and accounts will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 24 and 27.

6. The Registrar shall on the application of any party review the marshal's accounts, and shall report the amount which he considers should be allowed; and any party to the cause may be heard before the Registrar on the review.

7. The Judge on the application of any party by summons may review the Registrar's decision.

8. The amount found due to the marshal shall be paid out to him on an order signed by the Judge.

9. All costs and expenses of and incidental to orders issued under Rule 2 shall in the first instance be borne and paid by the party on whose application the order is issued.

10. Where the Judge directs that goods be unladen, inventoried, and warehoused, they shall, unless the Judge otherwise orders, remain in the custody of the marshal until sale or restitution thereof.

11. The Judge may, if he thinks fit, upon the application of any party to a prize proceeding, order any property under the arrest of the Court or being the subject-matter of a prize proceeding to be inspected by any party thereto or by any person appointed by the Court.

ORDER XII.

Bail.

1. Bail shall be given by filing a bail bond, which shall be signed by two sureties, unless the judge shall order that one surety shall suffice, and it shall be taken before a commissioner authorized to administer oaths in the Court in the exercise of its ordinary jurisdiction, or before the Registrar, or by his direction before a clerk in the Registry, and in every case the sureties shall justify by affidavit.

Forms of bail bond and of affidavit of justification will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 28 and 29.

2. A bail bond shall not, unless by consent, be filed until after the expiration of twenty-four hours from the time when a notice (Appendix A, Form No. 30) containing the names and addresses of the sureties and of the commissioner before whom the bail was taken shall have been served upon the adverse solicitor, and a copy of the notice verified by affidavit shall be filed with the bail bond.

3. No commissioner shall take bail on behalf of any person for whom he or any person in partnership with him is acting as solicitor or agent.

4. A commission or fee paid to a person becoming surety to a bail bond or otherwise giving security may be recovered on taxation, provided that the amount of such commission or fee shall not in the aggregate exceed one pound per centum on the amount in which bail is given.

5. If the adverse party is not satisfied with the sufficiency of a surety, he may file a notice of objection to such surety (Appendix A, Form No. 31). The surety shall thereupon be produced for cross-examination on his affidavit before the Registrar, who shall report on his sufficiency. If the Registrar reports against the sufficiency of the surety, a new bail bond shall be prepared.

6. Where bail is given in a cause for condemnation it shall be deemed to be given and to be answerable not merely to the actual captors, but to all parties having any rights in or against the property, including the Crown, and in respect of the decree of the Court or of any court authorised to hear appeals therefrom.

ORDER XIII.

Releases.

1. Property in the custody of the Court whether under arrest or otherwise shall only be released under the authority of an instrument issued from the Registry (Appendix A, Form No. 32), to be called a release.

2. A release shall be issued at any time before adjudication upon the application of the proper officer of the Crown.

3. A release may be issued without an order of the Judge unless there is a caveat outstanding against the release of the property—

(1) where the property has been ordered by the Judge to be delivered on bail, and one or more bail bonds have been filed for the appraised value of the property ; or

(2) where the property has been arrested at the instance of the Crown and a consent for a release signed by the proper officer of the Crown is filed ; or

(3) where the property is the subject of proceedings for condemnation and a consent to restitution signed by the captors is filed ; or

(4) where proceedings instituted by or on behalf of the Crown are discontinued ; or

(5) Where in proceedings for the recovery of prize salvage the parties claiming salvage discontinue their proceedings, or their claim is dismissed ; or

(6) Where in proceedings for the recovery of prize salvage one or more bail bonds have been filed, or other satisfactory security given, for the amount of salvage claimed and costs.

4. No release shall affect the right (if any) of the owners of the property captured to costs and damages against the captor, unless so ordered by the Judge.

5. Where property has been arrested for prize salvage, the release shall not be issued under the foregoing Rules, except on discontinuance of the proceedings or dismissal of the claim, until the value of the property arrested has been agreed upon between the parties or ascertained as by these Rules provided, unless the Judge shall otherwise order.

6. The release shall be lodged with the marshal by the party upon whose application it has been issued, and thereupon, upon payment to the marshal of all fees due to and charges incurred by him in respect of the property by the party upon whose application the release has been issued, unless the Judge shall otherwise order, the property shall be at once released.

7. The marshal shall file the release with a certificate (Appendix A, Form No. 33) endorsed thereon of the date of the execution thereof.

8. The rules of this Order, except rules 1, 6 and 7, shall not apply to releases on requisition by the Lords of the Admiralty under Order XXIX.

Caveats.

1. Where a ship is subject to a claim for prize salvage but is not under arrest, any person desiring to prevent the arrest of such ship may file a notice in the Registry undertaking to enter an appearance in any cause for the recovery of prize salvage that may have been or may be instituted against such ship, and to give bail in such cause in a sum not exceeding an amount to be stated in the notice, or to pay such sum into the Registry; and a caveat against the issue of a warrant for the arrest of the ship shall thereupon be entered in the caveat warrant book hereinafter mentioned.

Forms of notice and of caveat warrant will be found marked Nos. 34 and 35, respectively, in Appendix A.

2. A party taking proceedings for prize salvage against a ship, in respect of which a caveat has been entered in the caveat warrant book, shall forthwith serve a copy of the writ instituting the proceedings upon the party on whose behalf the caveat has been entered, and within three days of the service of the copy of the writ the party on whose behalf the caveat has been entered shall, if the sum claimed does not exceed the amount for which he has undertaken, give bail in such sum or pay the same into the Registry.

3. If the party on whose behalf the caveat has been entered shall not within the three days prescribed by rule 2 have given bail in such sum or paid the same into the Registry, the caveat may be over-ruled.

4. The entry of a caveat warrant shall not prevent the issue of a warrant for the arrest of any property, but a party at whose instance a warrant shall be issued for the arrest of any property in respect of which there is a caveat warrant outstanding shall be condemned in all costs and damages occasioned thereby, unless he shall show to the satisfaction of the Judge good and sufficient reason for such issue.

5. Any person having any interest in or claim against any property in the custody of the Court, and desiring to prevent its release, shall file a notice in the Registry, and thereupon the Registrar shall enter a caveat in the caveat release book hereinafter mentioned. Forms of notice and of caveat release will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 36 and 37.

6. Any person having any interest in or claim against any money in Court, and desiring to prevent its payment out of Court shall file a notice in the Registry, and thereupon the Registrar shall enter a caveat in the caveat payment book hereinafter mentioned. Forms of notice and of caveat payment will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 38 and 39.

7. If the person entering a caveat is not a party to the cause, the notice shall state his name and address, and an address within three miles of the Registry at which it shall be sufficient to leave all documents required to be served upon him, and such person shall within seven days of the entry of the caveat enter an appearance in the cause, otherwise the caveat will cease to be effective.

8. The party at whose instance a caveat release or caveat payment is entered shall be condemned in all costs and damages occasioned thereby, unless he shall show to the satisfaction of the Judge good and sufficient reason for such entry.

9. A caveat shall not remain in force for more than six months from the date of entering the same.

10. A caveat may at any time be withdrawn by the person at whose instance it has been entered, on his filing a notice withdrawing it. A form of notice of withdrawal will be found in Appendix A, No. 40.

11. The Judge may over-rule any caveat.

ORDER XV.

Evidence and Hearing.

1. A cause for the condemnation of a ship of war shall be heard upon the affidavit as to ship papers, and the ship papers, if any, exhibited thereto either alone or upon such other evidence as the Judge may direct.

2. A cause for the condemnation of a ship other than a ship of war shall be heard upon the following evidence, namely:—

(a) the affidavit as to ship papers, and the ship papers, if any, exhibited thereto;

(b) upon the affidavits of the officers of the ship concerned in the capture;

(c) the depositions of the witnesses, if any, examined before the hearing, whether such witnesses belong to the captured ship or are tendered on behalf of the captors or of any other party;

(d) the evidence given at the hearing of any witnesses, whether on behalf of the captors or of any other party; and

3. At any time after the institution of a cause, whether for condemnation or otherwise, the captors or any other party may apply for the examination of any witnesses before the hearing. The examination (if any), before the hearing, of the witnesses from the captured ship shall be conducted by the proper officer of the Crown, or such other person as the Court shall appoint, in such manner as the Court shall direct for the purpose of ascertaining all information necessary for the assistance of the Court.

4. On application made under the last preceding rule or otherwise the Judge may make such order as he shall think fit as to the examination of witnesses, the hearing of the cause, the bringing in of claims, pleadings, discovery by interrogatories, discovery and inspection of documents, or as to any other matter upon such terms as the nature of the case may require.

5. After a day has been fixed for the hearing of a cause the Registrar shall send notice to all parties that the cause will be heard on the appointed day.

6. At the hearing of a cause the party by whom it has been instituted shall begin, unless the Judge shall otherwise order. If there are several claimants the Judge shall direct which of them shall begin. At the hearing of claims on joint capture the persons claiming to be joint captors shall begin.

7. No ship shall be condemned at the hearing in the absence of an appearance or claim until six months have elapsed from the service of the writ, which shall be verified by an affidavit of service (Appendix A, Form No. 10), unless there be on the ship papers and on the evidence, if any, of the witnesses from the captured ship sufficient proof that such ship belongs to the enemy, or is otherwise liable to condemnation.

8. Where in two or more causes claims have been made by or on behalf of the same persons, and the ship papers in such causes are on the file and in the control of the Court, any party may, by leave of the Judge at the hearing, invoke and give in evidence in any one of such causes the ship papers brought in and filed in any other of such causes, and may, by leave of the Judge, invoke and give in evidence in the cause before the Court any ship papers found on board any ship and any deposition made in any other of such causes.

9. Where a witness is to be examined before the hearing of a cause, the Judge may order that such witness shall be examined before the Judge, or the Registrar, or before some person authorised or appointed for the purpose by the Court (hereinafter called an examiner).

10. If the witness is out of the jurisdiction of the Court, the Judge may order that he shall be examined before an examiner specially appointed for the purpose, or may order, in lieu of a commission, the issue of a request to examine such witness.

Forms of a commission to examine witnesses, and of a request, and of a return to a commission to examine witnesses, will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 41, 42, and 43.

11. The evidence of every witness taken before the hearing shall be taken down in writing by the Judge, Registrar, or examiner, before whom such witness is examined, or by a shorthand writer, appointed by the Judge, Registrar, or examiner, or agreed upon by the parties, and such written evidence, or a transcript of the shorthand writer's notes, shall be certified as correct by the Judge, Registrar, examiner, or shorthand writer.

12. The certified evidence taken before the hearing shall be lodged in the Registry by the party on whose behalf the witness has been examined, or, if taken out of the jurisdiction of the Court, shall forthwith be transmitted by the examiner to the Registry, together with his commission.

13. As soon as the evidence taken before the hearing has been filed or received in the Registry, it may be used as evidence in the cause, saving all just exceptions.

14. When evidence is given at the hearing by the oral examination of witnesses such evidence may be taken by a shorthand writer, appointed by the Judge, and a transcript of the shorthand writer's notes, certified by him to be correct, shall be admitted to prove the oral evidence of a witness.

15. Any examination of a witness may be adjourned, if necessary, from time to time, and from place to place, as the Judge, Registrar, or examiner before whom such examination is taken shall direct.

16. The Judge may order any person within the jurisdiction of the Court who has made an affidavit in a cause to attend for cross-examination thereon before the Judge.

17. Where witnesses are examined orally, whether before the Judge, the Registrar, or an examiner, the parties, the counsel, solicitors, or agents may attend the examination, and the witnesses shall be examined, cross-examined, and re-examined in such order as the Judge, Registrar, or examiner may direct; and questions may be put to any witness by the Judge, Registrar, or examiner as the case may be.

18. The Judge may disallow any questions put in cross-examination of any party or witness which may appear to him to be vexatious or not relevant to any matter proper to be inquired into in the cause.

19. Any person wilfully disobeying any order or subpœna requiring his attendance for the purpose of being examined, or cross-examined, or producing any document, or, on attending, refusing to answer any proper question, shall be deemed guilty of contempt of Court and may be dealt with accordingly.

20. Where any ship papers or other documents have to be translated for use in a cause, such translation shall be made by an interpreter, appointed by the party who desires to use such translation, or if necessary, by a person appointed for the purpose by the Judge. The parties to any proceeding may agree, or, if there is no party other than the Crown or the captor, the proper officer of the Crown may direct, which and what parts, if any, of the ship papers and documents shall be translated.

ORDER XVI.

Assessors.

One or more Trinity Masters or other assessors may, on the application of any party, or without such application if the Judge sees fit, be called in to advise the Court upon any matters requiring nautical or other professional knowledge. Such application shall be made by letter or notice lodged in the Registry six days at least before the attendance of the Trinity Masters or other assessors is required.

The fees of the Trinity Masters or other assessors shall be paid in the first instance by the party on whose demand they are summoned.

ORDER XVII.

References.

1. The Judge may refer the assessment of damages, the taking of any accounts, or any other matter which he may think fit, to the Registrar either alone or assisted by one or more merchants or other assessors.

2. Within 21 days from the day when the order for the reference is made, or an agreement for a reference is filed, the claimant shall file the claim and vouchers and affidavits, if any, and serve copies thereof on the opposite party.

3. The claimant shall, after the filing of the claim and vouchers, obtain a day for the reference either by summons or by agreement, and when such day has been obtained he shall lodge in the Registry a notice praying to have the reference placed in the list for hearing with the stamps for the reference affixed thereto.

4. At the time appointed for the reference, if any party be present, the reference may be proceeded with, but the Registrar may adjourn the reference from time to time as he may deem proper.

5. Evidence may be given viva voce or by affidavit or by documents, and the evidence shall, on the application of either party, but at the expense in the first instance of the party on whose behalf the application is made, be taken down by a shorthand writer appointed by the Court, and a transcript of the shorthand writer's notes, certified by him to be correct, shall be admitted to prove the oral evidence of the witnesses on an objection to the Registrar's report.

6. When a reference has been heard, the Registrar shall draw up a report in writing of the result of the reference, showing any further particulars and reasons that may be necessary. The Registrar shall report whether any and what part of the costs of the reference should be allowed and to whom.

The report shall be in the Form No. 44 of Appendix A, or in such other form as the circumstances of the case may require.

7. The claimant, who has received notice from the Registry that the report is ready, shall, within six days from the time when he has received such notice, file the report and serve a notice of such filing on the opposite party, and shall forthwith apply for an order (Appendix A, Form No. 45) confirming the report.

Forms of writ and of pleadings in prize salvage will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 5 and 13 (ii).

2.—(a). (b) Where a ship captured by the enemy is recaptured by the crew of such ship.

In either case the recaptors may take proceedings to recover the salvage due in respect of recapture (if any), either in rem or in personam.

3. Within 12 days after a writ has been served, the owner shall file an affidavit setting out the value of the property claimed or alleged to have been salved, or an agreement with the recaptors as to such value.

Forms of affidavit and of agreement of value will be found in Appendix A, Nos. 57 and 58.

Where no claim is made by an owner or no appearance is entered, or default is made in filing an affidavit or agreement of value, or where the recaptors are dissatisfied with the value deposed to, the Judge may, on the application of the recaptors, direct the property to be appraised by the marshal or otherwise valued.

5. If no appearance is entered the recaptors may, subject to the filing of an affidavit of service (Appendix A, Form 10), set the case down for hearing by default ; in all other cases the recaptors may at any time after appearance entered, apply for a day for the hearing.

6. Where at the time of a decree or order awarding prize salvage the ship is under arrest, the decree or order of the Court may be enforced by sale of the ship and payment of the amount due out of the proceeds of sale.

9. Where any salvage is awarded to any persons other than officers and crews of His Majesty's ships of war, either alone or conjointly with such officers and crews, the Judge may make an order apportioning such salvage between such persons, or between such persons and such officers and crews, in such proportions as to the Judge shall seem fit.

Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be taken to authorise the distribution of salvage among such officers and crews or to affect any Proclamation of His Majesty as to the distribution of Prize Money.

Forms of decrees in prize salvage will be found marked No. 53 (xiii) to (xvii) in Appendix A.

10. No decree or order for the payment of salvage to salvors shall be made unless and until the Judge is satisfied that no persons other than the said salvors are entitled to share in such salvage.

A ship taken by land expedition within the meaning of the Naval Prize Act, 1864, sect. 34, or by a conjunct capture with an ally within the meaning of sect. 35 of the said Act, shall be proceeded against and dealt with, as far as possible, in the same manner as herein-before provided in the case of any other ship captured as prize.

ORDER XXXII.

Joint Capture, Flag Officers' Claims, and other Conflicting Claims between Captors.

1. Any person claiming to share as joint captor (hereinafter called "the petitioner") may, at any time after the institution of a cause relating to a ship in respect of which he claims a share, proceed as hereinafter provided:

(1) A writ (Appendix A, Form No. 6) shall be issued by the petitioner in the Registry, instituting a cause of joint capture.

(2) If the cause is instituted before condemnation of the ship in respect of which the petitioner claims to share, or in prize salvage before adjudication, the petitioner shall, except in the case of a flag officer claiming to share by virtue of his flag, within six days after issuing his writ give security to the satisfaction of the Court to contribute to the actual captors a just proportion of any costs, charges, expenses or damages that may be incurred by or awarded against the actual captors on account of the capture and detention of the prize. Within 10 days after such security is given the petitioner shall file in the Registry a petition setting out the material facts on which he relies to establish his claim to share as aforesaid.

(3) If the cause is instituted after condemnation of the ship in respect of which the petitioner claims to share, or in prize salvage after adjudication, the judge shall, upon sufficient cause being shown by affidavit why the application was not presented before condemnation or adjudication, and upon payment being made and security being given (as hereinbefore provided), allow the writ to be served upon the party to whom the ship has been condemned (hereinafter called "the respondent"), or in prize salvage on the captors, who shall show cause why the petitioner should not be pronounced to be a joint captor of the said ship.

(4) Where the cause is instituted after condemnation, the petitioner shall, within 10 days after such payment has been made and such security has been given, file a petition setting out all the material facts on which he relies to establish his claim to share as aforesaid, and serve the same as herein—before provided.

(5) The respondent shall appear to the writ by entering an appearance (Appendix A, Form No. 8) in the Registry within the time named in the writ.

2 The respondent, if he desires to contest the right of the petitioner to share, shall file an answer.

If the respondent admits the right of the petitioner to share, he shall file an admission in the Registry.

A copy of every pleading shall be served on the opposite party.

Forms of the above pleadings will be found in Appendix A, No. 13 (iii).

3. Upon the answer, and the reply thereto (if any), or admission being filed, the petition shall be heard in Court, on an early day to be appointed by the Registrar, upon the application of either party, upon such evidence as the Judge shall think fit.

4. If in a cause instituted against a ship for condemnation as prize, or in a cause for prize salvage, a cause of joint capture is instituted before condemnatoin or adjudication, the Judge may, at the hearing of the principal cause, upon condemnation of the ship as lawful prize to the Crown, determine the title of the petitioner to share as aforesaid.

Forms of decree in joint capture will be found in Appendix A, No. 53 (xviii) to (xxi).

5. The costs of and occasioned by the petition shall, as the Judge shall direct, be borne by the petitioner or respondent or be paid out of the proceeds of the ship if condemned.

6. Except by special leave of the Judge no party shall be admitted to claim to share as a joint captor in a prize, or in prize salvage, unless he shall institute his cause and file his petition within six months from the date on which the Judge shall have pronounced any other party entitled to such prize, or prize salvage.

7. A claim by a flag officer to share in prize, or prize salvage, by virtue of his flag shall not be made until after condemnation, and shall then be made in the same form and manner and the same proceedings shall be had thereon, as in cases of asserted joint capture :

Provided, that such flag officer shall not be required to pay costs or give security for costs.

8. Where in any proceedings instituted for condemnation, or for prize salvage, the title or interest of the party instituting such proceedings is denied by any other party who asserts that he has as captor the sole title or interest in the prize, or prize salvage, proceedings may be taken for the purpose of determining such title or interest in the form and manner herein provided for determining the title and interest in a claim of joint capture : Provided, that the petitioner shall not be required to give any security or pay any costs before so proceeding unless so ordered by the Judge, and that the form of proceedings shall assert such sole title and interest instead of a joint title and interest, and that the petition shall be filed within 10 days after the cause is instituted by the petitioner instead of after security given.

9. All other applications to share in prize proceeds, or prize salvage, shall, unless the Judge shall otherwise direct, be made by motion.

ORDER XXXIII.

Prize Bounty.

In claims for prize bounty the procedure shall be as follows:—

(1) Where the ship is brought in for adjudication the application for a decree under the Naval Prize Act, 1864, Section 43, shall be made in Court at the hearing of the principal cause, or as soon thereafter as possible.

(2) Where the ship has been destroyed, or having been taken, has not been brought in for adjudication, the application for a decree as aforesaid shall be made by motion in Court.

(3) Not less than four clear days before such application, notice thereof shall be served upon the proper officer of the Crown.

(4) The witnesses in support of the application shall be examined before the Judge in Court, or their evidence may be given by affidavit.

(5) If the Judge makes a decree in favour of the application and there are no parties other than the original applicants claiming to share in the bounty, the Judge may upon the hearing of the application, or at a later date if he shall see fit, make a decree declaring the title of the applicants to the prize bounty, and stating the amount thereof. If there are other persons claiming to share in the bounty, the judge may make a decree that bounty is due, stating the amount thereof, but reserving the question to whom the said bounty is due.

Forms of decree will be found in Appendix A, No. 53 (XXV) to (XXVIII).

(6) All claims to share as joint captors in prize bounty shall be, as far as possible, subject to the same procedure and rules, and be heard and determined in the same manner, as herein-before provided in the case of claims to share as joint captors in prize.

ORDER XXXIV.

(1) Any application for distribution or investment of such money shall be by motion.

(2) No motion shall be heard unless four days' previous notice thereof, intituled in the cause to the credit of which such money stands or in which such money has been pronounced due, has been served by the applicant upon all parties interested, including (if they are not applicants) the Lords of the Admiralty.

(3) The Judge may, if he thinks fit, direct, any application for distribution or investment to be heard on pleadings.

(4) Evidence on such applications shall be by affidavit, but the Judge may direct any witness to be examined or cross-examined.

3. An appeal shall only be admitted, or leave to appeal granted, by the Court—

(a) upon the appellant, within a period to be fixed by the Court, entering into sufficient security to the satisfaction of the Court, if so required, for the due prosecution of the appeal and the payment of all such costs as may become payable to the respondent in the event of the appeal being dismissed for non-prosecution or of His Majesty in Council ordering the appellant to pay the respondent's costs of the appeal ; and

(b) upon such conditions, if any, as to the time or times within which the appellant shall take the necessary steps for the purpose of procuring the preparation of the record and the despatch thereof to the Privy Council as the Court, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, may think it reasonable to impose.

4. The Court shall have power, when admitting the appeal or granting leave to appeal, either to direct that the said judgment shall be carried into execution or that the execution thereof shall be suspended pending the appeal, and, in case the Court shall direct the said judgment to be carried into execution, the person in whose favour it was given shall, before the execution thereof, enter into sufficient security, to the satisfaction of the Court, for the due performance of such order as His Majesty in Council shall think fit to make thereon.

5. As soon as an appeal has been admitted, whether by an order of the Court or by an order of His Majesty in Council granting special leave to appeal, the appellant shall without delay take all necessary steps to have the record prepared forthwith.

6. The preparation of the record shall be subject to the supervision of the Court, and the parties may submit any disputed question arising in connection therewith to the Court.

7. The Registrar as well as the parties shall endeavour to exclude from the record all documents (more particularly such as are merely formal) that are not relevant to the subject matter of the appeal, and generally to reduce the bulk of the record as far as practicable.

8. Records in appeals to His Majesty in Council shall be printed in the form known as demy quarto and may be printed either in or out of England. The number of lines in each page shall be forty-seven or thereabouts and every tenth line shall be numbered in the margin.

Where the record relates to an appeal from a Court out of England and is to be printed in England, or where the record relates to an appeal from the High Court in England, the Registrar shall, at the expense of the appellant, transmit to the Registrar of the Privy Council one certified copy of such record, together with an index of all the papers and exhibits in the case.

9. Where there are two or more appeals arising out of the same matter the Court may direct the appeals to be consolidated.

10. An appellant may, at any time before the record is transmitted to the Privy Council, withdraw his appeal on such terms as to costs and otherwise as the Court may direct.

11. Where an appellant fails to show due diligence in the prosecution of his appeal before the transmission of the record to the Privy Council, the Court may, on an application made by the respondent, dismiss the appeal or make such order as to costs or otherwise as the Court shall think fit.

12. Where at any time before the hearing of the appeal the record becomes defective by reason of the death or change of status of a party to the appeal, the Court shall, on an application made by any person interested, grant a certificate showing who, in the opinion of the Court, is the proper person to be substituted on the record in place of, or in addition to, the party who has died or undergone a change of status.

13. Where His Majesty in Council directs a party to bear the costs of an appeal incurred in the Court below, such costs shall be taxed by the proper officer of the Court in accordance with Order XIX., r. 2.

14. The Court shall enforce any order or judgment of His Majesty in Council in like manner as any judgment or order of the Court.

Answer.

G. H., solicitor for the commander, officers, and crew of His Majesty's ship , the captors of the said ship , in answer to the petition of the claimants, says as follows:—

1. The said ship and her cargo were taken as prize and brought in for adjudication by the captors under the circumstances hereinafter described.

2. On the day of , His Majesty's ship was cruising off , when the said ship came into sight and was signalled and duly boarded by a boat from the , and the ship papers and documents and the cargo of the were duly inspected and examined.

3. Upon one of the bulkheads, and on one of the boats of the said ship , was found a name (the), which was not the present name of the ship, and the name of the port of , which is in enemy territory, and upon enquiry of the master of the said ship, it appeared that the said ship immediately prior to the purchase by her present owners and to the existing war, had been owner by , a firm carrying on business at the said port of , in enemy territory, and that the said master had been in command of the said ship whilst she belonged to the said firm.

4. On receiving such information, the captors brought in the said ship for adjudication upon the suspicion that the sale and transfer of the said ship to the present alleged owners was not bona fide, and that she still belonged to her former enemy owners.

5. The transfer and assignment of the said shares in the said ship by C. D. to the claimant E. F in the petition alleged took place as therein alleged, but at the time of such transfer the said C. D. was a member of the said firm of , carrying on business as aforesaid, and the transfer and assignment of the said shares was made and executed by the said C. D. as agent of the said firm, and was a mere colourable and fraudulent transfer to cover the enemy character of the said ship and the said ship at the time of capture remained the property, and was navigated for the account and at the risk of the said firm of , and was in fact enemy property.

(If the cargo or any part thereof was enemy property, allege it, stating the alleged ownership thereof; or if the cargo or any part thereof was contraband, allege it.)

6. Save as aforesaid the respondents deny all and every the allegations in the petition contained.

And the said G. H. prays the Judge to pronounce that the said ship (and her cargo) were at the time of capture property of enemies of the Crown of Great Britain, or otherwise liable to condemnation, and to condemn the same as lawful prize to the captors, or to pronounce for just cause of capture.

Petition alleging Special Difficulty or Danger.

Writ issued , 19 .

Petition.

G. H., solicitor for A. B. commander, and the officers and crew of His Majesty's ship , the recaptors of the above-named ship, the plaintiffs (or as the case may be), says as follows:—

1. The recaptors are the commander, officers and crew of His Majesty's ship , which is a cruiser of the second class (or as the case may be) armed with , and carrying a crew of hands all told, and fitted with engines of horse-power effective.

2. On the day of , at about 11 a.m., His Majesty's said ship was proceeding from to in pursuance of her instructions to cruise off the coast of and to assist and protect British vessels whilst passing such coast. At such time as aforesaid it was blowing a heavy gale from the and the weather showed no signs of improvement.

3. Whilst proceeding as aforesaid, those on board the sighted a steamship, appearing to be a British mail steamer, steaming to the on about an opposite course to the . Signals were at once made to the said steamship, which proved to be the of but no answer was made, and although a gun was fired, the altered her course and proceeded in towards the coast of , apparently making for the port of in enemy's territory.

4. The recaptors having thereon reason to believe that the was in possession of the enemy, immediately altered the course of the and chased the gradually, gaining upon her.

5. After hours' chase the , and the had come within 10 miles of the coast of and the was about half-a-mile astern of the said . At this time it was seen that an enemy war ship was coming out of the said port of , and hereupon extra steam was raised on the and she succeeded in getting between the said and the entrance to the said port, and forced her to alter her course to seaward.

6. The said enemy war ship, which proved to be the of guns, and to be carrying a crew of hands came on, and with the assistance of some torpedo boats which were following her engaged the , but after a fierce engagement, lasting about half-an-hour, the said enemy war ship was beaten off and returned to the port of with the torpedo boats, whereupon the said surrend red to the recaptors, and the prize crew in charge of her having been taken on board the , and a prize crew from the having been put on board the , the two vessels in company proceeded towards and the was brought in safety into where she now l es.

7. At the time of the said engagement, His Majesty's said ship was close to the island of , and owing to the gale and the dangerous nature of the coast she ran great risk of being driven on the rocks in manœuvring during the said engagement, and the lives of the recaptors were thereby exposed to great risk and danger. In the said engagement the had men killed and men wounded, including officers.

8. By reason of the premises the and her cargo were saved from condemnation as prize to the enemy under circumstances of special difficulty and danger.

The said G. H. prays the Judge to award to the recaptors, one-fourth of the value of the said and her cargo, or such other sum as to the Judge shall seem just, and costs.

Answer.

J. K., solicitor for C. D., the owner (and claimant) of the said ship and E. F. owner of the cargo thereof, defendants (or as the case may be), in answer to the petition of the recaptors says as follows:—

1. The defendants (or as the case may be) admit that the said ship and her cargo were recaptured from the enemy by the recaptors, but deny that the recapture thereof was made under circumstances of special danger or difficulty entitling the recaptors to a larger part of the value of the said ship and cargo than one-eighth part.

2. The defendants (or as the case may be) do not admit that His Majesty's said ship was at the time of such recapture engaged in protecting British ships as alleged. At the said time His Majesty's said ship was engaged, in conjunction with other vessels, in watching the said port of and in endeavouring to intercept and capture the said enemy's ship of war the , and for such purpose was endeavouring to entice her out of the said port and bring about an engagement with her, and the fact that the said mail steamer the made for such port in fact brought about the engagement so wished for and intended, and such engagement was no brought about and did not happen merely for the purpose of the recapture of the said ship, but took place in the ordinary course of duty and under the express instructions given to His Majesty's said ship.

The said J. K prays the Judge to pronounce that the recaptors are entitled to one-eighth of the value of the said ship and her cargo, and no more, and to condemn the recaptors in the cost of and occasion by their claim for a larger sum.

No. 867-W.—The following papers having been presented to both Houses of Parliament by Command of His Majesty are published for general information :—

PAPERS RELATING TO THE SUPPORT OFFERED BY THE PRINCES AND PEOPLES OF INDIA TO HIS MAJESTY IN CONNECTION WITH THE WAR.

No. 1.

MESSAGE FROM THE KING EMPEROR TO THE PRINCES AND PEOPLES OF INDIA, 8TH SEPTEMBER 1914.

The King Emperor has been graciously pleased to send the following message to the Princes and Peoples of India :—

TO THE PRINCES AND PEOPLES OF MY INDIAN EMPIRE :

During the past few weeks the peoples of My whole Empire at Home and Overseas have moved with one mind and purpose to confront and overthrow an unparalleled assault upon the continuity of civilisation and the peace of mankind.

The calamitous conflict is not of My seeking. My voice has been cast throughout on the side of peace. My Ministers earnestly strove to allay the causes of strife and to appease differences with which My Empire was not concerned. Had I stood aside when, in defiance of pledges to which My Empire was a party, the soil of Belgium was violated, and her cities laid desolate, when the very life of the French nation was threatened with extinction, I should have sacrificed My honour and given to destruction the liberties of My Empire and of mankind. I rejoice that every part of the Empire is with me in this decision.

Paramount regard for treaty faith and the pledged word of rulers and peopl the common heritage of England and of India.

Among the many incidents that have marked the unanimous uprising of the populations of My Empire in defence of its unity and intergity, nothing has moved me more than the passionate devotion to My Throne expressed both by My Indian subjects, and by the Feudatory Princes and the Ruling Chiefs of India, and their prodigal offers of their lives and their resources in the cause of the Realm. Their one-voiced demand to be foremost in the conflict has touched My heart, and has inspired to the highest issues the love and devotion which, as I well know, have ever linked My Indian subjects and Myself. I recall to mind India's gracious message to the British nation of goodwill and fellowship, which greeted My return in February 1912 after the solemn ceremony of My Coronation Durbar at Delhi, and I find in this hour of trial a full harvest and a noble fulfilment of the assurance given by you that the destinies of Great Britain and India are indissolubly linked.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Wednesday, 9th September 1914.

The LORD PRIVY SEAL and SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA (THE MARQUESS OF CREWE): My Lords, I think it will be of interest to the House if I state what has happened in reference to the wonderful series of offers of assistance and support which have been received from the Indian Empire, and the response which has been made to those offers. In the first instance—although it is, of course, not the first in order of date—I will read to the House a Message which His Majesty has sent to the Princes and peoples of India.

The King-Emperor's Message is as follows:—

[See No. 1.]

I received yesterday a summary of offers of service and money made in India to the Viceroy, of which I think it will be interesting if I convey the general gist to your Lordships. The rulers of the Indian Native States, numbering nearly 700 altogether, have with one accord rallied to the defence of the Empire and offered their personal services and the resources of their States. From among the many Princes and nobles who volunteered for service in the war the Viceroy has chosen the Chiefs of Jodhpur, Bikaner, Kishangarh, Rutlam, Sachin, and Patiala, Sir Pertab Singh (Regent of Jodhpur), the Heir Apparent of Bhopal, and a brother of the Maharaja of Cooch Behar, together with other Princes belonging to noble families. It will, I know, be of interest to your Lordships' House, where he has so many personal friends, to know that the veteran Sir Pertab Singh, in spite of his seventy years, refused to be denied the right of serving the King-Emperor in person and is himself going to the front, accompanied by his great nephew, the reigning Maharaja, who is only sixteen years of age and who was brought up at Wellington College and has also, perhaps, become known to some of your Lordships. These have already joined the Expeditionary Force. There are some other Princes, the Chiefs of Jaora and Dholpur, and the Maharaja of Gwalior—also known to many of your Lordships—who, together with the Heir Apparent of Palanpur, were, to their great regret, prevented from quitting their States.

There are twenty-seven States in India that maintain Imperial Service Troops, and immediately on the outbreak of war the services of all of those corps were placed at the disposal of the Viceroy. From twelve of those States the Viceroy has accepted contingents of Infantry, Cavalry, Sappers, and transport, and also the Bikaner Camel Corps; and some of those have already embarked on active service. Further than that, a number of Chiefs, entirely of their own volition, combined to provide a hospital ship to be named "The Loyalty," for the use of the Expeditionary Force. I think I mentioned to the House before that the Maharaja of Mysore had placed a sum of Rs. 50 lakhs at the disposal of the Government for expenditure in connection with the Expeditionary Force. The Viceroy adds that the Maharaja of Gwalior, besides sharing in the expenses of the hospital ship—the idea of which was started by himself and that eminent lady the Begum of Bhopal—has placed large sums of money at the disposal of the Government of India for the purpose of providing a great number of horses as remounts. From Mahomedan Loharu in the Punjab and from two States in Baluchistan there are offers of camels with drivers to be supplied and maintained by the Chiefs and the Sirdars of those States. The Maharaja of Rewa, a distinguished Chief in Central India, has offered his troops, his treasury, and even his private jewellery to be placed at the disposal of His Majesty the King-Emperor. I ought to add that a number of Chiefs, the Maharaja of Kashmir, the Maharaja of Bundi, besides the Maharaja of Gwalior, the Maharaja of Indore, and the Maharaja of Orchha have besides independently subscribed large sums to the Fund of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. The Maharaja of Kashmir gave a large subscription to the Indian Fund, and, what will seem to your Lordships rather a new departure in the case of an Indian Prince, presided at a meeting of 20,000 people held at Srinagar and himself delivered a stirring speech, as the result of which large subscriptions were collected. The Maharaja Holkar offers, free of charge, all the horses belonging to his State forces which the Government may find it convenient to accept. The Nizam of Hyderabad has made a similar offer, as also have the Jam of Jamnagar and some of the other Bombay Chiefs. The Viceroy adds that every Chief in the Bombay Presidency has placed the whole of the resources of his State at the disposal of Government.

Then we go further afield. The Mehtar of Chitral—a name which evokes memories of quite a different kind—and the various tribes in the Khyber Agency have sent loyal messages and offers of support to His Excellency's Government. All States, however remote, and some of the quite small States, have expressed their desire to give such assistance as they can. The Viceroy goes on to say, very truly, that last but not least, outside India altogether, generous offers of assistance were received from the Nepal Durbar. The Nepal Government have placed the whole of their military resources at the disposal of the British Government, and the Prime Minister, who is known also I am sure to some of your Lordships because he has been here, offered a sum of Rs. 3 lakhs to the Viceroy for the purchase of machine guns or field equipment for some of the British Gurkha regiments, and also gave large donations from his private purse to the Indian Relief Fund and to the Prince of Wales's Fund. He also offered Rs. 30,000 for the purchase of machine guns for the 4th Gurkha Rifles.

Then we go still further on to the heights. We find that the Dalai Lama has offered 1,000 Tibetan troops for service under the British Government. He also states that innumerable Lamas all over Tibet are offering up prayers for the success of British arms. In fact, there is only one spirit and one movement over the whole of India. The Viceroy has received thousands of telegrams and letters from every quarter expressing loyalty and the desire to assist; and the local administrations have also received a vast number. They have come from every community, from all manner of different associations, religious and political, from all the different creeds, and from countless numbers of individuals offering their resources or their personal services. The Viceroy mentions in his telegram some typical examples: the All Indian Moslem League and a number of other Moslem associations in Bengal and Rangoon; the Trustees of the Aligarh College; others from Behar and Calcutta; another from the Khoja community, who are followers of a gentleman also well known to your Lordships, the Aga Khan; the Punjab Moslem League, the Behar Landholders' Association; the Taluqdars of Oudh; the Association of the Punjab Chiefs; the Provincial Congresses of Madras and of the United Provinces, which are branches of the Indian Congress, which is well known by name at any rate to most of your Lordships; and the Punjab Association representing the orthodox Sikhs, and the Parsee community of Bombay.

There has also been a number of enthusiastic offers of medical help, of some of which I hope we shall be able gratefully to avail ourselves. The Zemindars of Madras offered 500 horses at quite an early stage in the proceedings; and the Imperial Indian Relief Fund, which was started, of course quite independently of any fund here, for the relief of distress caused in India itself, has been responded to with great enthusiasm and vigour. There were a certain number of Indian Chiefs in Europe at the time. These have not been any more backward in offering their assistance and help. I find that of those who were in these parts the Maharaja and the Maharani Maji Sahiba of Bharatpur subscribed to the Indian Relief Fund and offered the whole resources of their State to Government. The Raja of Akalkot, a Bombay Chief, offered his personal service; and the Raja of Pudukota placed his entire resources at the disposal of Government. The Gaekwar of Baroda placed at our disposal the whole of his troops and the resources of his State. The son of the Mir of Khairpur, a Mahomedan Ruler in North-West India, offered his personal service. And I find also that of the British Indian residents in this country a great number, young and old, have shown their one desire to offer some form of assistance—personal service, or medical service, or some form of contribution to the Empire—in a most loyal and generous manner.

This afternoon I received a telegram from the Viceroy describing what happened yesterday at the meeting of his Legislative Council at Simla. The Viceroy tells me that in opening the proceedings, the members stood while he conveyed to them the Message from the King—the Message which I read to the House at the commencement of my remarks. The Viceroy made a speech, in which he said that he was sure he was expressing the views of the Council and of the whole of India in assuring His Majesty of unflinching loyalty and devotion. He went on to dwell upon the causes which led up to the war and the wicked and wanton manner in which it had been thrust upon the British Empire, and he explained the whole-hearted efforts which had been made by Sir Edward Grey for the preservation of peace so long as such preservation was possible. He expressed, of course, on his own account also, the warmest gratitude for the attitude of the people of India which has been described in what I have just stated to your Lordships. Then when the Viceroy had concluded, Mr. Chitnavis, representing the Indian community, expressed the gratefulness which they all felt for His Majesty's Message, and asked the Viceroy to assure His Majesty that the whole country was with him in this hour of crisis and would loyally and devotedly do everything possible to ensure the success of the British arms. He then moved the following Resolution—

> "That in view of the great war involving most momentous issues now in progress in Europe into which our August Sovereign has been forced to enter by obligations of honour and duty to preserve the neutrality guaranteed by treaty and the liberties of a friendly State, the members of this Council, as voicing the feeling that animates the whole of the people of India, desire to give expression to their feelings of unswerving loyalty and enthusiastic devotion to their King-Emperor and an assurance of their unflinching support to the British Government. They desire at the same time to express the opinion that the people of India, in addition to the military assistance now being afforded by India to the Empire, would wish to share in the heavy financial burden now imposed by the war on the United Kingdom, and request the Government of India to take this view into consideration and thus to demonstrate the unity of India with the Empire. They request His Excellency the President to be so good as to convey the substance of this Resolution to His Majesty the King-Emperor and His Majesty's Government."

That was seconded by one of the principal Mahomedan leaders, the Raja of Mahmudabad, who made an important speech. It was supported by one of the Punjab Sardars, and was further supported in an eloquent speech—the Viceroy states—by Mr. Malaviya, one of the leading representatives of Indian opinion. It was also supported by a distinguished Mahomedan gentleman, Sir Fazalbhoy Currimbhoy, who speaks for Bombay; by Mr. Ghuznavi, speaking for the Mahomedans of Eastern Bengal, and by Mr. Banerjee, who is well known as an exponent of liberal views in Bengal. Mr. Banerjee, in supporting the Resolution, pointed out that—

> "It was the duty of the Council to focus the sentiments of support and enthusiastic loyalty by which every province of the Empire was animated. They desired to tell the world, the enemies of England and all else whom it might concern, that their loyalty was not lip-deep, but that behind the serried ranks of one of the finest armies of the world were the vast and multitudinous races and peoples of India bound together as one man."

The Viceroy replied, and the Resolution was carried without a single dissentient.

I think, my Lords, that we must all agree that this demonstration of true and heartfelt loyalty in India to the King-Emperor and to the Government is one of the most gratifying facts as the outcome of the present war. As we all know, the devotion and the offers of support from the self-governing Dominions of the Crown have been not less striking Those Governments are manned by people of our own blood, with countless memories and traditions which centre round these islands. But it is, perhaps, even more striking, certainly not less gratifying, that those who speak for the various races in India—races which represent a civilisation of almost untold antiquity; races which have been remarkable in arms, in arts, and in the science of government—should in so whole-hearted a manner rally round the British Government, and, most of all, round the person of their Emperor at such a moment as this; and I am certain that this House will desire to express, through those of us who are entitled to speak for it, its appreciation of their attitude and our recognition of the part that they have played and are playing.

THE MARQUESS OF LANSDOWNE: My Lords, we have listened to an announcement from the noble Marquess which seemed to us to be one of surpassing interest—an announcement which I venture to say will prove to be of historic importance in the annals of the British Empire. And let me, before I go further, express the admiration with which we listened to the words in which His Majesty the King was pleased to acknowledge the offers which his Government had received from the peoples and Princes of India. I do not think it would have been possible to express in simpler, more dignified, or more appropriate language the feelings which animate us at this moment and which lead us to embark in this great struggle with absolute confidence in the justice of our cause. The noble Marquess spoke of the "wonderful series of offers" which have been received from the peoples of India. It is indeed a wonderful series of offers, and they were doubly appreciated by those of us who have been concerned with Indian affairs as we listened to the noble Marquess while he travelled over, not only the Indian Empire in the more restricted sense of the term, but the confines of the States which adjoin it, and described to us how one and all of them had come forward at this critical moment to assure us of their support in whatever form they were able to provide it.

Quoting from a speech in support of the Resolution passed in the Legislative Council the other day, the noble Marquess spoke of the "multitudinous races and peoples" of India. It is indeed a great thing that those multitudinous races and peoples should have joined in this movement without reference to geographical limits, to religious distinctions, to political divisions, or to differences of race. We know how deep those cleavages are, and how often it is that they separate one part of India acutely from another. But in this case they were not allowed to prevail, and I am sure that the result will produce an immense impression not only upon the people of this country but upon all who, no matter in what part of the world, are anxious spectators of the great struggle which is now proceeding.

The noble Marquess will not think it unnatural on my part if I say that I listened with special interest to that part of his speech in which he gave us an account of the manner in which the ruling Chiefs of India have come forward at this moment. There was a time when I had the honour of enjoying the friendship and intimacy of a number of those Chiefs; and I left India deeply convinced of the sincerity of their desire to bear, whenever the opportunity was offered to them, a useful and honourable part in the affairs of the Empire. Their generosity is proverbial. The word "generosity" is often coupled with the word "princely," and in India, as the noble Marquess knows, we have every reason to be aware of what "princely generosity" means. But in this case, great as that generosity has been, they have given us a great deal more. I well remember the pride which these great Chiefs and rulers took in the Imperial Service Corps instituted in the time of my predecessor, Lord Dufferin; and I know that it was their ambition that those Imperial Service troops should not merely be as they were, extraordinarily efficient and smart on parade, but that they should be given a chance of fighting alongside of our troops in the cause of the Empire. I heard with great interest the noble Marquess's catalogue of the Princes who are to accompany the Indian Force on this campaign—with some of them I have the honour to be acquainted, others are the sons of fathers who were well known to me—and I may perhaps be permitted to echo what he said with regard to one whom I am able to describe as an old personal friend of my own. I mean the Regent of Jodhpur, better known to his intimates as Sir Pertab Singh. I also heard with special satisfaction the noble Marquess's account of the support which he was receiving from the Maharaja of Nepal. We owe a great debt to the Nepal Government, for it is with their assistance and concurrence that we are able to raise those magnificent Gurkhas, of whom I am glad to know a certain number will accompany the Indian Expedition.

THE MARQUESS OF CREWE: Seven battalions.

THE MARQUESS OF LANSDOWNE: I am glad to hear that. I doubt, my Lords, whether every one in this country realises how great a thing it is that these ruling Chiefs who have come forward in this way upon our side are doing, or how important a position they occupy in their own country. I wonder, for example, whether every one realises that the Maharaja of Mysore, to whose munificent gift the noble Marquess referred, rules over a population which exceeds in numbers the whole of the population of Sweden. I wonder whether every one calls to mind that the Maharaja of Gwalior has more subjects than the King of Denmark; or that the Nizam of Hyderabad governs a people twice as numerous as the people of the Netherlands and three times as numerous as the people of Ireland. It is no small thing that these rulers, standing where they do in our Indian system, should have come forward without exception and given such practical proof of their desire to help us. I venture on the part of those who sit on this side of the House to congratulate the noble Marquess on the manner in which the India Office has been supported at this critical time, and I add to that our congratulations to the Viceroy to whom at a moment when he must have many sad preoccupations, the magnificent response of the people of India must bring consolation and encouragement. I am sure it will be the desire of the House, in whatever way may be fitting, that our cordial thanks should be conveyed to the people of India and to the Indian Chiefs who have stood by us in so conspicuous a manner.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Wednesday, 9th September 1914.

Sir G. SCOTT ROBERTSON asked the Under-Secretary of State for India whether he could make any statement as to offers of help made in India in connection with the war?

The UNDER-SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA (Mr. Charles Roberts): In answer to the question I ask the House to allow me to read a telegram of very considerable length from the Viceroy to the Secretary of State, which really partakes rather of the nature of a statement than strictly an answer to a question, but in view of the importance of the matter, I hope the House will allow me to read it.

The Secretary of State for India has received the following telegram from the Viceroy, dated 8th September 1914:—

> Following is a summary of offers of service, money, etc., made in India to the Viceroy. The Rulers of the Native States in India, who number nearly seven hundred in all, have with one accord rallied to the defence of the Empire and offered their personal services and the resources of their States for the War. From among the many Princes and Nobles who have volunteered for active service, the Viceroy has selected the Chiefs of Jodhpur, Bikaner, Kishangarh, Rutlam, Sachin, and Patiala, Sir Partab Singh, Regent of Jodhpur, the Heir Apparent of Bhopal and a brother of the Maharaja of Cooch Bihar, together with other cadets of noble families. The Veteran Sir Partab would not be denied his right to serve the King-Emperor in spite of his seventy years, and his nephew, the Maharaja, who is but sixteen years old, goes with him.
> All these have, with the Commander-in-Chief's approval, already joined the Expeditionary Forces. The Maharaja of Gwalior and the Chiefs of Jaora and Dholpur, together with the Heir Apparent of Palanpur were, to their great regret, prevented from leaving their States. Twenty-seven of the larger States in India maintain Imperial Service Troops, and the services of every corps were immediately placed at the disposal of the Government of India on the outbreak of war. The Viceroy has accepted from twelve States contingents of Cavalry, Infantry, Sappers, and Transport, besides a Camel Corps from Bikaner, and most of them have already embarked. As particular instances of generosity and eager loyalty of the Chiefs the following may be quoted: Various Darbars have combined together to provide a hospital ship, to be called "The Loyalty," for the use of the Expeditionary Forces.

The Maharaja of Mysore has placed Rs. 50 lakhs at the disposal of the Government of India for expenditure in connection with the Expeditionary Force.

The Chief of Gwalior, in addition to sharing in the expenses of the hospital ship, the idea of which was originated with himself and the Begum of Bhopal, has offered to place large sums of money at the disposal of the Government of India and to provide thousands of horses as remounts. From Loharu in the Punjab and Las Bela and Kalat in Baluchistan come offers of camels with drivers, to be supplied and maintained by the Chiefs and Sardars. Several chiefs have offered to raise additional troops for military service should they be required, and donations to the Indian Relief Fund have poured in from all States. The Maharaja of Rewa has offered his troops, his treasury, and even his private jewellery for the service of the King-Emperor. In addition to contributions to the Indian Fund some Chiefs, namely, those of Kashmir, Bundi, Orchha, and Gwalior and Indore have also given large sums to the Prince of Wales' Fund.

The Maharaja of Kashmir, not content with subscribing himself to the Indian Fund, presided at a meeting of 20,000 people held recently at Srinagar and delivered a stirring speech, in response to which large subscriptions were collected.

Maharaja Holkar offers, free of charge, all horses in his State Army which may be suitable for Government purposes. Horses also offered by Nizam's Government, by Jamnagar and other Bombay States. Every Chief in the Bombay Presidency has placed the resources of his State at the disposal of Government, and all have made contributions to the Relief Fund.

Loyal messages and offers also received from Mehtar of Chitral and tribes of Khyber Agency as well as Khyber Rifles.

Letters have been received from the most remote States in India, all marked by deep sincerity of desire to render some assistance, however humble, to the British Government in its hour of need.

Last, but not least, from beyond the borders of India have been received generous offers of assistance from the Nepal Durbar; the military resources of the State have been placed at the disposal of the British Government, and the Prime Minister has offered a sum of Rs. 3 lakhs to the Viceroy for the purchase of machine guns or field equipment for British Gurkha Regiments proceeding over seas, in addition to large donations from his private purse to the Prince of Wales' Fund and the Imperial Indian Relief Fund. To the 4th Gurkha Rifles, of which the Prime Minister is honorary Colonel, the Prime Minister has offered Rs. 30,000 for the purchase of machine guns in the event of their going on service.

The Dalai Lama of Tibet has offered 1,000 Tibetan troops for service under the British Government. His Holiness also states that Lamas innumerable throughout length and breadth of Tibet are offering prayers for success of British Army and for happiness of souls of all victims of war.*

The same spirit has prevailed throughout British India. Hundreds of telegrams and letters received by Viceroy expressing loyalty and desire to serve Government either in the field or by co-operation in India. Many hundreds also received by local administrations. They come from communities and associations, religious, political and social, of all classes and creeds, also from individuals offering their resources or asking for opportunity to prove loyalty by personal service. Following may be mentioned as typical examples :—

The All-India Moslem League, the Bengal Presidency Moslem League, the Moslem Association of Rangoon, the Trustees of the Aligarh College, the Behar Provincial Moslem League, the Central National Mahomedan Association of Calcutta, the Khoja Community and other followers of Aga Khan, the Punjab Moslem League, Mahomedans of Eastern Bengal, Citizens of Calcutta, Madras, Rangoon, and many other cities, Behar Landholders' Association, Madras Provincial Congress, Taluqdars of Oudh, Punjab Chiefs' Association, United Provinces Provincial Congress, Hindus of the Punjab Chief Khalsa Diwan representing orthodox Sikhs, Borah Community of Bombay, Parsee Community of Bombay.

Indian Musalmans offer field hospital that was sent to Turkey during Balkan War; Bengalee students offer enthusiastic services for an ambulance corps, and there were many other offers of medical aid; Zemindars of Madras* have offered 300 horses, and among other practical steps taken to assist Government may be noted the holding of meetings to allay panic, keep down prices and maintain public confidence and credit. Generous contributions have poured in from all quarters to Imperial Indian Relief Fund.

In addition I ought to mention that similar offers have reached the Secretary of State from Chiefs who happen to be at present in Europe. The Gaekwar of Baroda and the Maharaja of Bharatpur, to mention two only, have placed the whole resources of their States at the disposal of His Majesty's Government. The Indian community in England, including the Indian students, have made loyal offers of services. I feel confident that the House and the country will feel deep appreciation of this magnificent demonstration of the loyalty with which the Princes and Peoples of India have identified themselves with the cause of the Empire.

Mr. BONAR LAW: In view of the very great importance of this message, may I ask the Prime Minister—although I feel sure he has done it—whether the Government are taking every possible step to have the message circulated throughout the whole Empire?

The PRIME MINISTER: Yes; that is being done.

Telegraphic—From the Viceroy to the Secretary of State for India, dated 9th September 1914.

In opening the proceedings of the Legislative Council, Viceroy began by asking the members to stand while he read them a message from the King. [See No. 1.] Viceroy said he thought he was voicing views of Council, and of whole of India, in saying they were profoundly grateful to His Majesty for gracious and stirring message, and can only assure His Majesty of unflinching loyalty and devotion in this time of crisis and emergency. Subsequently, in explaining the causes leading up to the war, the Viceroy emphasised the wicked and wanton manner in which it had been thrust upon the British Empire, and showed how the whole-hearted efforts made for peace by Sir Edward Grey had been rendered futile by the absolute disregard of Germany for international obligations in the matter of the neutrality of Belgium, and the infamous proposals of Germany to buy British neutrality at the expense of the independence of Belgium, and the integrity of France and her possessions. He drew attention to the admission by the German Chancellor that Germany had done a grievous wrong to Belgium. He said: "War is a terrible and horrible thing, but there is a worse thing than war, and that is national dishonour and failure of a nation to keep its engagements."

He expressed profound satisfaction that the attitude of the British Government had been so thoroughly appreciated in India and met with such warm support. The valuable offers of military assistance from Ruling Chiefs and countless offers of personal service and material help from British India had touched him deeply and given one more proof of the deep loyalty of India. The fact that the Government of India were in a position to help the mother country by the despatch of such a large proportion of their armed forces was a supreme mark of his absolute confidence in the fidelity of troops and loyalty of India. He trusted this might be fully recognised in India and abroad. Sacrifices would have to be made, but people of India, standing shoulder to shoulder, would shrink from no sacrifice, but do all in their power to maintain internal order and secure triumph of arms of King-Emperor.

Countless loyal meetings and warm response to appeal for relief funds filled him with satisfaction and confirmed impression that Government would be supported by the determination, courage, and endurance of the whole country. Viceroy added following words: "It was moreover with confidence and pride that I was able to offer to His Majesty the first and largest military force of British and Indian troops for service in Europe that has ever left the shores of India. I am confident that the honour of this land and of the British Empire may be safely entrusted to our brave soldiers, and that they will acquit themselves nobly and ever maintain their high traditions of military chivalry and courage. To the people of India I would say at this time, let us display to the world an attitude of unity, of self-sacrifice, and of unswerving confidence under all circumstances in the justice of our cause and in the assurance that God will defend the right." Subsequently he dealt with question of emigration to British colonies, concluding with the following words: "I appeal to the Indian public to view this question in no narrow light. India has her rights but equally have the Colonies. Should it be decided to negotiate with the Colonial Governments, I am confident that they with their strong Imperial instincts will meet us in no mean nor niggardly spirits, provided that we on our side show our readiness to meet them half way. The fact that in a few weeks' time our splendid Indians soldiers may be fighting side by side and shoulder to shoulder with our Colonial fellow subjects against the common enemy is a guarantee of fair and generous treatment on both sides in a controversy of this nature.

Sir G. Chitnavis, on behalf of Council, expressed their respectful gratitude for His Majesty's kind and gracious message and asked Viceroy to assure His Majesty that in this hour of crisis whole country was with him and would loyally and devotedly do everything possible to ensure success of British arms. He then obtained leave to move following resolution: "That in view of the great war involving most momentous issues now in progress in Europe into which our August Sovereign has been forced to enter by obligations of honour and duty to preserve the neutrality guaranteed by treaty and the liberties of a friendly State, the members of this Council as voicing the feeling that animates the whole of the people of India, desire to give expression to their feelings of unswerving loyalty and enthusiastic devotion to their King Emperor and an assurance of their unflinching support to the British Government. They desire at the same time to express the opinion that the people of India in addition to the Military assistance now being afforded by India to the Empire would wish to share in the heavy financial burden now imposed by the war on the United Kingdom, and request the Government of India to take this view into consideration and thus to demonstrate the unity of India with the Empire. They request His Excellency the President to be so good as to convey the substance of this resolution to His Majesty the King Emperor and His Majesty's Government."

He commenced with a comparison between England's present attitude and that taken up by her during the great Napoleonic wars, pointing out how in the present conflict, as then, undeterred by fear of consequences or claims of self-interest, she stands forth as the protector of weaker nations against the brute force of militarism. He then expressed keen appreciation felt by all Indians of Viceroy's prompt action in assuring the King of India's whole-hearted loyalty, thus acting as a true and trusted representative of Indian people. Though there may be internal difficulties and differences of opinion within the English Empire, in face of outside danger all rally round England to support Empire of which all are proud to be citizens. Indians of all ranks, religions, and opinions, hope for England's victory with loyal sentiment based on gratitude, contentment, and confidence in future.

Maintenance of British rule is an essential condition of moral and material progress of country, hence all rejoice that Indian fighting races will take the field in Europe alongside English troops. Splendid Indian Army under British guidance may be trusted to render a good account of itself under all circumstances. Further and nobler reason for India's support of British cause is complete confidence in the justice of it as proved by published correspondence. India, d deeply to prove herself worthy of England's confidence by action and sacrifice as well as by words. This sentiment, expressed at crowded meetings throughout India, must be voiced here in showing clearly to Viceroy that all are and will be ready to bear their share in the financial burden imposed by war. He moves the resolution with confidence that he will have the full support of whole Council, who will all wish to assist in continuing and completing the noble mission of the Empire.

Raja of Mahmudabad, in seconding the resolution, stated that it represented the very essence of Indian public opinion, and that Indians are only too proud to bear their share of the Imperial burden. Entire resources of India in men and money should be at England's disposal. Expressed deep gratitude on behalf of India for Viceroy's assistance in getting Indian troops despatched to Europe which has made India justly feel proud of her position in the Empire.

Sardar Daljit Singh, Punjab, in supporting resolution, emphasised righteousness of England's cause. India's determination to assist in defence of Empire is due not merely to sense of duty and gratitude but also to feeling that her interests are indissolubly connected with those of England. Immense satisfaction felt throughout India at the honour done to India by sending her troops to England. But England needs money as well as men, and this will be given ungrudgingly by all.

Following passages occurred in an eloquent speech by Mr. Malaviya: India recognises her duty at this present moment and, God willing, will loyally and manfully discharge that duty, that no sacrifice of men or money will be grudged in order that the British arms should triumph, in order that the success of the British arms should establish the triumph of right over might, of civilisation over the military barbarism of Germany, of ordered freedom over military slavery, and of everything that men have held dear in the last hundred years over all that seems to be ugly and despicable at the present moment in the doings that are going on in Belgium and other countries. The appeal that England made in days gone by she has made now in respect of calling upon Englishmen to do their duty, and in this hour of crisis it is her proud privilege to call upon all the citizens of the British Empire to rise as one man and manfully to discharge the duties which the situation has imposed upon them. My Lord, India will humbly and dutifully respond to that call.

Sir Fazalbhoy Currimbhoy, on behalf of Bombay Presidency, said that resolution embodied the feeling of the whole country which desired to prove unity of Empire by sacrificing life and property in support of England. Crisis has helped Indians to realise how dear British rule is to them, and they regard the fact of Indian troops fighting with British in Europe as a great pledge of equal citizenship in Empire. Resolution will be hailed by all India with proud approval.

Mr. Ghuznavi, speaking for Mahomedans of Eastern Bengal, pointed out that the war had demonstrated to the whole world how truly united was the Empire.

Mr. Banerjee, in supporting the resolution, pointed out that it was duty of Council to focus sentiments of enthusiastic loyalty and support which animated every province of the Empire; they desired to tell the world, the enemies of England and all else whom it might concern that their loyalty was not lip-deep but behind the serried ranks of one of the finest armies of the world were the vast and multitudinous races and peoples of India bound together as one man.

Every one of the non-official members present also spoke in favour of the resolution, and the proceedings were marked by a genuine ring of quiet enthusiasm.

In replying on the debate the Viceroy expressed appreciation of remarkable demonstration of loyalty and of unity with the Empire; he fully recognised that the views expressed by Honourable Members represented those of the whole country. India had gladly given her sons to fight the common foe side by side with the sons of Great Britain, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand, and might with confidence and pride look forward to their achievements on the battlefield being worthy of the best and highest traditions of that country. That India had been in a position to send a military force of over 70,000 combatants to fight for the Empire was a legitimate source of pride and satisfaction to her. Viceroy mentioned the names of Ruling Chiefs whose offers to go to front had been accepted, and added that Nepal had generously placed forces at the disposal of Government, while most friendly assurances had been received from the Amir of Afghanistan. That Honourable Members should also desire to share the financial burden was natural and legitimate aspiration with which Government of India was in complete sympathy so far as legitimately possible, having due regard to interests of Indian tax-payer. India bound to suffer financially through falling off of customs and railway receipts. She could ordinarily have asked Home Government to bear whole cost of Expeditionary Force and thus effected counter savings, but Government had felt this would not be in accord with wishes of the people, and that opinion was confirmed by the resolution moved and speeches made. He accepted resolution on behalf of Government who would now recommend that India should accept such portion of cost of force as would have fallen upon India had troops continued in the country ; amount might be roughly estimated at one million sterling up to end of financial year. Viceroy then referred to splendid offer of 50 lakhs by Mysore which would be placed at disposal of His Majesty's Government as additional contribution. There was nothing like comradeship in arms and joint participation in dangers and hardships of war to level distinctions, inspire mutual respect, and foster friendships, and Viceroy added: "I cannot help feeling that as a consequence better relations will be promoted amongst the component parts of the British Empire, many misunderstandings will be removed, and outstanding grievances will be settled in an amicable and generous manner. In this sense out of evil good may come to India, and this is the desire of us all."

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Wednesday, 16th September, 1914.

The LORD PRIVY SEAL AND SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA (The MARQUESS OF CREWE) moved a resolution to the effect that the ordinary pay and other ordinary charges of any troops despatched from India to the seat of war, as well as the ordinary charges of any vessels belonging to the Government of India that might be employed in the expedition which would have been charged upon the resources of India if such troops or vessels had remained in that country or seas adjacent, should continue to be so chargeable, provided that if it should be necessary to replace the troops or vessels so withdrawn by other vessels or forces, then the expense of raising, maintaining, and providing such vessels and forces should be repaid by the Imperial Government. This resolution had, he said, to be passed by both Houses in consequence of the provision of the Government of India Act, 1858. Continuing the noble Marquess said: I need not add anything to what I said a short time ago as to the pride we all feel at the Indian Forces fighting side by side with British soldiers and the soldiers of the self-governing Dominions in this mighty conflict. The pride with which this announcement was received by both Houses of Parliament was shared by the whole country, as was shown by what appeared in the Press next day. It is a most remarkable and most memorable fact. And the reception of the news in India that Indian troops were coming here was for one thing, I venture to hope, a splendid tribute to the justice of our rule there, and is also an evidence of how high the heart of India beats in sympathy with us in this great struggle in which we are engaged. (Cheers.) India desires to play her part, not merely by sending troops, but also she has taken the view that at any rate she shall not in any sense profit or make any sort of saving through the absence of these troops from India, and the consequent absence of the necessity of paying them. The precedents on this subject are very various. Sometimes India has been asked to pay a large amount in respect of troops sent to various parts of the world. In some other cases the whole charge has been undertaken by this country. Both in India and here the proposal is regarded as a thoroughly fair one, considering the magnitude of the struggle in which we are engaged. It was held by a Commission, which sat some 14 years ago, that a war in Europe could not of itself be taken as involving the direct interest of India, but for a war such as this there is no precedent, and no argument of a merely technical kind can be made. Therefore, as we stand at present, and speaking without prejudice of what may happen in the future as to the duration of the war or a number of other factors about which it is impossible to express any opinion at present, I think this arrangement is a reasonable one both from the Indian and the British point of view, and I trust therefore that your Lordships will be able to assent to the resolution.

The Earl Curzon of Kedleston: Perhaps as one who was connected for some years with the Government of India I may be allowed to say a word on the statement which has just been made by the noble Marquess, the Leader of the House. I am the more anxious to do so because on the two previous occasions upon which the despatch of these Indian contingents has been mentioned, I was unfortunately absent elsewhere. I should like to take this opportunity of joining the noble Marquess in a tribute of admiration for the splendid spirit of loyalty which has been shown by the Dominions and all classes and creeds in India, and further to offer my congratulations to the Viceroy in particular, and the Government of India, for the substantial and magnificent offer of assistance which they have been able to make to His Majesty's Government. From my own experience I can bear out what the noble Marquess has said. During the last ten days that I have been engaged elsewhere no subject has raised more enthusiasm among the thousands of people I have seen assembled than the splendid offer of the Indian contingent. (Cheers.) Now the noble Marquess takes us a step further. He makes a motion to the House which is to the effect that the ordinary charges of these troops should continue to be borne by the Indian Government—or, to use his own phrase, that the Indian Government should derive no profit from their patriotism in this respect. In ordinary circumstances I might have felt some doubt about such a proposal, but there may have been fluctuations in our policy in regard to this matter, fluctuations, I am bound to say in some cases not altogether creditable to ourselves or to our standard of chivalry and honour. But these circumstances have largely changed in recent years, and broadly speaking, the principle which is now observed, I think the noble Marquess will agree, is when the Indian troops are employed outside that country the expenditure shall not fall on them. That was certainly the case with regard to the expedition which I had the honour to despatch from India in 1900 to the relief of the Legations in Peking. But the noble Marquess has told us to-day that this is an exceptional case. This is the case where the troops from India are spontaneously taking part in war which may be held to involve the interests of India as being included in the whole Empire. I conclude that the proposal of the noble Marquess is one that has been made to him by the Government of India. I think it is one which your Lordships can well accept.

No. 7.

House of Commons, Wednesday, 16th September 1914.

The Prime Minister (Mr. Asquith): I beg to move, "That His Majesty having directed a military force, consisting of British and Indian troops, charged upon the revenues of India, to be despatched to Europe for service in the War in which this country is engaged, this House consents that the ordinary pay and other ordinary charges of any troops so despatched, as well as the ordinary charges of any vessels belonging to the Government of India that may be employed in this expedition which would have been charged upon the resources of India if such troops or vessels had remained in that country or seas adjacent, shall continue to be so chargeable, provided that, if it shall be necessary to replace the troops or vessels so withdrawn by other vessels or forces, then the expense of raising, maintaining, and providing such vessels and forces shall be repaid out of any moneys which may be provided by Parliament for the purposes of the said expedition."

The Motion which stands in my name, and which I propose now to move, is one which I am quite certain will be received with complete assent and gratitude in every quarter of the House. I do not think that in all the moving exhibitions of national and Imperial patriotism which the War has evoked there is any which has more touched, and rightly touched, the feelings of this House and the country, than the message sent by the Viceroy of India announcing the magnificent response which the princes and peoples of that country have made to our need. In consequence of the provisions of Section 55 of the Government of India Act, 1858, it is not constitutionally right or proper to charge upon the revenues of India, except in the case of actual invasion or of sudden and unforeseen emergency, the cost of troops that may be sent outside that country. The assent of both Houses of Parliament is needed before any such charge can be imposed upon the revenues of India. The assistance of the Indian Army under Imperial exigencies has been more than once—indeed, several times since the passing of that Act—offered by India and accepted by ourselves. I will not go into the precedents; it is not necessary to do so.

In most of those cases the whole cost of the charge has been met, as I am sure we would willingly meet it in this case, out of the revenues of the United Kingdom. But when this matter came up, as it did last week, before the Legislative Council of the Viceroy of India, one of the unofficial Indian members moved a resolution to the effect that India would desire, in the present emergency, that she should be allowed not only to send her troops, but to contribute the cost of their maintenance and pay, and the Viceroy, on behalf of the Government of India—and I am sure with the assent and sympathy not only of this House and the people of this country, but of the whole people of the British Empire—accepted that offer. The result is that, through this patriotic initiative, not in any sense dictated or inspired by the Government, but proceeding from an unofficial member of the Viceroy's Council, these splendid British and Indian troops which are now already upon their way, and which we believe will afford to us and to the Empire at large most effective assistance in the righteous struggle in which we are engaged, will be sent, as far as their ordinary charges are concerned, at the expense of the Government and people of India. The Motion I have to make is of a purely formal character. It is necessary in order to comply with the requirements of the Act of Parliament. I am sure we should not be giving expression to what everyone of us feels if we did not couple with its acceptance an acknowledgment, sincere and heartfelt, of the spontaneous and splendid assistance which our great Dependency of India is giving us.

Mr. BONAR LAW: I am glad to have the privilege of seconding the Resolution which has been moved. Since the War broke out nothing, as the Prime Minister has said—not even, I think, the heroic conduct of our own soldiers on the field of battle—has moved the people of this country more deeply than the spontaneous and enthusiastic outburst of loyalty to their Emperor and patriotism of the Empire of which we had an account in the message of the Viceroy given the other day. The circumstances under which this Resolution is necessary are another proof of the reality and of the value of that assistance. Previously when Indian troops, as the Prime Minister has pointed out, have been used out of India the Government of India has looked with a jealous eye in order to see that no part of the financial burden would fall on the people of India. Now the Indian Government, representing and inspired by the Indian people, are not only sending their sons to risk their lives at the side of our own soldiers, by whom they will be proudly welcomed as comrades, but are insisting on bearing a share of the burden of the expense which is involved.

I ventured to say the other day at the Guildhall that the moral forces which our enemies not only despised but affront would prove in the long run stronger than the material forces on which alone they rely. It is on moral forces that we rely to-day. The generous aid which is coming to us from the self-governing Dominions in every part of the Empire is coming of their own free will. It could not be demanded by us, and it could not be enforced by us. This assistance from India also is coming not from force, but from good will, and I believe that it is coming because, on the whole, everyone who leaves this country to take part in the government of India, from the Viceroy to the humblest official, is inspired by the tradition that it is his duty not to exploit India for the benefit of this country, but to rule it for the good of the people of India. We have made mistakes, but on the whole we have succeeded, and it is because, in the main, the people of India recognise that that is the spirit in which the Government is carried on, that we have received so generously their assistance in our hour of need.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations, and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published early in September next by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and will be procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There will be two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited and considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.

No. 812-W.—The following public announcement is published for general information :—

In view of the outbreak of war between Great Britain and Turkey, which to the regret of Great Britain has been brought about by the ill-advised, unprovoked and deliberate action of the Ottoman Government, His Excellency the Viceroy is authorised by His Majesty's Government to make the following public announcement in regard to the Holy Places of Arabia including the Holy Shrines of Mesopotamia and the port of Jeddah, in order that there may be no misunderstanding on the part of His Majesty's most loyal Moslem subjects as to the attitude of His Majesty's Government in this war in which no question of a religious character is involved. These Holy Places and Jeddah will be immune from attack or molestation by the British Naval and Military Forces so long as there is no interference with pilgrims from India to the Holy Places and Shrines in question. At the request of His Majesty's Government, the Governments of France and Russia have given them similar assurances.

A. H. GRANT,

Delhi, the 3rd November 1914.

No. 820-W.—The following statement, which was published in London on the 1st November 1914, by His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, dated the 31st October 1914, is republished for general information :—

At the beginning of the war the British Government gave definite assurances that if Turkey remained neutral her independence and integrity would be respected during the war and in the settlement of the terms of peace. In this France and Russia concurred. The British Government have since then endeavoured with the greatest patience and forbearance to preserve friendly relations in spite of the increasing breaches of neutrality on the part of the Turkish Government at Constantinople in the case of the German vessels in the Straits. On Friday, the 30th of October 1914, the British Government learnt with the utmost regret that the Turkish ships of war had, without any declaration of war, without warning and without provocation of any sort, made wanton attacks on the open undefended towns in the Black Sea of a friendly country, thus committing an unprecedented violation of the most ordinary rules of international law, comity and usage. Ever since the German men-of-war, the Goeben and Breslau, took refuge at Constantinople, the attitude of the Turkish Government towards Great Britain has caused surprise and some uneasiness. Promises made by the Turkish Government to send away the German officers and crews of the Goeben and Breslau have never been fulfilled. It was well known that the Turkish Minister of War was decidedly pro-German in his sympathies, but it was confidently hoped that the saner counsels of their colleagues, who had had experience of the friendship which Great Britain has always shown towards the Turkish Government, would have prevailed and prevented that Government from entering upon the very risky policy of taking a part in the conflict on the side of Germany. Since the war German officers in large numbers have invaded Constantinople, have usurped the authority of the Government and have been able to coerce the Sultan's Ministers to take up a policy of aggression. Great Britain, as well as France and Russia, has watched these proceedings patiently, protesting against the many acts which have been constantly committed contrary to neutrality, and warning the Government of the Sultan against the danger in which they were placing the future of the Ottoman Empire. Vigorously assisted by the Ambassadors of Germany and Austria, the German military elements at Constantinople have been persistently doing their utmost to force Turkey into war, both by their activities in the service of the Turks and by the bribes with which they have been so lavish. The Minister of War, with his German Advisers, has lately prepared an armed force for an attack on Egypt. The Mosul and Damascus Army Corps have, since their mobilisation, been constantly sending troops south, preparatory to an invasion of Egypt and the Suez Canal, from Akaba and Gaza. A large body of Bedouin Arabs has been called out and armed to assist in this venture and some of these have crossed the Sinai frontier. Transport has been collected, roads have been prepared up to the frontier of Egypt, and mines have been despatched to be laid in the Gulf of Akaba. The notorious Sheikh Aziz Shawish has published and disseminated through Syria, and probably India, an inflammatory document urging Muhammadans to fight against Great Britain. Doctor Prueffer, who was so long engaged in intrigues at Cairo against the British occupation and is now attached to the German Embassy at Constantinople, has been busily occupied in Syria trying to incite the people to take part in this conflict. Aggressive action was certain to be the result of the activity of the numerous German officers employed in the Turkish Army and acting under the orders of the German Government who have thus succeeded in forcing the hands of the Advisors of the Sultan. German intrigue cannot influence the loyalty to Great Britain of the seventy millions of Muhammadans in India and the feeling of the Muhammadan inhabitants of Egypt. They must look with detestation on the misguided action, under foreign influence at Constantinople, which will inevitably lead to the disintegration of the Turkish Empire and which shows such forgetfulness of the many occasions on which Great Britain has shown friendship to Turkey. They must feel bitterly the degeneration of their co-religionists who ought not to have thus been dominated against their will by German influences, and many of them realise that, when Turkey is pushed into war by Germany, they must dissociate themselves from a course of action that is so prejudicial to the position of Turkey itself. The Turkish Government summarily and without notice on Friday shut off telegraphic communication with the British Embassy at Constantinople. This is no doubt the prelude to further acts of aggression on her part and the British Government must take whatever action is required to protect British interests in British territory and also Egypt from attacks tha have been made and are threatened.

Rainfall summary for the seven days ending at 8 hrs. on Thursday, the 5th November 1914, based on the Indian Daily Weather Reports of the period.

Weather continued disturbed in northwest India up to the 2nd November, and widespread rain fell in Baluchistan, the North-West Frontier Province, Kashmir and the Western and submontane districts of the Punjab, while a few falls also occurred in Sind. Rainfall in all these areas, except Kashmir, is most unusual at this time of the year.

A depression from the south of the Bay crossed the Coromandel coast near Madras on the 1st and had passed out into the Arabian Sea near Karwar by the morning of the 3rd. It caused an increase of rain in south Madras and an extension of rainfall northwards in the western half of the Peninsula.

2. Burma.—Practically no rainfall occurred north of Bassein and the amounts reported were in most cases small.

Northeast India, including Orissa.—Weather was dry.

The United Provinces, Central India and the Central Provinces.—Rain fell in the northwest of the United Provinces on the 29th and 31st October.

Northwest India.—Precipitation was nearly general in the east Punjab on the 29th in the west Punjab on the 30th and 31st, in Kashmir on the 29th and 31st October and 2nd November, in the North-West Frontier Province on the 31st, and in north Baluchistan on the 29th, 30th and 31st October and 1st November.

The Peninsula.—Nearly general rain fell in south Madras on the 29th and 30th October and 4th November, in the Bombay Deccan on the 3rd and 4th November, in Mysore on the 2nd and 4th November, and on the north Madras coast on the 2nd November.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Season and Crop Prospects for the week ending Saturday, 31st October 1914.

Burma.—The rainfall during the week was negligible. Ploughing for and planting of island crops has commenced. Reaping of autumn rice is in progress. Harvesting of ground-nut and plucking of cotton are proceeding. The condition of crops is satisfactory. The health of cattle is good. The price of unhusked rice is still below normal at Rangoon. Markets are firm and the arrivals are moderate.

Assam.—The weather was seasonable and practically rainless. Harvesting of autumn rice is nearing completion. Ploughing for and sowing of mustard and pulses and plucking and manufacture of tea are in progress. Prospects of tea, winter rice, cotton and sugarcane are fair to good. The average price of common rice is practically stationary. Cattle disease is reported from two districts.

Bengal.—During the week under review light and scattered showers fell only in a few places in the western districts. The winter paddy crop on high lands is drying up and the low land crop is also suffering in places on account of continued drought. Ploughing for and sowing of spring crops are in progress, but the operations are somewhat hampered by the absence of moisture in the soil. Damage to winter rice by insect pests continues to be reported from Midnapore. Cattle disease is reported from ten districts. The average price of common rice has fallen by about 0·2 per cent. as compared with that of the previous week.

Bihar and Orissa. There was no rain during the week except very light showers in parts of the Santhal Parganas, Hazaribagh and Ranchi. Sowing of spring crops continues but is being retarded in some districts for want of moisture. For the same reason standing paddy on unirrigated areas is reported to be suffering in most districts of Bihar and also in parts of Balasore, Angul and Palamau. Some damage to paddy by insects is reported from Cuttack, Balasore, and Sambalpur. The average price of common rice has fallen slightly as compared with that of the previous week. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient. Cattle disease is reported from twelve districts. Agricultural prospects in the Feudatory States of Orissa are on the whole good.

United Provinces.—Light rain has fallen in the northern and north-western districts of the Provinces. More rain is still needed in the eastern and south-eastern districts for late rice which is being irrigated where possible. Slight damage to crops by locusts is reported in some tahsils of the Jalaun, Jhansi and Banda districts. Harvesting of autumn crops and picking of cotton still continue in most districts. Sowing of spring crops is in full swing. The condition of standing crops is good throughout the Provinces except in the Hamirpur district where signs of withering are reported. Cattle disease is reported from nine districts only and the condition of agricultural stock is generally good. Fodder and water are sufficient everywhere. Market supplies are ample. Prices are fluctuating in a few districts but are on the whole fairly stationary.

Punjab.—Light or moderate rain was general throughout. It was not required anywhere. The condition of cotton, sugarcane and other standing irrigated crops is good and that of unirrigated crops is fair to good. Picking of cotton and reaping of other autumn crops continue. The yield of cotton is generally average to good and that of other crops is average on irrigated and below average to average on unirrigated areas. Ploughings for and sowings of spring crops are in progress and are normal. Germination is good. Cattle are generally healthy. Prices of wheat range between normal and warning rates and of other grains between warning and scarcity rates.

North-West Frontier Province.—Slight rain fell all over the Province. The weather is cold. Standing crops are good on irrigated and average on unirrigated lands. Slight hail fell in some places of the Bannu tahsil. The Paharpur canal is running. Harvesting of autumn crops, picking of cotton and sowing of spring crops continue. The condition of cattle is generally good. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are high but are falling in the case of maize in Peshawar and in the case of bajra in Dera Ismail Khan.

Jammu.—Slight rain fell during the week. Prices are fluctuating. Wheat sells from 9 to 18 and maize from 13 to 24 seers per rupee. The condition of standing crops is good. There is no cattle disease. Fodder is sufficient.

Kashmir.—The rainfall during the week was good in Anantnag and heavy in Muzaffarabad and Baramulla. Agricultural operations for spring crops are in progress. Cattle disease is reported in Uttarmachipura and Sripartabsinghpura. Prices are normal. Water and fodder are sufficient.

Rajputana.—Slight showers were received in three outstations of Bharatpur. The weather is generally clear and cool. Harvesting of autumn crops is completed in Jaipur and parts of Jaisalmer and southern Rajputana and is progressing elsewhere. Sowing of spring crops continues. Standing crops are fair to good in Jaisalmer and Karauli. Locusts are still doing damage. Cattle are in good condition. Fodder and water are sufficient. Prices are generally stationary though there is an unusual falling off in the price of cotton in Bharatpur.

Central India.—No rain fell during the week but the previous rainfall has been sufficient throughout. Harvesting of autumn crops and sowing of spring crops are in progress in Gwalior, Bundelkhand and the Southern States. Standing crops are generally good. Cattle disease prevails in parts of Indore and in the Nagod State of Baghelkhand. The condition of cattle is good elsewhere. The fodder supply is sufficient throughout. Prices are rising in Gwalior, Bhopal and Baghelkhand, are falling in the Sarila and Gaurihar States of Bundelkhand, are fluctuating in the Baoni State of Bundelkhand and are steady elsewhere.

Central Provinces.—The week has been rainless but occasional cloudy weather is reported from nearly all districts. The days are warm but the nights and mornings are cool. Reaping of autumn crops is in full swing and picking of cotton has been started in certain districts. Sowing of spring crops is in progress and germination of crops already sown is satisfactory. Standing crops are in excellent condition. Fodder and water are sufficient and cattle are faring well. The prices of staple food grains remained stationary or fluctuated slightly, exhibiting a downward tendency.

Feudatory States.—Harvesting of autumn crops and sowing of spring crops continue. Wheat in Khairagarh and rice in Jashpur fell and gram in Kanker and rice in Raigarh rose by 2 seers per rupee.

Bombay.—Slight rain fell during the week in parts of Sind, Kanara and Satara. Crops are generally good except for slight damage by locusts in one taluka of Karachi, Thar and Parkar, Larkana and Nasik, by rats in two States of Rewa Kantha and by insufficient rain in parts of Poona, one taluka of the Upper Sind Frontier and in Ahmednagar. Harvesting continues. Cotton picking is progressing in Hyderabad, Thar and Parkar, Nawabshah, Khandesh, Ahmednagar and Kathiawar. Sowing of spring crops generally continues in the Presidency Proper. The fodder supply is sufficient except in the area affected by floods and in the hilly tracts of Karachi, one taluka of Thar and Parkar, Nawabshah and Poona. Cattle are in good condition. Agricultural stock is sufficient except in Ahmednagar and Poona. Drinking water is adequate. Irrigation water is generally sufficient. Prices have fallen in the Konkan and the Karnatak and are steady elsewhere. The numbers on gratuitous relief during the week ending 31st October were :—Bijapur 234.

Hyderabad.—Slight showers were received in the Mahbubnagar and Nalgonda districts. The average fall for the dominions was 2 cents. Autumn crops are being generally harvested. The early rice crop is fair to good and is being harvested. Spring sowings are progressing generally and the crop is being weeded in parts. The condition of the crop is fair to good. Preparation of lands for late rice continues and sowings have commenced. Cattle disease is reported in nine talukas. Prices of grain are almost stationary. The highest price in districts is Juar 9 seers in Mahbubnagar and the lowest 22 seers in Bir.

Mysore.—The rainfall during the week was nil in Shimoga and Chitaldrug and light elsewhere. The price of ragi has risen in Hassan and fallen in Shimoga and Bangalore. Markets are well supplied. Weeding operations are in progress in parts. The outturn of the harvested ragi and sugarcane is fair and that of gingelly is poor to fair. Standing crops are generally in fair condition. Prospects of the season are generally good but more rain is wanted in all districts except Kolar, Mysore and Kadur. Cattle are generally healthy. Water and fodder are available.

Coorg.—Light rain fell during the week. Agricultural prospects are good. Picking of cardamom continues. Prices of food grains are high. The public health is fair. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Madras.—The rainfall was very heavy in Cochin and the Carnatic except in Nellore, fair to heavy in the central and south Nilgiris and the West Coast except in Cochin and light or nil elsewhere. Standing crops are fair to good generally but require rain in parts of three districts and are submerged in parts of one district. Harvesting of paddy and dry crops is proceeding or is being completed in parts with outturn fair to normal generally. Sowings of paddy and dry crops are proceeding or concluding normally. The condition of cattle is generally good. The water-supply is generally sufficient except in parts of Ganjam, Kistna, the Deccan, Nellore, South Arcot, the central parts except in Coimbatore and Trichinopoly and the south except in Tanjore and Tinnevelly. Pasture and fodder are generally sufficient. Prices show a slight tendency to fall.

HISTORICAL RECORD OF THE IMPERIAL VISIT TO INDIA, 1911.

This book, which has been compiled by the Government of India from the official records, contains a complete and authoritative account of the proceedings connected with the visit of Their Imperial Majesties to India and with the Coronation Durbar of December 1911, including lists of the persons taking part in all the various celebrations, and ceremonies at which Their Imperial Majesties were present, as well as a large number of illustrations, portraits of Ruling Princes and others, coloured Persian and Sanscrit texts, maps, plans, etc.

It will be published early in September next by Mr. John Murray, Albemarle Street, London, W., and will be procurable from all the principal booksellers.

There will be two editions—a popular one in a cloth binding, price Rs. 7-8-0, and very limited edition de luxe, price Rs. 250, which has been subscribed for. As the popular edition is strictly limited and considerable portion of it has been absorbed in requisitions already received and in the requirements of libraries, schools, etc., it will probably be exhausted very soon after publication. Those who have not yet ordered copies but require them are therefore advised to order at an early date. Application should be made to the Superintendent, Official History of the Durbar, Foreign Department, Simla.
